TEUTONS SMASH ON IN ROUMANIA

As Sereth Line Is Neared Resistance Grows Stiffer.

RUSS DEFEND ODESSA KEY

As Invaders Push on in Drive to Bessarabia Russian and Roumanian Defensive Becomes More Desperate and Bitter—Progress Is Not So Rapid Now.

Berlin, Jan. 1.—All along the western frontier of Moldavia, Field Marshal von Falkenhayn's forces during the last thirty-six hours smashed their way forward, the war office announces. The offensive which was suddenly set in operation from the mountains around the Oituz pass by General von Gerok, continues unabated. Similar progress was made by the armies driving against the fortified Foresami-Galati line, the key front of the Sereth positions. Here, however, the invaders are meeting most stubborn resistance and violent thrusts from the Russians and Roumanians. The war office asserts that the defenders were unable to halt the Teuton advance.

Resistance Becomes Bitter.

A fierce battle was fought on the eastern edge of the Transylvanian mountain ridge, north and northeast of Ramnicu-Sarat, the big railhead captured by Falkenhayn last week. As the Teuton drive is developing greater and greater menace to Bessarabia and to Russia's great seaport, Odessa, whose loss would mean a terrific blow to Russia's economic situation, the defense becomes more and more embittered and desperate, illustrative of General Sakharoff's realization that the overthrow of the Sereth line and the capture of Braila will smash the way wide open for the Teutons.

The night's war office bulletin announces that the Russians have been "thrown back as far as the Braila bridgehead, against which our attack is progressing." The Danube port of Macin also is seriously threatened.

The next forty-eight hours are expected to bring decisive developments in the Roumanian theater of war.

Youth Wants to Go to Prison to Confab With Crooks.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1.—Eager to meet fate at least half way, a youth who gave his name as Kenyon C. Peterson, twenty-one years of age, of Ravenswood, a suburb of Chicago, serenely surrendered himself to the police, because, as he said, after confessing a truly amazing list of alleged crimes, he was discouraged at his inability to make $1,000 a month as a crook, and wanted to go to the penitentiary to learn from master criminals an efficacious method of living well by one's wits.

DRYS HAVE MATTERS OWN WAY IN MICHIGAN

Control Both Houses and Have Agreed on Program.

Lansing, Jan. 1.—The Michigan legislature will convene Wednesday, January 3, and by far the most interesting issue with which it will deal is the drafting of prohibition legislation to make effective the constitutional amendment adopted by the people in the November election. The amendment goes into effect May 1, 1918.

A group of representative lawyers of the state drafted a series of acts which will be submitted to the legislature through dry leaders. The work was done in co-operation with the Michigan Anti-Saloon league, which called the legal conference, and these laws will undoubtedly be adopted by the legislature substantially as the dry attorneys have written them, for the drys have an overwhelming majority in both houses.

Lieutenant Governor Dickenson, the most pronounced dry politician in Michigan, was re-elected by a Republican majority exceeded in the state only by that of United States Senator Townsend. Representative Rice, another dry leader, has pledges of sufficient votes to be elected speaker of the house, and the liquor committees of both bodies will be dry.

POLITICS IN WEST VIRGINIA

That Looks Like Most Interesting Matter Before Legislature.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 1.—When the West Virginia legislature convenes here January 9, it will face complications more involved than ever before in the history of the state. As a result of the recent election, a Republican senate, aided and abetted by a Republican governor, will be pitted against a Democratic house.

The regular session follows closely on the heels of a special session at which legislation was passed guaranteeing the office tenure of Republican appointees after a bitter fight. It is considered probable that an effort will be made by the Democrats controlling the house the coming session to checkmate this move in some manner.

Duty stands for the most part close at hand, unobscured, simple, immediate. If any man has the will to hear her voice, to him is she willing to enter and be his ready guest.—Francis Peabody.

[illegible] Barricade

A Story of the Paris Commune

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

[illegible] villains, for a time paralyzed the government by fire and sword. And when they had succeeded [illegible] the power to [illegible] their whole structure fell to the ground because these ideas [illegible]

The singular feature of all this is the sincerity and devotion to a cause [illegible] was no foundation. That the [illegible] were [illegible] as well as [illegible] But [illegible] undoubtedly [illegible] actuated by pure motives.

During the period when the communists held Paris by means of barricades erected upon the streets through which the national troops were attacking them, Captain Pierre Le Moyne was ordered to take his company into a narrow street and demolish a barricade, behind which a party of communists were entrenched. There was but little room in which an attacking force could operate, the street being no over thirty feet wide. Captain Le Moyne was obliged to march his men down the narrow lane, the houses of which rose on either side to a height greater than the width of the street. The distance from the beginning of the street to the barricade was about 1,000 feet. From the windows and the roofs of the houses it was to be expected that the advancing troops would be picked off by the communists.

Many a soldier, when he received the order to march into the death trap or heard the reverberation between the houses of the first tap of the drum which announced it, felt that there was little chance of his ever getting out alive. Each stroke on the drumhead sounded sharp and loud and ominous. As the little column moved onward there was a crack from a window, a faint cloud of smoke, and one of the men fell on the pavement. Another crack from a roof on the opposite side of the street, and another man plunged forward on his face.

"At this rate," thought Captain Le Moyne, "by the time we reach the barricade there will be not enough of us left to take it."

"Tap-tap! Tap-tap-tap!" came the drumbeats, while at short intervals a crack of a weapon here and there added to their viciousness.

But as the men advanced the shots came fewer. When one-half the distance had been covered, where there had been a dozen shots a minute there was now only a straggling fire, and the marksmanship was wild.

"Either they are breaking down," said the captain, "or they have concentrated all their force at the barricade."

On marched the troops, reduced by a fifth of their number, till, turning a bend in the street, they came in sight of the barricade. The firing from the [illegible] ceased entirely. The silence, broken only by the sharply reverberating drum taps, was more ominous than if the drums had been deadened by a fusillade. The pile of cobblestones which floated the blood red flag of the commune looked ugly—more ugly because the weapons behind it, aimed down the narrow street, were invisible.

Captain Le Moyne halted his men for the purpose of taking in the situation. He cast quick glances at the upper stories and roofs of the houses on each side. No one was in sight, nor was a single shot fired.

"They are reserving their fire," said the captain. "We shall get it from the windows when we charge the works."

He strained his eyes in an endeavor to get sight of something stirring within. Not even the flag moved, for there was no wind.

Silence before the storm is more depressing than after it breaks. Men standing waiting for a fight to open are more unreliable than in the heat of battle. Le Moyne's soldiers seemed restless. There was no reason for them to move till they received an order to advance, yet they changed position constantly, casting the while glances at the houses above them and the barricade.

Though they expected a hailstorm of bullets, when the order "Forward" was given they felt relieved. Suspense at last was ended. Again came the sharp tap of the drum as the little column moved on without opposition. Evidently the communists were reserving their fire till the last minute. When within a hundred yards of the barricade Captain Le Moyne halted his men again and called on the enemy to surrender. His demand was answered by a single shot.

Expecting this to be a signal for a volley, the captain quickly deployed his men so far as the narrow street would permit and gave the order to fire. A volley of bullets rained upon the stones composing the barricade. There was no response.

Le Moyne was puzzled.

Drawing up his men in two lines, the one behind the other, he ordered them to fix bayonets and advance. A third of the distance was covered, but no volley; another third, with the same result. Captain Le Moyne, who was in advance of his men, went to the barricade, climbed it and looked down on the other side.

There was but one living being there, and that was a woman. She had been wounded by a shot from the troops and lay bleeding on the pavement.

Most of the women who fought with the commune were hags. This woman was not more than twenty years old. She looked up at Le Moyne with a pair of large dark eyes. They expressed a spirit of martyrdom.

It was all plain to Le Moyne. The commune was breaking down. The barricade had been deserted except by this Maid of Orleans, who constituted herself its sole defender.

Le Moyne turned, called on a lieutenant to bring the men to a rest, then went down the barricade to the woman.

"Are you badly wounded?" he asked.

"No; I have a broken leg."

"Who are you?"

[illegible] this time the soldiers had climbed the barricade and were waving the tricolor of France from its crest. Le Moyne called upon them to carry its defender into a house beside it, going with them as they did so. There was only one person besides the captain and his men, an old woman, who ministered to the wounded girl. A surgeon accompanied the soldiers, and he was called in to set and bandage the broken limb.

Had the damage done to the commune ended with its loss of control perhaps the wholesale slaughter of its votaries which followed would not have taken place. When its leaders found that they were beaten, adopting the motto of rule or ruin, since they could not [illegible] to ruin. They murdered the archbishop of Paris and other distinguished persons whom they held as hostages. Not content with this, they undertook to destroy the city. Paris was then full of beautiful buildings. Many of these were destroyed, including the most interesting, historically considered, the palace of the Tuileries, the ancient abode of the kings of France.

It was these acts of vandalism that led the government to get rid, so far as possible, of so dangerous a portion of the population of Paris. The captured communists were marched out to the yards of the prisons in which they were confined, stood up with their faces to the walls and shot down by scores. Doubtless many of these believed that they were dying in a sacred cause.

Captain Le Moyne could he have foreseen these horrors would undoubtedly have continued to save his prisoner from the universal sacrifice, though he had but little time, and Elise Fourchet was not in a condition to avail herself of a permitted flight. The only thing the captain could do for her was to leave her with the woman who was caring for her. He marched his men away, but the national troops were pouring into the city, and when Mlle. Fourchet was found wounded and confessed that she had received a bullet while defending a barricade she was removed to a prison.

If the communists received a trial they were tried in large numbers together. When Elise Fourchet was brought before a judge for one of these wholesale sentences, noticing she was of a different class from most of the others, he asked her why she had engaged in such nefarious work.

"I fought to build, not to destroy," was her reply. "I did not know that we were led by bad men. One of our leaders, Cluseret, fought with the Union armies in the late war between the states of North America, and I supposed that a man who had risked his life in the cause of civil liberty must be representing the same cause in France."

The judge was touched by this appeal and remanded the prisoner to prison for further evidence. But the Parisians soon tired of the wholesale slaughter of the communists, and Mlle. Fourchet was never again brought to trial. In time, when all danger of a recurrence of the outbreak had passed, the prison doors of all communists who had not been executed were thrown open, and among those who walked out free was Elise Fourchet.

She ever afterward had a horror of the men who had led so many innocent persons into crime. Not all of them were punished unless by their own consciences. A few escaped, others perished in the havoc they had made, while others were banished from France. Probably no body of men ever set in motion a revolution that involved so much ruin, not only of historic treasures, but of persons they deceived. As Paris is France, their chief devastation was in that city. Just before its capture bands of men and women—such men and women as followed Louis XVI. to the guillotine seventy years before—went from one historic edifice to another, applying petroleum and to petroleum the torch. When the ruin was completed Paris was a very different city from what it had been before. How that art treasure, the Louvre, escaped will always remain a wonder. While Elise Fourchet was long remembered as one of the heroines of the commune, she never afterward affiliated with communists. And as for the commune leaders, she detested them.

How To Save Money

RED BAND COAL is cheaper to use than either Hard Coal or Pocahontas. This has been proved time after time during the past spell of cold weather.

True it costs more than some coals; so does woolen goods cost more than cotton, the difference is the same with RED BAND over other coals.

It gives out steady lasting heat with few ashes or clinkers. Any test you may give it will convince you it gives out more heat per ton than any other coal.

People In Books.

There is no possession people are so unwilling to let one have as an imagination. In private friends will tear a book to shreds to discover some portrait [illegible] and in the case of authors famous enough to be dead critics rake the ground wherever they have trod in an effort to prove that the folk of their fancy were drawn from the earth rather than the air. There seems no means of convincing a reader that in a writer's head are constantly a thousand faces he has never seen or heard of, all subtle with story and all so real that they often make his daily waking seem a dream.—Winifred Kirkland in Atlantic Monthly.

Origin of a Scholarship Fund.

Journalistic exposure of frauds and swindles is nothing new. Seventy-five years ago the London Times exposed a conspiracy to defraud bankers out of a million pounds sterling, many thousands of which had already been obtained. One of the gang later brought a libel suit against the Times and received an award of a farthing damages. A great popular subscription to meet the expense that the newspaper incurred in defending the action brought a goodly sum. The Times, however, refused to accept it, but founded with it two school and hospital scholarships, which are still awarded.—Youth's Companion.

MARVIN E. GRAY

Marvin Eugene Gray was born in Tecumseh, Lenawee county, April 16, 1902, and died in Pontiac Dec. 29th, 1916, making him 14 years, 8 months and 13 days old. He was the oldest son of Bert E Gray.

Being a frail child they moved to Portland Ore., thinking he might be benefited by the change of climate. For the last three years he has had sugar diabetes. He was such a patient little fellow, never complaining. All the medical skill, the best of care from loving hands was done for him without avail.

His remains were brought to Tecumseh to the home of his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Shurtz where the funeral was held Sunday at 3 p. m. He was laid to rest in Brookside cemetery.

Those attending from away were Leon Gray of Angola, Ind.; Mrs. Minnie Gothe, of Jackson, Mrs. Ella Lancaster, Clinton, Fred Guy, wife and two sons, Mrs. Easlick, Milan, and Mrs. Fred Poland of Toledo.

"THE COMMON LAW"

For a New Year's attraction at Bradley's Mr. Mark gave to the people of this vicinity Robert W. Chamber's production, "The Common Law." Clara Kimball Young, Michigan's great photo-drama star, was seen in the leading role as Valerie West.

It is a story of a poor New York girl left without friends who goes out in the world to make an honest living, of her trials and temptations, of her joys and sorrows, how she became the model of a young artist. It is a vivid protrayal of the sin and folly of a large city, but Valerie, true to her noble womanhood, withstands all of the temptations thrown about her [illegible] wins the love of Kelley Neville.

"A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS", AT THE WASHINGTON, DOES CAPACITY AT $1.50 PRICES.

Ralph Holmes, one of Detroit's best dramatic critics, says the following, after viewing "A Daughter of the Gods:"

"More beautiful than 'Neptune's Daughter,' and almost as thrilling as 'The Birth of a Nation' is 'A Daughter of the Gods,' the million-dollar Annette Kellerman film which went on view before packed houses at the Washington Theatre Sunday. It is shown twice daily, at 2:15 and 8:15.

"'A Daughter of the Gods,' in fact, is the most beautiful motion picture ever made—at least, the most beautiful ever shown in Detroit and none of the good ones overlook this easy-money town. It is not hard to believe that the film cost most of the million dollars advertised for it. William Fox apparently threw money to the four winds. Not that he appears to have wasted any of it, but with the magic of the dollar he has summoned to his bidding not only the things of the earth, animate and inanimate, but of the waters under the earth, and of the sky above it."

"A Daughter of the Gods" will be seen in Tecumseh this winter.

It will include, also, a declaration by the Belgian government "thanking the generous American nation for the immense services rendered during the last two years," and expressing its "confidence in America's friendly collaboration for the future."

NEW YEAR SEES NO PEACE HOPE

Entente Reply to Germany Closes Case for Present.

1917 MAY SEE END OF WAR

President Wilson Forwards Entente Reply to Central Powers' Note Without Comment—He Will Keep His Own Negotiations Separate From Those of Kaiser.

Washington, Jan. 1.—With the entente powers' note rejecting Germany's peace proposals forwarded by the United States to the capitals of the central allies the dawn of the new year 1917 found the first move for peace in Europe a closed incident.

Peace advocates in Washington settled down to await the reply of the entente to President Wilson's suggestion that they make clear their peace terms. Only the fact that peace negotiations were still in progress, despite the tenuous nature of the peace correspondence, gave hope for the ultimate settlement of the dispute between the warring nations.

Has Germany's General Terms.

While admitting that the immediate outlook for peace is black, diplomatic Washington generally takes the position that 1917 will see the end of the contest in Europe. The confidential peace negotiations looking toward the discussion of peace terms through the United States are already under way. Germany, following her formal note suggesting an immediate peace conference in reply to the President's peace note, has already submitted to this country a more or less definite statement of the aims she seeks to accomplish before the war ends. The entente powers, peace advocates hope, may take similar action even if their forthcoming reply to the President's note follows the lines laid down in the entente rejecting Germany's direct peace proposals. The entente note is looked for to arrive in Washington before the end of the week and the administration hopes that it, like the German reply, will leave the way open for confidential peace negotiations through this country.

The administration is careful to make it clear that in transmitting the entente reply to the Teutonic allies, it is acting merely as a diplomatic messenger. The state department declined to make public the formal text of the entente reply and said that it would officially take no cognizance of the nature of the reply at this time.

President Keeps His Move Separate.

It was plain that the administration is determined to disregard the entente reply to Germany so far as its own negotiations are concerned, and to keep the two peace movements entirely separate. Administration officials said that this country's entire activity toward peace centers in the President's note and the action of other neutrals in support of his plans. They emphasized the administration desire that this movement should not be confused with Germany's direct peace proposals.

NEWFOUNDLAND ISLAND DRY

Import, Manufacturer and Sale of Intoxicants Is Prohibited.

St. Johns, N. F., Jan. 1.—At midnight Sunday the whole island of Newfoundland went dry. A prohibition act becoming effective stopped the import, manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors and no alcoholic compounds are obtainable within the colony, except for medicinal, manufacturing or sacramental purposes.

In order to prevent evasion of the law a long list of patent medicines has been placed under the ban. The government has provided a public controller through whom medicinal prescriptions may be filled and supplies obtained for manufacturing.

HOLDS MUCH ENEMY CAPITAL

Britain Has About $610,000,000 Belonging to Foes Before the War.

London, Jan. 1.—In an address before the City of London Tradesmen's club recently C. J. Stewart, public trustee, said the enemy trading act returns showed about £32,000,000 of enemy capital was in British companies.

There was about £71,000,000 of property in this country held and managed on behalf of the enemy and about £19,000,000 bank balances and debts over £50 due to the enemy, making a total of £122,000,000.

CARPENTIER HAS BAD SPILL

Famous Frenhc Fighter Can Not Get in Shape for Three Months.

Paris, Jan. 1.—Georges Carpentier, French heavyweight champion, will require about three months to get into condition for the ring—and it is very doubtful whether the French army authorities will consent to his leaving active service for so long a period.

Carpentier himself, here recuperating after a bad spill from his army aeroplane at the front, made this declaration. The French pugilistic star is in Paris for a brief time, and his condition is such that he must make daily visits to the hospital for treatment.

DRY ISSUE BOBS UP EVERYWHERE

Hoosiers Thought It Side-tracked, but It's Back.

POLITICIANS ARE TREMBLING

New Hampshire May Take Its Place Again Among the Arid States. Maine May Give Governor Power to Remove "Blind" Officials—Democrats Aid Drys in Colorado.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 1.—Prohibition looms as the big issue before the Indiana general assembly when it convenes January 4.

The liquor question was submerged by both Republican and Democratic parties during the recent campaign. Neither Governor Ralston nor Governor-elect Goodrich has recommended statutory dryness. But immediately following the campaign a great dry sentiment arose in the state, and the dry leaders present a strong lobby, with a score of legislators ready to introduce dry measures. Politicians tremble at their array of influence.

Prohibition Up in New Hampshire.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 1.—When the New Hampshire legislature convenes January 3 there will be a big drive for the repeal of the local option law and the restoration of New Hampshire as a prohibition state, with the retiring governor, Roland H. Spaulding, one of the most conspicuous advocates for the retention of the present law, although he favors national prohibition.

Maine to Make Dry Law Strong.

Augusta, Me., Jan. 1.—The prohibitory liquor law and its working will, it is believed, be the most important matter which will be considered by the Maine legislature, when it meets January 3. It is reported that Governor-elect Carl E. Milliken, in his inaugural address, will recommend the passage of a law providing for a constitutional amendment which will give the governor and council the right to remove sheriffs or other officials who fail or neglect to enforce the law.

Democrats to Aid Dry Work.

Denver, Col., Jan. 1.—Problems of prohibition are expected to provide the greater part of the work for the members of the Colorado assembly, which convenes January 3.

In the last campaign the reins of government were snatched from the Republicans, who two years ago had an overwhelming majority of the legislature. The Democrats this year have a small but working majority and are pledged to enforce the prohibitory law.

To Rush Business Methods.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 1.—Reorganization of the state's system of control of charity institutions, prisons and schools will be one of the principal undertakings of the general assembly, which convenes here January 3. Governor-elect Gardner made his race on a "business administration" platform and will push measures for placing state institutions under nonpartisan boards.

Venus of Milo.

It is said that the base of the famous Venus of Milo, with the name of the sculptor upon it, was destroyed for the purpose of deceiving a king of France into the belief that the statue was more ancient than it really is.

DETROIT AUTO SHOW

January 20 to 27, 1917

With a total of upwards of 200 cars, 20 of them new models which never before have been on exhibition in Michigan, the biggest space on a single floor of any similar affair in the country and a decorative scheme that will be unrivalled for its artistic beauty, the 1917 automobile show in Detroit looms up as one of the features of the new year.

Allowing just time enough to bring the new models here from New York the Detroit show opens on January 20 and continues through January 27 which date marks the opening at Chicago. The monster tabernacle wherein Billy Sunday thrilled his hearers, is ideal for the purpose, and as it is the first time a big building has been at their command the officers of the Detroit Automobile Dealers' Association are sparring neither money nor pains in making this a great show from all viewpoints.

Naturally each show is better than any that have gone before it. The automobiles and the motor trucks come out each season with many improvements, and the 1917 models which have made their appearance are quite the most fetching that have been produced. Such was the general excellence of the 1916 cars that it has called for an abundance of cleverness to add to their appearance or their efficiency but that is what the designers and engineers are for, and they appear to have done a very good job of it.

Refinements do not stick out very prominently but they are there. The mechanism of almost every standard make is better than it has been and the tendency to weight reduction has brought into play a number of slight alternations in materials used.

The run of new cars are a little higher priced than they were a year ago, but no where in proportion to the advance in the cost of raw materials and in wages. The makers are doing the square thing by the buyers, giving more for the money than ever before, as will be seen by all who visit the Detroit show. Leaders in the truck field and dozens of accessories make it a most comprehensive exhibit of the industry.

LIBRARY NOTES

Those interested in the Public Library will doubtless be glad to know that the extent of its usefulness has increased from year to year and that there is every reason to expect that the coming year will be no exception The last years report of the two Libraries Hudson and Tecumseh, showed the circulation of books from the Tecumsh Library to exceed that of Hudson by two thousand.

We have been pleased to have an increasing number of neighboring townspeople among our patrons. The terms for library membershipare not high and most families within reach of Tecumseh should be able to draw library books during the winter months at least.

Miss Preston, the library visitor sent out by the state, was a caller week before last. She looked over the record books asked the customary questions, and expressed herself as pleased with the quality of the work being done.

The boys of the land have never lost interest in the subject of warfare and especially since it has become evident that the world has not outgrown war the interest has revived. It may be that some of the older boys also will be interested in copies of "The Old Glory Library" presented by Mrs. Martha Brush. These are Civil war stories and give a clear idea of certain phases of that period.

The following books were purchased in December;

In the Pay Collection,
Jaunty in Charge—Wemyss.
Love and Lucy—Hewlett.
The Trufflers—Merwin.
From the Housetops—McCutcheon.
A Voice in the Wilderness—Lutz.

Carlyle, How to Know Him—Bliss Perry.
Bonnie Scotland—William Elliot Griffis.

The Social Principles of Jesus—Rauschenbusch.

SUNDAY EVENING LECTURES

A course of Sunday evening lectures has been a feature of our ministry in Tecumseh. Many have looked forward to this event with interest. So, beginning with Sunday evening, January 7, we will give a course on the above mentioned spirit.

These lectures will deal with the seven cities mentioned in the Book of Revelation, where long ago existed seven churches that epitomized all the churches of the future. We will describe the present appearance, history, and religious significance of these seven cities in western Asia Minor. This region has sometimes been styled the "Holy Land of Asia Minor." "Here some of the Apostles labored and taught. Here some of the earliest churches were formed. Here martyrs suffered for their faith as in no other part of the world."

ALLIES REJECT PEACE, BERLIN

Germans Declare Conquest Is Plan of Foes.

ROILED BY ENTENTE REPLY

Admission That Constantinople Must Be Won for Russia Cited as Confirmation of Teutonic View—Radicals Demand War to the Knife—Conservatives Await Official Note.

BERLIN — "They do not want peace."

Such, briefly, was the impression which the entente governments' reply to the central powers' peace proffer made upon the German press and public upon the arrival of the document.

This impression may be modified, some papers state, when the official text reaches Berlin. Thus far the only version here is that sent by the Havas News agency, a French bureau, which has repeatedly incurred the suspicion of the German press. For this reason a faint hope is held by some of the conservative organs that when the official text arrives it may become evident that the allies are leaving the door open for peace.

Talk of "War to Knife."

On the face of what is known thus far, however, there seems no doubt that the entente has hurled the gauntlet to the central empires and their allies, flatfootedly rejecing the proposal to come together and talk peace.

Already the leading military experts, and particularly "firebrand" journalists, such as Count Ernst Zu Reventlow, are proclaiming "war to the knife," asserting that now, since the allies have declined peace by diplomacy, they must be forced to accept peace by the sword.

Sarcasm and irony feature the comments of this element of the press. The entente note is generally characterized as "hyprocritical" and as a "rare collection of empty sophistries."

Allies' Stand Ridiculed.

Bitter ridicule is expressed particularly upon that passage of the document which refers to "small nationalities," the case of Greece and the interference with neutral mails and commerce being held up as giving the lie to the entente claims on this score.

The entente arraignment of "Prussian militarism" and alleged lust of conquest is met by references to the avowed object of the entente to conquer Constantinople and the Dardanelles for Russia.

To be sure, there are some influential organs, like the Frankfurter Zeitung, which warn against rash judgment of the entente note, pointing to the obvious necessity of phrasing the note for "home consumption." These papers point out that the entente reply to President Wilson may be more moderate both in verbiage and demands, and may yet "weave in the threads of peace."

On the whole, however, there is no denying that expectations of an early peace have dropped to the minimum.

DRY ISSUE IN CALIFORNIA

Liquor Foes to Seek Creation of Commission to Curb Evil.

SACRAMENTO, CAL. — Battle between the wet and dry interests of the state is liable to be the main event of the 1917 California legislature, just opened.

It has become known here that the Prohibitionists and partial prohibitionists will endeavor to bring about the creation of an effective commission for the curbing of so-called liquor evils. In this commission would be vested the decisive right to revoke licenses.

NAMES ENVOY TO VENIZELOS

Britain Recognizes Greek Leader as De Facto Government at Saloniki.

LONDON, ENG.—It is officially announced that Earl Granville, counselor of the British embassy in Paris, has been appointed representative of the British government to the provisional government of Eliptherios Venizelos at Saloniki, with the title of diplomatic agent.

Greece has accepted the note of the entente powers in principle, a wireless press dispatch from Rome said.

Farewell, dear mother, sweet thy rest,
  Weary with years and worn with pain;
Farewell, 'till in some happy place
  We shall behold thy face again.
'Tis ours to miss thee, all our years,
  And tender memories of thee keep;
Thine in the Lord to rest, for so
  He giveth His beloved sleep.

We weep for her, no tender wife,
  E'er made man's fireside bright
No more devoted mother love
  E'er kept home altar's fires alight
And she is with the angel host,
  With sinless heart and stainless hand,
Waiting to meet the friends to come,
  To that bright and happy land

We have lost our darling mother,
  She has bid us all adieu,
She has gone to live in heaven,
  And her form is lost to view.
Oh, that dear one how we loved her!
  Oh, how hard to give her up
But an angel came down for her,
  And removed her from our flock

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and assistance during the illness and death of our dearly beloved wife and mother, also those contributing the beautiful floral pieces also Rev. Lyons for his comforting words in his last sad rites and also the choir who assisted in the ceremonies and the Gleaner Arbor of Tipton who had charge of services at cemetery.

are not a completed property, although they have spent $600,000,000 in 15 years for safety appliances, stations, terminals, electrification, steel cars, locomotives, etc.

To keep pace with the growth of commerce this constructive work must continue.

It can continue only as the public sees to it that the railroads are granted just compensation; that regulation and wage demands are fair, so that there may be a sufficient margin of receipts over expenditures to pay a reasonable return on the investment and make provision for future developement.

The Board of Education have called a special meeting of District No. 7 to be held in Grange Hall on the evening of January 15th for the purpose of voting an additional bond issue of $20,000 to cover the cost of erecting a new school building for Tecumseh.

When the bids were opened Wednesday afternoon it was found that they all exceeded the amount authorized and voted by the district and to build the school as planned a vote of the district would have to be taken. This vote will be taken on the evening of January 15th at a special meeting which has been called.

How shall we vote? A great many bids were received by the Board for the building of our new school, but not one was anywhere within reach of the amount claimed necessary and voted last spring.

In going over the matter rather hurriedly we can see but one reason for the high bids, the rapid increase of building materials and labor. We believe that the Board acted in good faith last spring, that then a building suitable for our wants could have been built for $75,000.00. These men or no one else could have foretold the condition of the market at this time.

We are all up against the abnormal conditions that now exist. We are all paying for necessary commodities many, many times what we have ever paid before or what we feel that we should pay and are powerless to change the conditions of the market one penny's worth.

It is unfortunate that we are called upon to build a building at this time. We have issued our bonds, sold them and have the money in the banks to put up the new building, but it is not enough.

Shall we vote down the additional bond issue and let the money lay idle until we find a way of disposing of it? We have got to pay the interest on these bonds and mature them when they are due, if we are forced to wait ten years for our new building.

That we need a new building few will deny. Shall we cut down the building and build $75,000 worth? It would scarcely seem wise to us to do this.

Shall we vote it down and let the money lay in the Banks for a year or two in hopes that the market will take a drop?

From indications as it looks now as it the European War will be drawn out through the year 1917 and how much longer no one is able to tell. When it is over it looks as if there would be an unusual demand for building materials of all kinds from these defeated countries and Uncle Sam will strain every nerve to furnish them with what they need. We do not see any hope for a lower market for several years.

It would be a shame to build a building too small for our needs and one that we will only have to enlarge at some future time. Our job is to provide a school big enough and complete enough for the present and future needs of Tecumseh.

Some will say that the building can be cut down or things cut out to bring the amount down to the $75,000. We feel that the Board of Education know the needs of this District better than those who have not made a study of the question and we therefore stand ready to support them through the columns of this paper and to urge the voters to stand by them with their vote at the special meeting called for January 15th.

NO CONTRACT LET FOR OUR NEW SCHOOL

Bids All Too High

Special Meeting of District Called For January 15th.

January 3rd at 2 o'clock p. m., the sealed bids received by the secretary of the board of education of School District Number 7, Township of Tecumseh, were duly opened by the board of education in presence of many of the bidders.

There were three classes of bids, bids of general contractors for construction of the new school house, excepting heating and ventilation, and plumbing; bids for furnishing heating and ventilating apparatus; and bids for the work and materials for the plumbing. Quite a number of bids were made in each class, and in each class the bids submitted figures upon certain alternates of material.

The tabulation of the bids necessary for an intelligent analysis of the same took a considerable time.

When it was possible to consider the bids it was found that the combination of lowest bids would require $20,000 more than the sum $75,000 heretofore authorized by the district.

The Board ordered the calling of a special meeting of the District to be held January 15th, 1917, for the purpose of submitting to the District the necessity of borrowing said additional sum of $20,000.00, several of the bidders contracting with the Board that their bids should remain as made until the question of raising the additional fund could be determined by the District.

The need of more money than estimated last spring is apparent to any one who knows and realizes how the cost of material and labor has advanced by leaps and bounds in the past few months. Had it been possible to have let contracts for the construction of the building contemplated at the time the first bond issue was authorized, the same could have been built within the estimated cost. But the time necessarily consumsed, under the law, by required preparation before the bids could be invited for the construction of the building, made earlier action than was later impossible. During all this period an unprecedented demand for materials and labor has existed, a condition which has never before obtained in the lifetime of the average citizen. There is no hope visible for any better condition for those who must pay the bills, for probably the next two or three years, and immediate danger that costs will go higher. It is not believed that any present peace is in sight, but when that most desirable happening comes, it must necessarily be immediately followed by such tremenduous demand for both labor and materials in industrial rebuilding, that peace when it comes, offers no relief in material and labor cost in building.

The bonds authorized at the special meeting of the District in 1916 were sold in July of that year. No board or committee had dared contract for the new building until it knew the amount of money available for the same, and that sum could not be ascertained until the sale of the bonds, for until then no one knew whether the same would produce face value, or a premium, in actual money. Such conditions obtained in June and early July, that the Board were advised by able financiers, whose experience and knowledge in and of financial matters as acknowledged by all, that there was then danger that delay in sale of the bonds would result in their not being sold even for face value, and in making sale of bonds the Board of Education acted upon its best judgment.

The plans of the new building had to be submitted to and approved by the State Board of Education. The method is first to submit general plans, without working out the specifications, after the general plans have met the approval of the State Board of Education, details and specifications are worked out and the completed plans again submitted for formal approval. That much time was required for the preparation of specifications for so large a building is apparent to all who have had any experience in building. This work progressed as rapidly as possible, but, owing to condition over which neither the Board nor the architect had control, the final approval was not obtained until very recently.

Realizing the responsibility resting upon them and following a course which they believed was for the benefit of the District, and which had been followed in many other cases, the final plans and specifications as approved were submitted to the inspection of an architect of the highest standing in the country and expert in public buildings of this nature. The opinion of this expert was an approval of the plans and specifications submitted, and sealed bids for the construction of the building were immediately asked by public advertising and personal notice, with the result herein announced.

Night In the Arctic.

Viewed solely as a matter of optics, the arctic night is as dark as any night. Explorers in high latitudes say, however, that there are many alleviations of the obscurity. The stars flash keenly, the moon comes along in a regular succession of phases, the snow surface relieves the gloom under conditions of the utmost absence of light, and the aurora borealis is the finest kind of an illuminant. Explorers all agree that their men pass the winter night without much difficulty if only there are means of amusement.

A race horse in full stride covers twenty five or twenty-six feet at a bound, and an English cross country horse is said to have leaped thirty-six feet.

The frigate bird is capable of getting up a speed of ninety-six miles an hour with hardly a movement of its wings. The greater part of its life is spent in the air.

"THE CRISIS" COMING"

Taken from Winston Churchill's Famous Novel

John H. Kunsky's production of "The Crisis," which views some two and a half hours and which is booked for an early appearance in Tecumseh has completed a three weeks engagement at the Washington theater Detroit.

The morning after its initial presentation, the Detroit Free Press made the following comment on it:

"One of the finest motion picture productions seen in Detroit is this week's film at the Washington theatre In movie form "The Crisis" which was seen by two capacity audiences Sunday is a stirring, patriotic picture. It deserves to take rank with the highest grade production of the screen It follows closely Mr. Churchill's absorbing book dealing with a crisis in American history. Its battle scenes are highly spectacular, in fact the staging of the entire piece is excellent, especially the historical scenes—most of which are laid in Virginia and the south during the Civil war.

"In the usually capable cast is Geo. Fawcett, who easily dominates every scene. His Judge Silas Whipple is one of the best character studies he has given the screen Miss Bessie Eyton is Virginia Carvel and Thomas Santschi is Stephen Brice. Another excellent character bit is contributed by Frank Weed as 'Eliphalet Hopper', the 'mole' The Abraham Lincoln of Sam D Drane is also well done.

Invitations are being received by friends in town from Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mortimer Temple of St. Paul, Minn., for the marriage of their daughter Bessie to Chas. Eddy Betcher Jan. 20th, 1917, at St. Clement's church, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Used to It.

"Most taxpayers accept the proposal of municipal parkways and similar municipal beautifications like the brutal husband."

The speaker was Frothingham Dodge, the Boston municipal reformer.

"To the young wife of this scoundrel a gentleman said:

"'Weren't you terribly frightened when the bull stamped his foot and bellowed at you on account of your new scarlet cloak?'

"'Oh, no,' she answered. 'You see, my husband stamped and bellowed just the same when the cloak came home with the bill.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Titles In Spain.

The Spanish military attache said at a dinner in Washington:

"Yes, Spanish titles are elaborate. I heard recently of an American girl who wrote home from San Sebastian to her millionaire father:

"'Well, I'm engaged to three dukes, five marquises, seven counts, four barons and a don.'

"'What on earth do you mean?' her father cabled.

"'Don't get excited,' she cabled back. 'It's all one man. He's a Spaniard.'"—Detroit Free Press.

How To Save Money

RED BAND COAL is cheaper to use than either Hard Coal or Pocahontas. This has been proved time after time during the past spell of cold weather.

True it costs more than some coals; so does woolen goods cost more than cotton, the difference is the same with RED BAND over other coals.

It gives out steady lasting heat with few ashes or clinkers. Any test you may give it will convince you it gives out more heat per ton than any other coal.

A 10 o'clock a new course of study willll b begun in the Sunday-school. Some years ago, George Merritt purchaed his present home which was formerly the home of General Brown for many years. In cleaning up a pile of rubbish in the back yard he rescued an old portmanteau that belonged to the general. This he later turned over to Rev. W. B. Hartzog, who delivered it to the Michigan Historical society in Detroit, Jan. 5, 1917, with an historical sketch of the General.

We wonder how many persons really enjoy severely cold weather, with snow ice and howling north winds. No doubt fully eighty percent of our northern population would migrate to the summer lands if they had the time and money. And yet, a three hour trip through the most enchanting of tropical islands is yet available, at small expense The William Fox picture beautiful, "A Daughter of the Gods" is fortunately scheduled to run throughout the States in the winter season. This lavish producer spent a million dollars film a fascinating and elaborate love and fairy story.

Featuring Annette Kellerman, the Venus of modern times and the most versatile and daring actress of the screen in exquisite nature settings, it will make you forget your worries and ailments for a delightful journey through Jamaica, with its rich tropical foliage and summer sun, the sparkling Carribean, with its placid bays, peopled with mermaids or pounding surf, aroused by the "Witch of Badness" to make furious onslaught upon the life and person of "Anita, the Lovely," Miss Kellerman.

For photography, natural scenery, stage setting and feats of skill and daring, this picture, which cost $1,000,000 plus and which is recognized as the William Fox masterpiece is rightly called the picture beautiful.

Seeing the ten thousand feet of coloring fascinating film, the audience will hardly realize that twenty-two times were taken before the camera men were satisfied that they had made the most of their many months of work Neither will the audience think of the labor of the engineers and carpenters, masons and builders who were needed to drain the swamps where was planted the beautiful white Moorish city peopled by 20,000 persons Then we have poetically backgrounded a tale of undying love in settings of imperishable beauty

The pictures of the sea in its many many moods and of the irresible Lee children and the many mermaids, are especially charming. The entire production is a gorgeous dream, whose melodies linger with one through many days.

"A Daughter of the Gods" with its magnificent stage settings, mammoth orchestra and complete producing equipment will be seen at the Bradley Opera house the early part of February

MRS. ANDREW HOOD

Mrs. Philura Hood of Detroit passed away at the home of her son Willis Hood suddenly Sunday morning, Dec. 31st, 1916 going out with the old year, aged 97 years.

She had been in her usual health up to that time and, when she wakened Saturday morning, told her granddaughter that she was feeling fine. She ate her breakfast and was helped to her easy chair where, without a moment's notice, she passed into unconsciousness from which she never rallied.

Philura Wheeler was born in Steuben county, N. Y., May 13, 1819, and came to Tecumseh in 1835, locating on a farm in Raisin where she was a schoolmate of Henry C Conkling. Later she attended school here in the old University and taught school afterwards in Ridgeway for $1.00 per week and boarded around

July 3, 1845, she was united in marriage to Andrew Hood in Pinckney, Mich From 1860 to 1870 they resided in Tecumseh. Mr. Hood and his brother running a clothing store

After the death of Mr Hood she resided with her daughter Mrs. Eugenia Lewis in Detroit for about 30 years, until her death which occurred last April. Since then she has lived with her son Willis and has been tenderly cared for by her granddaughters.

Mrs. Hood was a life-long member of the Methodist church and was one of the oldest members of the North Woodwadr church of Detroit

She kept bright and cheerful to the last and when the Tecumseh Herald arrived was not content until every item had been read to her. She never tired of telling of events that occurred in the long ago, and wittily remarked to one with whom she was conversing, "I can ell you what I please. There is no one left to contradict me." She was saddened when she heard of the death of Mr. Conkling as they had been lifelong friends.

Funeral services were held at the home, Rev. Dr. Rice officiating. The remains were brought to Tecumseh Wednesday morning for burial on the family lot in Brookside cemetery.

ENTERTAINED HIS MEN FRIENDS

Elroy Zimmerman entertained a company of friends Wednesday night at his home with an oyster supper. Covers were laid for 27 men. The evening was spent with cards and a smoker and, as one of the company put it, "We also exchanged lies." A very jolly evening is the report of those attending.

ALL LIKE OUR BACON THERE IS NONE LIKE IT.

Because it is mild, sweet and nourishing.

Because it is digestible. It is appetizing.

Because, when all is considered, it is the cheapest Bacon there is.

These are the reasons why this Bacon of ours has a steadily increasing sale.

We think it ought to be used in YOUR home.

If you will decide to try it once, we are as sure as anything that you will never have cause to make a change

It is 27c a lb., sliced nice and thin.

ALLIES REPLY WILL DWELL ON WAR CAUSE

Belgium to Have Statement; Greek King Upholds U. S.

Paris, Jan. 1.—The answer of the entente powers to President Wilson's note, according to the Matin, will contain a long, detailed account of the origin and objects of the war.

It will include, also, a declaration by the Belgian government "thanking the generous American nation for the immense services rendered during the last two years," and expressing its "confidence in America's friendly collaboration for the future."

Athens, Jan. 1.—King Constantine summoned Garrett Droppers, the American minister, to the palace and communicated to him the text of the Greek reply to President Wilson's peace note. In the reply the king associates himself with the President in willingness to do all in his power to promote peace. The note recites the sufferings of Greece at the hands of the belligerents on both sides, while the nation has been endeavoring to maintain neutrality. It adds that Greece has endured greater hardships from the war than any other neutral and desires the consummation of peace.

HERE IS CHANCE FOR WOOD

New York Stock Exchange Offers to Aid in Peace Note Leak.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Provided congress will vote an investigation of the supposed complicity between certain officials of government and certain heavy speculators in New York, the New York Stock Exchange, it was stated here, is in a position to sift to the bottom every stock transaction conducted on the "big board" during the past month. This fact rendered the supporters of Representative Wood's investigation resolution confident that if that measure is not smothered the truth about the alleged leaks can be traced down.

RICH CHICAGOAN IS IN MODEL'S SLAYING

However, About a Dozen Other Admirers Are Also Sought.

PHILADELPHIA — A wealthy Chicagoan, with membership in several exclusive Philadelphia clubs, is being sought by detectives in the slaying of Mrs. Grace Roberts, twenty-two, artists' model, found beaten to death in her apartment here.

The finding of a Chicago timetable in her rooms and the fear she expressed that a Chicago man would keep his vow to "get" her started the murder squad on a new track.

A friend of the model, who also was known as Mazie Colbert, told Captain of Detectives Lane of the terror the proposed visit had aroused in the slain girl.

Police believe the woman, known as the "hosiery girl" because of the reproduction of her photograph in advertisements, was slain by a man she had beggared and then discarded. Twelve photographs of men prominent in the social life of Philadelphia and New York were found in the apartment.

"Goodnight Corns! We Use 'Gets-It!'"

3 Drops in 2 Seconds. That's All. "GETS-IT" Does the Rest. Never Fails.

Make Your Feet Young With "Gets-It."

"Really, I never could see how some few people use the most difficult and painful way they can to get rid of corns. They'll wrap their toes up with bandages into a package that fills their shoes full of feet and makes corns so painful they've to walk sideways and wrinkle up their faces. Or they use salves that eat right into the toe and make it raw and sore, or they'll use plasters that make the corns bulge, or pick and gouge at their corns and make the toes bleed. Funny, isn't it? "GETS-IT" is the simple, modern wonder for corns. Just put 2 drops on. It dries instantly. No pain, fuss or trouble. The corn, callus or wart loosens and comes off. Millions use nothing else."

"GETS-IT" is sold and recommended by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price, by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Tecumseh and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by B. J. Pulver.

Australian Fighter Is Here Ready For Bout.

Up to date no bout has been arranged for Les Darcy, the Australian champion, whose arrival this week was the sensation in boxing circles. Darcy announces that after one or two fights he will enlist in Canada and go to the front. He denies he is in any way a "slacker."

Fire destroyed the country home of William Metzlar, of Summit, with the contents. The family was attending Masonic Christmas exercises in Ludington. The loss is about $5,000.

LOCKED DOORS BAR COWBOY GOVERNOR

Campbell Claim to Arizona Chair Backed by Mob.

PHOENIX, ARIZ. — Forcing his way through cheering thousands, surrounded by armed guards, Tom Campbell, Arizona's new cowboy governor, entered the capitol grounds shortly before 11 o'clock New Year's morning.

The capitol was locked. Campbell demanded admission. A caretaker opened the portal a few inches, and Campbell, his attorneys and a few newspaper men entered.

After completing an inaugural speech in which he declared that the ballot box must not become a juggler's hat he demanded admission to the executive chambers, which were guarded by deputy sheriffs. The officers refused to open the door on the ground that it was a legal holiday.

Governor Hunt returned to the office following the holiday, but the mob spirit had been allayed by Campbell who urged that the controversy be left in the hands of the authorities.

Special attention is called to the above statement: We believe it reflects credit to those in charge of its affairs. There is no reason why Tecumseh situated in the best section of the State should not possess one of the best rural banks, and it is the aim of this bank to be such. This can be accomplished by liberal support and patronage, safe and conservative management. One of the strongest factors in a community is a good strong bank.

RUSS STAGGER TEUTON LINES

Advance on Front of Fifteen Miles on Sereth.

BERLIN ADMITS FOE GAINED

Offensive Is Counter Blow to Teutonic Advance in Balkans—Russ Also Continue Offensive at Mittau—Berlin Says Attacks Are Halted—British Gain on the Arras.

London, Jan. 8.—Reinforced Russian troops, which for more than a week have been resisting the Teuton advance against the Sereth line in Roumania, hurled their full strength against the invaders, staggering the German lines along a front of more than fifteen miles.

The Russian offensive was made in the sector between Focsani and Fundeni, and the German war office admits the loss of ground in the direction of Obilechti. The Germans declare the attack was halted with heavy losses to the Muscovites in other sectors, but it is apparent that the offensive was the greatest counter blow sustained by the invaders since they began the invasion of Wallachia.

Russ Strike In North.

Simultaneously the Russians renewed their recent heavy offensive in the far north, in the Mitau sector, and in Galicia. Berlin declares these offensives were repulsed and 1,300 Slavs captured in the Mitau region alone.

The intense cold in the snow-covered Carpathians has brought activities almost to a halt in that area. In the valleys to the southeast, however, particularly between he Oitutz and Putna valleys, the Germans made new gains, which they held in the face of heavy Russo-Roumanian counter attacks.

British Gain at the Arras.

London, Jan. 8.—Following up their offensive on the Beaumont-Hamel sector of the Ancre front, the British after hours of terrific artillery fire attacked the Germans south of the Arras. Some ground was gained. Berlin, however, reports the repulse of the assault with artillery and machine gun fire.

Simultaneously engagements were revived in the Verdun region and the Vosges. Paris reports the repulse of German attacks on Dead Man Hill and in the Vosges.

F. O. LOWDEN INAUGURATED

Distinguished Visitors Witness the Simple Exercises at Illinois Capital.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 8.—Governor elect F. O. Lowden was inaugurated here today, and took the oath of office before the joint legislative session. The ceremony was simple though probably before the most distinguished crowd that has attended such an event in a generation. Three former governors besides the retiring governor and three United States senators in addition to two former senators were present. There was no inaugural ball, but a reception open to the public was held at the governor's mansion.

CAMPAIGN TO LIMIT COTTON

Farmers of Arkansas Urged to Plant More Food Crops.

Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 8.—The extension division of the University of Arkansas, in co-operation with the demonstration forces of the government and state, opened a campaign to limit the 1917 cotton acreage in Arkansas.

The campaign will cover two-thirds of the state. Farmers will be urged to plant more feed and food crops and less cotton.

DEUTSCHLAND NEARING PORT

Approach of Submarine Indicated by Preparations at New London Dock.

New London, Jan. 8.—Indication that the German merchant submarine Deutschland is expected here shortly with another cargo from Germany was given in the arrival of more than a score of negro stevedores. They were put to work unloading merchandise from cars at the wharf of the Eastern Forwarding company, owners of the Deutschland.

Oklahoma Bandits Kill Two.

Nowata, Okla., Jan. 8.—Two members of a posse were killed and one probably fatally wounded in a fight with a band of robbers eighteen miles northeast of Nowata. John Garretson and Marshall Pollock of Delaware were shot and killed and a son of Garretson was wounded.

Gray Resents Wilson Attack.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—Judge George Gray, a member of the Mexican joint commission, refused an invitation to address a meeting called to protest against Belgian deportations. His refusal follows a bitter attack made upon President Wilson's attitude by James M. Beck.

Asks Vopicka About German Charge.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Secretary Lansing cabled to Minister Vopicka at Bucharest, accredited to Roumania, Serbia and Bulgaria, asking for a statement on Germany's charge that he had been guilty of unneutral conduct in favor of Roumania.

Didn't Like the Lackeys.

The late John Heneage Jesse, the well known author, had an aversion, amounting to a positive 'phobia, for the famous British Jeames. He was known to stand in St. James' street on a drawing room day, at the edge of the curb, and with the end of his stick, which he dipped into the road puddle, daub the immaculate stockings of the passing flunkies, who, as he well knew, dare not move from their stations, accompanying the act with much opprobrious language.

There are moments when the pale and modest star, kindled by God in simple hearts, which men call conscience, illumines our path with truer light than the flaming comet of genius on its magnificent course.—Massini.

OFFICER SLAYS ROBBER VICTIM

Duel Follows When Each Mistakes Other for Footpad.

DEAD MAN FIRED FIRST SHOT

Had Just Been Held Up and Returned With Gun to Capture Robber. Fires at Deputy Marshal Concealed in Shadows—Robber Held Up Wrong Man.

Watseka, Ill., Jan. 8.—Francis La Bounty was shot and killed by Assistant City Marshal A. J. Bailey, who thought La Bounty and a companion were the two robbers who had held up La Bounty ten minutes before.

La Bounty was a member of the firm of La Bounty Bros. grocers. He and his wife left the store about 11 o'clock for home. They were stopped by two men at the point of revolvers and robbed of $4.

The robbers remarked that they had made a mistake, as they were looking for Merle Eastburn, a moving-picture show proprietor. La Bounty hurried home, armed himself, left his wife, telling her to telephone for the sheriff and city marshal and returned to the scene, accompanied by William M. Browne, a brother of Sheriff Homer M. Browne. They saw a man hiding in the shadow of a shed.

"Hold up your hands," said La Bounty, pointing his revolver.

"I've got the drop on you," was the answer from the shadows.

Victim Shoots First.

La Bounty fired first, according to Browne. The man beside the shed shot three times. The grocer, wounded, ran toward the city hall with the other in pursuit.

Browne opened fire, but without effect. La Bounty fell dead into the arms of Marshal Tom Harper, who recognized him.

"You got the wrong man Bailey," said the marshal.

Sheriff Browne and deputies soon arrived and began a hunt for the robbers, who are supposed to be the same men who held up Merrill Fowler a week ago at the Fowler dancing pavilion. Baily is in jail awaiting the coroner's inquest.

The youth came to the recruiting office with the written consent of his parents in his pocket. He is possessed of an exceptional physique and will be enlisted in the cavalry service. The parting word to the boy from the recruiting officer was that he procure a pair of long trousers before reporting at Columbus.

What Good Is the Weather Bureau?

This question is likely to be asked in more or less querulous tones whenever the local weather prediction fails, as it often does. The inquirer overlooks the fact that the weather bureau has much more important things to foretell than ordinary changes of weather. It predicts with certainty great windstorms, destructive floods, severe freezes and other atmospheric visitations that endanger life and property on a large scale and collects climatic statistics for scientific agriculture.—Popular Science Monthly.

WARNING NOTE BY E. H. GARY

Steel Magnate Urges Caution to Nation.

PROSPERITY CAN CONTINUE

Sudden Great Wealth Brings Danger of Extravagance—Tariff Adjusted to New Conditions Is Urged—Opposes Prohibitory Rates — Would Free Question From Politics.

New York, Jan. 8.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, in a statement of business conditions and prospects in the United States, issued here, declares this country is the richest of all nations and that the foundation for optimism as to the long future of the country is solid. But he warns business that there are signs of future uncertainty and that it is "obviously the better part of wisdom to prepare ourselves so far as possible for an unfavorable change in the economic situation."

While not alarming in its nature, the statement says no harm can result from precautionary measures while much benefit may come from the exercise of them.

The statement is based on the business showing of the year 1916 and in part follows:

Danger of Extravagance.

"We should not permit our riches to interfere with our progress. There is danger that great wealth will produce the opposite of necessity—extravagance, indolence, waste, indifference, retrogression, stupidity, failure. We must be on our guard against this danger.

"Again our country should be placed and kept on a parity with all other countries. I refer to the tariff question. I have said before, and I now repeat, this question should not be considered or treated as a political or partisan one. The greatest good to the greatest number should in this, as in all public questions, be the sold inquiry and determination. Facts should be ascertained and honest, sensible, practical results secured.

Oppose Prohibitory Tariff.

"Prohibitive tariff rates, so-called, or schedules that are so high as to permit a producer to oppress the consumer should not be permitted; but tariff rates on luxuries we do not produce in this country should be reasonably high, so as to produce revenues for the government, and tariff rates on the things coming from foreign countries similar to those we produce, whether in the forest or in the fields, in the mines or in the manufactories, should be sufficiently high to protect our producers, including the wage earners, against cheap foreign labor and its results, and so as to put our country and its people on a fair and even basis with all other countries and peoples.

"Possibly this could be secured to a certain extent by anti-dumping provisions or by reciprocity conditions. At any rate, it is not reasonable or fair to our people to place them in a position of disadvantage.

"Nearly all foreign countries have tariff provisions in their laws which prevent our producers from selling there, and we should have like security."

BODY OF B. W. LEWIS IS PRIVATELY BURIED

Letter Shows Suicide Contemplated Deed Dec. 17.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 8.—The body of Bernard W. Lewis, the man who committed suicide in Atlantic City, was laid to rest in Allegheny Cemetery. Only members of the family attended the ceremony. The Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, pastor of the Shady Side Presbyterian church, officiated. The Lewis family had requested that the interment be strictly private and to omit flowers.

It seemed that young Lewis had contemplated committing suicide two weeks prior to his death at Atlantic City, and before the killing of Mazie Colbert in Philadelphia. This fact developed from a letter received by James S. McFayden of 1516 Beechwood boulevard, and written by young Lewis in New York and mailed from there December 17. McFayden is general manager of the Union stockyards.

THE LAW.

The first step out of barbarism is the recognition of law. Primitive man knew only his own desires and the measure of his power to gratify them, but every forward step in civilization brings new laws and constantly increasing readiness to obey them. Man's mastery of self means self enforced law.

"Yes, ma'am," answered the little fellow; "it rained."—Chicago News.

ENTENTE REPLY IS REPORTED ALTERED

Washington, Jan. 8.—The administration is convinced by advices received from European sources that material changes had been made in the reply of the entente powers to President Wilson's peace note since it was originally prepared.

The note is expected to reach Washington this week. It has been more than a week since the state department was notified by ambassadors in entente capitals that the reply was ready for transmission.

Secretary of State Lansing refused flatly to discuss any phase of the peace situation. He would not indicate whether the department had been advised as to the nature of the entente reply.

American officials generally, however, were inclined to believe the note as now prepared, while stronger than the original document, still leaves a loophole for continuing peace negotiations on the initiative of the President. They showed some anxiety over the continued delay.

"No attention will be paid to such ridiculous rot," said Secretary Tumulty. Prince von Hatzfeldt, counsellor of the German embassy, also flatly denied the story, characterizing it as utterly absurd.

ILLINOIS 2-CENT FARE WILL NOT BE ALTERED

Injunction Asked by Twenty-nine Railroads Denied.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Jan. 8.

Petition of twenty-nine railroads for the issuance of a temporary injunction restraining the Illinois public utilities commission and other state administrative agencies from enforcing the Illinois 2-cent fare law, was denied without prejudice in the federal court before Judges Landis, Evans and Carpenter, sitting en banc. By a decision of two to one, it was decided to proceed and try the case on its merits, Judge Landis dissenting. The hearing on the merits will begin Tuesday before one of the three judges.

Judge Landis, in opposing his fellow jurists, argued that the case was not within the jurisdiction of the court in which the petition was entered, but should be tried in the District of East Missouri.

Suspension for four months of the schedule filed by the railroads increasing passenger fares from 2 cents to 2.4 a mile has been ordered by the public utilities commission, pending the decision of the court. The order was to take effect Jan. 15.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., Jan. 8.

That a city is not responsible for the accidental death of an employe when the latter did not take ordinary precautions was held by the Illinois supreme court in the case of Policeman Harry Marshall of Pekin.

The lower court gave the widow $2,900 under the workingman's compensation act when the officer was killed by a bullet of his own revolver, the weapon falling from the holster and being discharged. The upper court reversed the finding.

TECUMSEH BANKS CLOSE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Our Tecumseh banks are showing a fine gain in total business for the year and start out the new year with every prospect of further gain. Both banks show by their statements just [illegible] a gain in deposits of about $80,000 for the year.

As our banks are a fair barometer of the business done in our town, it would indicate a good healthy business condition for the past year.

The Tecumseh State Bank has increased their surplus fund to $26,000.00, an amount equal to their capital which places them on the Honor Role of Michigan banks and we understand is the second bank in the county to be placed on this role, the other bank being the Boice State [illegible] of Hudson. Strange to say, Ed Frensdorf of Hudson is a director in both banks. The regular dividend has been declared.

The Lilley State Bank held its annual meeting at noon today. In speaking of the year's business, Vice President F. J. Temple stated that the business for the year just closed was the best in the history of the bank. Besides paying the regular dividend the bank carried a little better than 7 per cent. to its undivided profit account. The officers and directors for the year are as follows.

Pres.—R. A. Heesen
Vice Pres. and Mgr.—F. J. Temple
Cashier—H. S. Temple
Ass't Cashier—Dale Hodges

Fixing the Carpet Sweeper.

The revolving brush of the ordinary carpet sweeper is driven by the friction of the wheels on which the sweeper runs against driving wheels on either end of the brush axle. To insure good friction the peripheries of all of these wheels are covered with tightly fitting rubber rings. In time these rings wear out, or the rubber becomes hardened and loses its grip. An efficient method of repairing a sweeper having imperfect or worn rubber rings is to cover the wheels with common electricians' tape, such as is employed for covering joints in wire. The tape should first be wound around the periphery of the wheel until a covering nearly equal to the thickness of the original ring is attained. This should then be secured in place by passing the tape around the ring and between the spokes of the wheels. The gripping power of the tape is fully equal to that of the original rubber rings, and the sweeper will be good for service until other parts wear out.

Arsenic Absorbed by Hair.

New light has been thrown on the legal side of arsenic poisoning, says the Scientific American. It has been found that arsenic compounds are absorbed by the hair of living persons, though not absorbed after death. In the hair of man arsenic has been known to reach a concentration of one to five parts in 100,000. The deposit takes place in the hair after it has been absorbed by the abdominal organs, liver and kidneys in particular.

Therefore in cases of acute, quick poisoning a chemical analysis of the hair would show no arsenic, while it would be found in the liver and kidneys. On the other hand, if slow arsenic poisoning were suspected analysis would show arsenic in the hair, but not in the liver and kidneys, and it could safely be assumed that the poisoning was not recent. The legal value of such evidence is apparent.

The African Marriage System.

You cannot fancy how deeply complicated the African marriage system is or how many ramifications there may be to a "woman's palaver." One day Mr. Heminger was sitting in a hut talking with two members of his congregation, wives of one husband. He was talking to them about their sins, which were of an obvious character. The younger woman had been accused of stealing food. Then he turned to the elder, Wawa, she of the ten children, five of them dead and five of them cruel.

"Wawa," he said, "why cannot you live at peace with this wife of your husband? Why are you always quarreling?" (They are notorious scrappers.) "Well," said Wawa, "she was bought with one of my children, and I cannot forget it."—Jean Kenyon Mackenzie in Atlantic.

Selfishness.

It is curious how little selfishness is understood. It is generally assumed to be an intense regard for oneself, when in reality it is a supreme disregard.

Unselfishness, on the other hand, is a higher regard for oneself.

Selfishness is only a form of destruction. It is produced by soul avarice. What we put into ourselves draws no interest. It is constantly deteriorating in value. Selfishness is an ingrowing shortsightedness. Selfishness is also a form of sincerity. Selfish people deceive nobody. They wear their selfishness on their sleeves. Their sincerity about it is something so apparent as almost to cause a sense of admiration for its genuineness.—Life.

An American Surgeon

He Was Needed Because He Would Not Tell

By HORACE BRADFORD

I am a surgeon, and my home is in Florence, Italy. When a young man I studied at a college of physicians and surgeons in my native country, America, but, possessing a taste for art, concluded to change my profession. Coming here to Florence, I studied art for awhile, but soon saw that I did not possess the talent necessary to make an artist. Having fallen in love with this delightful city, I remained, hanging out my shingle as a surgeon.

One night I attended a ball at the Pitti palace. It was my first appearance among the aristocracy of Florence, and I was much interested in watching the people there, few of whom I had ever seen. A young girl with a gentleman attendant on each side of her walked by me. The appearance of the three told a story. The man on her left was young, handsome, in every way attractive. He on her right was past middle age and disagreeable looking as the other was engaging. As they passed me he gave the younger man a malignant look. The girl appeared to be much troubled. It was plain that her heart was with the man on her left, that she was constrained to choose the man on her right and that the two men hated each other on her account.

"Everywhere," I remarked to myself, "the stream of life is troubled. To be rich, to be prominent, does not render one immune from that which is disagreeable. Happy love has evidently come to this young girl, to be interfered with by one who, judging from her expression, has some claim upon her. How I should like to know the story!"

As I thought the last words I little dreamed that within a few hours a climax would come in the drama being enacted by these three persons and that I would come upon the stage for a minor part. When I left the palace I went directly to my rooms and to bed. An hour later I was awakened from a sound sleep by a violent knocking. I arose, slipped on a gown and opened the door. Two gentlemen in evening dress stepped into the room.

"You are the American surgeon, I believe?" said one.

"At your service," I replied.

"You are wanted to attend a man dangerously wounded," said the other. "You are chosen partly on account of your standing in your profession, but principally because you are not one of our circle. We do not like our affairs to be known. I must ask you to permit me to blindfold you."

I objected to this, but one of the men put his hand to his hip pocket and drew forth a small pistol with mother-of-pearl mountings, while the other produced a stiletto. I picked up my bag of instruments and suffered them to tie a handkerchief about my eyes. They led me out to the sidewalk, told me to raise my foot, and I stepped into a carriage.

"Drive a roundabout way," I heard one of the gentlemen say.

"No," interposed the other. "He may bleed to death. We must go as quickly as possible."

There was no need to make turns, for I had no idea where they were taking me. In what I supposed to be ten minutes the carriage stopped. I was helped out and soon by the increased warmth of the air felt myself to be in a building. Then I mounted steps, and at last the bandage was taken off my eyes. I was standing beside a bed on which lay—mirabile dictu—the young man I had seen walking on the left of the girl at the Pitti. I knew too well the danger of showing any sign of recognition.

"Signor Dottore," he said with a feeble voice. "I have been stabbed on the left side—here," uncovering. "It is near the heart."

It was near the heart, but had fortunately just escaped that organ. After an examination I assured the patient that if he kept perfectly quiet till the wound should heal he would recover. But I thought that, considering its close proximity to a vital organ, a surgeon should remain with him until a healing should be established.

"Then," said one of the men who had brought me, "you must remain. We do not care that two surgeons should be introduced here just now."

"But my practice—my patients?"

"All damages to your practice shall be liberally paid for."

I made a virtue of necessity and assented.

Meanwhile I had bandaged the cut and when I had finished turned and looked about me. I was in one of those old palaces, as they are called in Florence, belonging to some influential family. The furniture, at least some of it, must have been several hundred years old. The bed on which the wounded man lay was canopied. On the walls were paintings, some of which I recognized as masterpieces of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. There was no one in the room except the two men who brought me and the patient. I directed that a large lounge of antique pattern should be made comfortable for me to sleep on, as it would be best for me to be very near the patient. Then the men who had brought me left, one of them first saying to me.

"Signor Dottore, we are very glad to hear you say that the patient has so good a chance for his life. When you leave here be discreet and all will be well with you, but if you talk—well, all I have to say is you will not talk very long."

I remained a week at the palace, the name of which I did not know. Indeed, I was not permitted to leave the room of the patient, my meals all being served there. My mail was brought me, and it was amusing for the first day or two to read the messages of my patients with reference to my sudden disappearance. Then I asked those who had kidnaped me to leave word at my apartments that I had been called to Sienna on a very important case. This had the effect of quieting those who sought me.

My patient turned out to be as engaging a man as I had deemed him to be when he passed me in the Pitti palace.

"Your effort," I said to him one day, "to keep your drama—it came very near being a tragedy—from me would possibly have been successful had it not been that I was at the ball at the Pitti palace the night you were stabbed. I saw you pass me with the man who stabbed you and the lady for whom you were stabbed. So you see it would be safer for you to tell me the whole story, since I have a part of it, I pledging myself to secrecy, rather than to permit me to go away with what I already have unpledged."

He was not only very much astonished, but saw the reasonableness of what I said.

"I did not notice you," he replied, "at the ball and supposed that you had no position in court society. An Italian surgeon would have been unavailable for us. We are all so interlaced socially, those below constantly watching those above and all watching one another, that we dare not trust any one of our own number. You, as an American, are not mixed in our jealousies, our disputes, our"—

"Assassinations."

"You are wrong there. There are no assassinations in modern Italy. I fought with the Duke— But I will tell you the story and have every confidence that you will not reveal it.

"I am Count Baradini, and my ancestors have lived in this palace since the twelfth century. The man you saw on the other side of the signorina at the ball was the Duke of Abolino, a relative of the king. The signorina herself is the daughter of the Countess Francoccio, an old family that sprang up under the influence of Lorenzo de' Medici, commonly called Lorenzo the Magnificent. Signorina Bianca Francoccio and myself have been lovers ever since I was sixteen and she fourteen years old. Upon her entrance into society lately on her eighteenth birthday the duke saw her and became desirous of possessing her. He is a widower, very rich and has great influence with the king. Soon after seeing Signorina Bianca he made a formal application for her hand. Her mother—her father is dead—urged her to accept what is to be considered in a worldly point of view a better position than I could give her. To be a duchess and rich is higher in the worldly scale than to be a countess and with no possessions except this old palace. As for Bianca, her heart is all mine, as mine is hers, and if left to her own will she would refuse the duke to marry me. Indeed, rather than wed with him she declares she will go into a convent.

"The duke was expecting to have his own way in the matter when at the recent ball at the Pitti he discovered that I was his rival. I was with Signorina Bianca a few minutes before we passed you, when the duke joined her and by a look bade me give way to him. I asked the lady to go with me into another apartment. She assented, whereupon the duke went with us. On reaching the other room Bianca showed the duke so plainly that his presence was not desirable that he left us, giving me a malignant look as he did so that plainly meant 'I am a man of too much importance to be interfered with by such as you.'

"On leaving the palace the duke, who took occasion to go out at the same time as I, jostled me. Seeing that I must have it out with him, I sent him a challenge.

"Just at present the king would be furious if he knew that members of the nobility to whom he looks for support, especially his relative, had fought a duel. If I were known to have sent a challenge to the Duke of Abolino I should in some way be made to suffer. I met him within an hour after we left the Pitti; but, realizing my position, I did not dare even pink him. He came very near killing me, as you see, and I doubt not will be disappointed if I recover.

"The duke and my second joined in conference as to how to keep the matter a secret and decided to call upon you to attend me.

"There you have the story so far as it has been enacted."

The balance of the tale I learned from Count Baradini after he had recovered. Signorina Bianca was commanded by her mother to marry the duke, and the king sent a message to say that he would be pleased at a match between her and his well beloved cousin. Despite these commands and requests the girl flatly refused to marry any one but the man she loved, and when those who were conspiring against her found it impossible to move her they desisted, and finally her mother gave a reluctant consent that she should marry the count.

When the wedding came off I was present and had a pleasant chat with the bride about her husband's wounding, of which she had been kept in ignorance till the affair had blown over. So long as I remained in Florence I was welcome at the palace of Count and Countess Baradini.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

To Prevent Colds.

Dr. Eugene L. Fisk of the Life Extension institute, in New York city, suggests that one of the best methods for preventing colds is to breathe as much fresh air as possible. A draft, he holds, is not to be feared unless it is strong enough to be chilling. It is as silly to weaken your resistance by coddling as it is to be over-Spartan. The skin can be trained to help resist germ infection, and one of the worst ways to train it is to work and live and sleep in overheated rooms. The same sort of rules apply to clothing. Adapt your clothing to the condition of your health and to the conditions of the weather. One man can wear light underclothing all the year round; for another whose physique is not so hardy or who has chronic heart or kidney trouble such a course is folly. It is as harmful to expose yourself too much as it is to weaken your resistance by building up. Baths? One man can take cold baths and be no worse for them; another of a more delicate constitution will suffer nervous shocks from the same temperatures. Try out your skin and find out its reaction point. Of course you will do well to avoid constipation, overeating and extreme fatigue, for these all aggravate colds and invite them. The man who is subject to colds should be sparing in his use of tobacco and should know that he weakens his resisting powers if he drinks alcohol.

Satisfied.

"I was brought up on a farm, and I'm glad of it."

"Yes?"

"You bet your life! Whenever I think I'm working too hard I just stop and think of the time when I had to get up at 4 o'clock and work like a slave until dark."—New York World.

Metchnikoff as a Cook.

One day some distinguished visitors who had arrived in Paris and were being escorted about by a committee were taken to call upon the late Professor Metchnikoff, the famous scientist who believed that the secret of long life lay in diet, toward the hour of noon. The laboratory was all but empty, as most of the workers had departed for that sacred meal, the French dejeuner. But Metchnikoff was there himself intent on a vessel he was holding over a gas burner.

"It must be a very interesting experiment that keeps you engaged even at this hour," remarked one of the committee.

"Look for yourself," said Metchnikoff, and, continuing to stir with a glass tube, held up the dish so that a delicious fragrance rose to the noses of the visitors.

"That's what I'm working at," he laughed, "bananas in slices, fried in butter. They are excellent."—World's Work.

Explosives.

The whole power of any explosion, whether it be a burning or a detonation, which is a sudden flying of certain chemicals into gas all at once everywhere throughout the mass regardless of heat, is caused by nature's total refusal to permit two bodies to occupy the same place at the same time. Gunpowder occupies a hole drilled in a rock deep enough to accommodate a pint. A fuse explodes it.

During the time it takes that pint of gunpowder to change to a gas it grows so that there are 401 pints of gas occupying the hole—or trying to. If the hole is strong enough they might. But it isn't. They push the rock apart and make room for themselves. If it was a pint of good dynamite there would be a volume of 847 pints of gas trying to occupy that pint hole. And if it was blasting gelatin 1,386 pints!—Scientific American.

Victoria and Napoleon.

Queen Victoria once gave a remarkable description of her visit to the tomb of Napoleon I. during the reign of Napoleon III. "The coffin is not yet here," she wrote, "but is in a small side chapel of St. Jerome. Into this the emperor led me, and there I stood at the arm of Napoleon III., his nephew, before the coffin of England's bitterest foe, I, the granddaughter of that king who hated him most and who most vigorously opposed him and this very nephew, who bears his name, being my nearest and dearest ally! The organ of the church was playing 'God Save the Queen' at the time, and this solemn scene took place by torchlight and during a thunderstorm. Strange and wonderful indeed!"

Making a Hot Compress.

In the American Journal of Nursing Elizabeth Robertson gives the following directions for making a hot compress: Wet the compress with tepid water, then iron it rapidly with a very hot flatiron. This produces sufficient steam to hold more heat and obviates the necessity of wringing out excessively hot cloths.

The Money Power.

Braggs—It is positively absurd to talk about a "money power" in this country. There is no such thing. Waggs—I'd just like to discuss that with you. Have you got a minute to spare? Braggs—Not a minute. I've got a note due at the bank, and they're bothering me to death about it.—Life.

Eighty Per Cent.

"The Browns are celebrating their silver wedding next Saturday."

"Their silver wedding? Why, they've been married only five years!"

"I know, but that's five times as long as anybody expected them to stay married, so they feel that they are entitled to a discount."—New York World.

Bishops and Mustaches.

Shall we ever see the day of a bishop with a mustache? At present, of course, he may only wear a mustache chaperoned by a beard—by an unwritten code. The present bishop of Chelmsford was the possessor of a luxuriant mustache until his elevation to the episcopate, when it disappeared. The bearded judge we have had with us for years, but the mustached judge is a comparatively new arrival. He came in with Lord Justice Phillimore and was followed, not long afterward, by Mr. Justice Shearman. As for doctors, a generation ago a mustached M. D. would have been open to the charge of unprofessional conduct.—London Chronicle.

Both Bluffers.

"If I rejected you, would you commit suicide?"

"I don't know, girlie. Your sixteen-year-old sister is very attractive. In a few years"——

But she accepted him forthwith, and he is working hard now to meet the installments on an engagement ring.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Proved His Case.

Mother—The whipping you had yesterday does not seem to have improved you. Your behavior has been even worse today. Willie—That's what I wanted to prove. You said I was as bad as I possibly could be yesterday. I knew you were wrong.

ONE OF THE BEST

"The Crisis," which began a three days showing at the Majestic yesterday, proved one of those screen masterpeices of which a printed review cannot convey a really adequate conception. There can be no doubt that it is destined to take its place as one of the big screen accomplishments and it is surely the biggest thing the Selig company has made.

It is a screen play of practically the same length as "The Birth of a Nation," and while it hasn't the thrills that the rides of the Ku Klux Klan gave the other picture, we would say that it is in every other way the equal of the Griffith masterpeice and even surpasses it in story interest with the added merit of treating both the slave question and the war non-partiasnly, showing the good and the bravery of both, while none of the characters were unnatural, unwholesome or overplayed.

There is scarcely a moment of the picture that one does not find himself hanging intently on each development and scene. For this the Winston Churchill novel from which it was adapted, of course, deserves a big share of the credit—"The Crisis" has long been reorganized as one of the most perfectly constructed American stories. The producers' share of credit is in having made the most of that material proof of which is the fact that in the two hours and a half there are no draggy moments.

Though story interest is "The Crisis" greatest factor of success, there is a pleasant feeling throughout all its early scenes, that while following the story, there are also being opened before one pages of history, an intimate view of private and public life of that turbulent period just before the war. Scarcely knowing it, the watcher absorbs a knowledge of those picturesque days as most of us are pleased to believe they were.

One section of the picture, which runs perhaps fifteen minutes, furnishes the spectacular note in depicting Grant's siege and capture of Visksburg. So masterfully has the director handled the big scenes of fighting on land and water that they send the blood coursing through one's veins and heightened in effect by the accompanying well played patriotic music, give the picture the benefit of all the patriotic spirit in each spectator.

Not handicapped by the presence of a star, the producers were able to cast every role rue to the character, with the result that "The Crisis" has as hearly perfect a cast as any picture ever had. To give each player full credit is impossible in the space allowed here, but certainly the performance of George Fawcett as Judge Whipple, throughout the whole picture and in the death scene in particular, is a credit to the screen. Sam Drane's conception of Lincoln is carefully studied, convincing and pleasing. Mat Snyder makes a lifelike, likeable character of Colonel Carver and Eugenie Besserer of Mrs. Brice. Tom Santschi is manly, commanding and of strong personality as Stephen Brice, and Bessie Eyton's Virginia Carvel is by far the best thing she has ever done, while Marshall Nielen is a dashing, debonair Clarence Colfax. And in a lesser way one might say as much for the small characters.

Let it suffice, however that the direcor's fine insight has registered the suspense, the pathos and the humor of a fine story—careful touch is here and there expressing as much at times as could be described in many printed pages.

We do not hesitate to advise that this is a screen play you'd regret missing.

—From the Jackson Patriot of Friday December 22nd. "The Crisis" will be one of the early attractions at the Bradley Opera House.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Cancer Dangers.

It is a well established fact that moles, warts and scars are prone to degenerate if subjected to repeated irritation, especially in the evening of life, says the Therapeutic Gazette. These abnormalities should be kept under intelligent observation and if they display any activity or arouse an unusual sensation should be immediately put in the hands of the surgeon for speedy excision.

The senile keratoses, so common on the skin of the old; the little wartlike excrescences and little scurfy patches so frequent on the faces and the hands, offer peculiar advantage for the development of epithelioma. They have been called "halfway houses" on the road to malignancy. They should be subjected to no avoidable irritation and, above all, should not be "treated" with the meddlesome notion of cleaning them up. They should be handled with gloves, as it were, and gently carried along to a quiescent end.

The pressure of nose glasses has been sufficient to excite such a skin (of the old) to perverse activity. The pressure of a tight hatband has served to arouse the latent fury of an old and disregarded birthmark. Bear this in mind, particularly old persons, and guard against any irritation of the skin.

First Feeding Bottle.

Possibly a hollow gourd constituted the first baby's feeding bottle. Torn from its parent tree, its edible interior would have found its way to the stomach of its adult plucker, after which the hollow shell would be filled with milk or other liquid refreshment for the satisfaction of the infant. In tropical countries, again, the cocoanut would constitute a natural feeding bottle, already filled with the necessary nourishment.

Without, however, indulging in speculation of this kind it may be noted that the archaic vase room at the British museum contains specimens of feeding bottles—tetinoe, archaeologists call them—dating back to between 600 and 700 years before Christ. These very early babies' bottles are usually globular in shape, are elaborately decorated and are covered with small knobs which, it is conjectured, were used to hang tiny bells upon. In short, the feeding bottle of those days was also a rattle and a picture book combined.

Government Crop Estimates.

Nearly 2,000,000 schedules are handled each year in the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture in making up the government monthly crop reports, according to the annual report of the chief of the bureau of crop estimates. Nearly 160,000 names are on the voluntary crop reporting lists; forty-four paid agents are constantly making personal investigations, one agent covering a state, and a force of 105 clerks is employed in Washington to handle the large number of reports from the voluntary crop reporters and to keep records of crop information of this and foreign countries. The work of crop reporting has been so improved and systematized that estimates of production of important products can be made with a close degree of accuracy. The most complete record in existence is kept in the bureau of the estimates and statistics relating to the world's crops and live stock.

Former Tecumseh Boy Preaches in One of the Most Important Churches in the East.

The following was clipped from the New York Christian Advocate. Walter E Burnett is an old Tecumseh boy and his friends here watch with interest his success in his chosen work, following in the footsteps of his father who at one time filled the pulpit of our Methodist church.

The Rev. Walter E Burnett of Central Pennsylvania Conference has been transferred to Baltimore Conference and appointed to the pastorate of Foundry church, Washington, D. C., from which Dr W. R Wedderspoyn went to St. James church, Chicago, three months ago. Rev. Burnett leaves Franklin Street church, Johnstown, Pa. Previous pastorates were at Bellevue Avenue, Pittsburgh, and Preston, Detroit. He is a native of Michigan

Sugar.

Our word "sugar" is said to be derived from the Arabic "sukkar," the article itself having got into Europe through the Arabian Mohammedans, who overran a great part of the world in the seventh, eighth and ninth centuries. According to Dr. Van Lippman, a Dutch writer, as a result of the Arab invasion of Persia sugar found its way into Arabia, whence again its culture was carried to Cyprus, Rhodes, Sicily and Egypt. In the last named country the preparation of sugar was greatly improved, and the Egyptian product became widely famous. From Egypt the industry spread along the northern coasts of Africa and so entered Spain, where, about the year 1150, some fourteen refineries were in operation. Columbus introduced sugar cane into the new world.

A Timely Suggestion.

Prior to Jan. 1st we made partial purchase of our seasons requirement of farm machinery Last week we were advised from several leading manufacturers that all prices were withdrawn and new prices would be made that would be about 20 per cent higher.

We suggest this:—

Buy your farm machinery early, get it home early then you KNOW you will have it to assist in raising the highest priced farm products you ever raised

It is not a matter of selling goods but that of getting material. Don't wait for the salesman to call but place your orders at once and get your requirements from the first shipments as the latter shipments may be delayed and cost more.

A PAGEANT OF WONDERS

"A Daughter of the Gods," which will be shown in this city at the Bradley Theatre, in February, is the William Fox million dollar picture beautiful. It is the most costly film ever produced and in one scene employed more than 21,000 persons. It tells a fascinating story, the course of which leads from a garden, where a happy child plays with her bird, out to the open seas, where the mermaids disport in happy ignorance of sorrow Then to the palace of of the mad Sultan, to his prodigally magnificent harem; and then down to the wonderful land of the Gnomes.

In photography, as well as settings this is a picture which for some time to come will set the high record of film perfection This, without considering Annette Kellerman, the star of the film who holds the record for being the best woman swimmer and the most perfect woman in the world.

HUGH DIAMOND HERE THURSDAY NIGHT

Mr. Hugh Diamond, a Scotchman born and raised on "the Old Sod" but now a true and loyal American, is the next number on the $1.00 Entertainment Course at the Presbyterian church Thursday night, Jan. 11th at 8 p. m. sharp.

Mr. Diamond combines all the wit and humor of Harry Lauder with a philosophy of life rarely referred to by many of us. Those fortunate enough to hear him here last February said they preferred Diamond to Lauder.

Mr. Diamond will render a number of Scotch songs as well as some of his own composition, accompanied by one of his daughters.

Single admission tickets, 25c, within the reach of all.

FIRST OF NEW SERIES

Dr. Hartzog's first lecture at the Baptist church Sunday evening was attended by the largest audience that has gathered at the church in many months. He spoke on, "The Apostle John on the Isle of Patmos." This is the first of a course on "The Seven Cities of the Book of Revelation."

The Britton orchestra consisting of eight instruments furnished the music. Ernest Palmer rendered a solo Their efforts were highly appreciated.

Next Sunday evening he will speak on "Ephesus," the Church of Waning Enthusiasm." The choir will give a half-hour of music.

Every effort is being made by the association to make this show a big success About fifty have already become members and the association has been made permanent, the poultry show to be an annual event. It is hoped that the association will be in shape to finance itself another year.

This is the first poultry show that has been put on here in Tecumseh in about 15 years A premium list is being prepared and will be sent out to bird fanciers all over the surrounding country, or anyone wishing one may secure it by calling on the secretary H. A Tribolet.

The services of S Scofield of Morenci, an authority on birds, has been secured to act as judge Judging will start at 9:10 a. m. on February 1st

Two hundred dollars in cash prizes will be distributed to the winners and it is expected that there will be from 25 so 30 classes of birds. Mr. Scofield will judge by the comparison system

An admission charge of 10c will be charged, or season tickets may be secured for 25c. All people entering birds whose fee totals $1 50 will be given a season's ticket. Members of the association will be admitted free

Birds will be entered at 15c per head and breeding pens at 75c. All entrance fees accompanied by an entrance blank are requested to be sent to H. A. Tribolet, secretary, and all entries must be in the secretary's hands by 12 o clock noon January 31st.

One of the especial features of the show will be the lecture on the evening of February 2nd at 7:30 o'clock by Prof C. H. Burgin of the M. A. C. who will lecture on "Successful Poultry Raising." All people interested in poultry should hear the lecture

Pet stock, pigeons, rabbits, ducks, cats, etc, are entered free and already many applications for entries have been made for this department.

Heesen Bros. & Co. have donated a feed cooker which will be given away to the holder of the lucky ticket. Tickets will be given when entering and deposited in a box and at the end of the show, the cooker will be awarded

Many inquiries have already been received from bird fanciers from out of town and it is expected that the entries will be unusually big for a show just starting. Those pushing it are claiming that they are going to have the 'biggest little show in this part of the country and from all indications it looks as if they would. Don't forget the date and for further information see H. A. Tribolet, secretary.

RABBITS PAY FOR BANQUET

Great Hunt for Bunnies Held by Murrayville, Ill., Odd Fellows.

Murrayville, Ill., Jan. 8.—Members of the Odd Fellows' lodge of Murrayville joined in a rabbit round-up. Two squads were organized, and each brought in more than 150 of the bunnies. The animals were sold and the proceeds will be utilized in paying the expenses of the annual banquet of the lodge to take place this week.

The hunt is an annual affair of the lodge, but never before were the animals found so numerous or so many killed by the nimrods.

Leaves of the Poison Ivy.

No doubt just a picture of poison ivy is enough to cause some folks to shudder and remember the time their face and body became scarlet and swollen from contact with the leaves. How it itched and burned! Yet to rub it was only to make matters worse.

A curious fact is that some persons are immune from this poison, while others must not even breathe the pollen of the plant. It is often confounded with the Virginia creeper, although the difference between this is distinct. The leaves of the latter are divided into five leaflets, while those of the former have but three, a fact well worth remembering.

Strange enough, the witch hazel plant is sometimes found growing close to the poison ivy. As witch hazel extract is one of the best remedies for ivy poisoning it would seem nature was holding out disease in one hand and a remedy in another.

Heat at the Persian Gulf.

The Persian gulf and its coasts are in summer about the hottest place on earth's surface, a temperature of 120 degrees in the shade being not uncommon, while a black bulb solar thermometer has registered 187 degrees in the sun.

When one remembers that the hottest room in a Turkish bath is usually kept at about 160 degrees the appalling nature of this Persian heat will be better realized.

The greatest heat ever known in England was on Aug. 18, 1893, when a shade temperature of 95 degrees was registered. But on this day the sun temperature did not quite equal that of July 28, 1885, when 162 degrees F. was registered in the sun.

When you consider facts like these it is difficult to believe that our planet receives only one two-thousand-millionth part of the rays flung out by the sun.—London Telegraph.

Government by the People.

The first attempt of government by the people begun in America was in 1619, when Sir George Yeardley was sent from England as governor of the Jamestown colony. His charter provided that he should call a few chosen men, two from each of the eleven boroughs that constituted the colony. The meeting, which was known as the assembly, was held at the church, with the governor and his council presiding. Those who came from the boroughs were called burgesses, and the assembly, which met every year, was styled the house of burgesses. At this period this was the only English colony in America.—Spokane Review.

A Kiss In a Coach

In the Days Before There Were Railways

By F. A. MITCHEL

I have always had a fancy for looking back into the past for items concerning those from whom I have descended. The doings of these persons who lived and moved and worked and loved and quarreled, just as others of my family are doing today, have always been of interest to me. I have before me a portrait of one of my grandfathers painted when he was the age that I am now, and one would suppose that he and I were twin brothers instead of being two generations apart. He was young in the last century, when the railroad was coming into vogue as a mode of travel and shortly before the use of electricity in telegraphing. Among family documents, of which I have collected a great number, there is one written by this gentleman which I prize more than any of the others. I give it just as he wrote it except for a little editing where he referred to himself, for an autobiographer is always at a disadvantage in this respect. I need to say that the writer at the time of the happenings narrated was twenty-three years old and considered handsome. His narrative reads:

I started to cross the Allegheny mountains on a business trip to Cincinnati, then the principal city in the west, and expected to be gone several weeks, having planned to spend a week in Cincinnati and a week returning. We left at 6 o'clock in the morning from the Antlers' tavern, there being eight insides and four outsides on the coach.

There was some shifting of passengers during the day, and at evening the positions of those inside was as follows—I give them minutely, for they are pertinent to an understanding of my narrative: I sat on the front seat, riding backward. There was one other person on the seat with me, a middle aged lady. She sat on my left. On the middle seat, facing me, but on the other side of the coach, was an elderly gentleman, eminently respectable looking. The other two places on the middle seat were occupied by a young woman, very precise looking, whom he called Amelia, and his daughter, a girl of about eighteen. On the back seat were a man and two women. I do not describe them, for they have no part in what I am going to record.

The first night in a coach is very uncomfortable; it is only when one gets somewhat accustomed to the jolting and has met with sufficient loss of sleep to render him hungry for slumber that he can lose himself sitting straight up and continually bumped. But I on this first night ascending the mountains, having been up late several evenings preceding my departure, slept fairly well. The horses were obliged to proceed at a walk.

In the middle of the night I was awakened by a pair of arms thrown around me and a pair of lips pressed against mine. My faculties not taking in the situation at once, it did not immediately occur to me to detain whoever kissed me, and by the time I proceeded to do so it was too late. The arms about me were unlocked and the lips removed from mine.

Not only was there no light in the coach, but the night was very dark. I could not see my hand before my eyes. All I knew of the episode was by the sense of touch. There was no doubt in my mind that I had been kissed by a woman, but the principal evidence of this was that the lips that were pressed upon mine were soft and there was no beard. Had the matter occurred when my faculties were normally alive doubtless I should have lain awake the rest of the night deliberating as to who had favored me. As it was, my deliberations, assisted by the monotonous breathing, not to mention snoring, of the passengers put me to sleep.

In the morning we stopped at a tavern, and after cold water thrown over my face and a good breakfast of fried chicken, various kinds of game and buckwheat cakes, for which I expended a Spanish silver half dollar, on returning to the coach my adventure of the night came back to me, exciting not only curiosity, but other emotions. I had scarcely seated myself when I made a careful survey of those persons some one of whom might have given me the kiss.

There were three women sitting sufficiently near me to have committed the act. There was the middle aged lady beside me, whose name I do not know; there were Amelia and the young girl, her niece, whom they called Agnes. I did not doubt that one of the three was the perpetrator. I scrutinized the face of each, but could see no trace of guilt. The lady beside me and Amelia met my gaze without a quiver, but Agnes, who sat opposite me, lowered her eyes.

I made up my mind that Agnes was the culprit, partly from this bit of evidence and partly because I preferred to believe that it was her red lips that had been pressed upon mine. We had all become well acquainted, and the woman beside me was very cordial in her manner toward me, while Amelia was rather reserved. As to Agnes, she acted as any young girl would have acted toward a young man under similar circumstances. She certainly appeared to be the personification of innocence. But still waters run deep, and I am free to admit that I was influenced by this adage.

The journey was especially interesting to me, because I had a problem to solve. I reckoned that the guilty one would betray herself before we arrived at the Queen City of the West. But the only one of the three who could have kissed me who showed a special predisposition for me was Agnes, and she gave no sign of guilt. At all events, it seemed to me that I had made a very favorable impression upon her.

On arrival at Pittsburgh those of us who were going further west took a steamboat to descend the Ohio river. Among those who were aboard were the elderly gentleman, whose name by this time I had learned to be Shotwell; his sister and his daughter. In the coach, crowded together as we were, there was no opportunity for a tete-a-tete between me and Agnes, but on the steamboat was plenty. We sat together on the guards outside the ladies' cabin, and at times on deck. The Ohio was called by the early French settlers La Belle Riviere, and justly so. At the time of this journey, the autumn, her waters were clear, and the foliage on the multitude of hills on her banks was of many colors. No affair of the heart could have taken place under more propitious circumstances.

One evening, when the air was out of the south, Agnes and I went on to the hurricane deck, which is the highest deck of all. No one was there but ourselves. We stood looking out on a moonlit scene. The sounds were the throbbing of the engine below and the striking of the paddle wheels at the sides of the boat upon the water.

Now, I had not thus far regarded my affair with Agnes Shotwell as any more serious than those I had had with other girls. I had by this time made up my mind that she had given me a kiss in the dark and that her innocence was assumed. Acting upon this theory, I suddenly clasped her in my arms and rained kisses upon her cheeks and lips.

A man may sometimes kiss a girl without having declared himself and not appear disrespectful. I, having assumed that Agnes had overstepped the boundary of feminine modesty, gave her too many kisses.

As soon as she could release herself she turned from me without a word, went to the steps leading below and disappeared. There was that in her manner to tell me it would be useless to follow her, that she was incensed beyond measure and if I obtained forgiveness I must wait and strive for it. Had I known her better I would not have feared that she would make it unpleasant for me with the others of her party, but my limited knowledge of her made me fear that she would.

I confess I was very much disgruntled. To have made such a mistake troubled me very much, for I was at an age when a man is especially sensitive to the good opinion or condemnation of women. I brooded over the matter during the day and lay awake thinking of it at night.

I did not see her again till the afternoon of the next day, when I approached her while she was with her father and aunt. She received me neither kindly nor unkindly, there being nothing in her manner to indicate to the others that she was offended with me. But when I again met her alone she passed me without recognition.

I was now badly cut up. I knew from her manner that she was not acting a part, and it was plain to me that the kiss given me in the coach had not been imparted by her. I was in a dilemma. I must either acknowledge myself a culprit or excuse myself by telling her of the kiss in the coach, a story so improbable that it was not likely to be believed.

Very soon after my offense we arrived at the landing at Cincinnati. That Mr. Shotwell did not know of anything amiss between his daughter and me was made plain by his giving me an invitation to call at his house. I looked at Agnes to note if she acquiesced, but saw no sign that I would or would not be welcome. We parted on leaving the boat, the Shotwell party driving to their home in the city, I to my hotel.

After much brooding over the matter I concluded to make the call. I had in me the consciousness of not being quite so bad as I appeared and I must bide my time for an opportunity to explain. Upon entering the Shotwell residence I received the surprise of my life. Agnes came into the drawing room alone and with a very different look on her face from any I had seen there since my transgression. It was very cordial.

I was of course relieved, but puzzled. I did not believe for a moment that Agnes had pretended to be offended with me, and yet as a sensitive girl how could she suddenly return to her former treatment of me without even an apology? I started to make one, but she checked me and went on talking about something else.

By this time I was madly in love, and love overcame curiosity. Be she good, bad or indifferent, Agnes possessed me. Instead of staying a week in Cincinnati, I remained there a month. When I left I was engaged to Agnes. After our engagement I asked her why she had forgiven me without my having asked to be forgiven. She only said, "Let that pass." But a moment later she added, "Forgive me for my part in that matter, will you?"

I forgave her and felt very complacent at my magnanimity. I left her to be gone till the following spring, then returned for our wedding.

Nov. 15, 1835.—My wife's Aunt Amelia died a week ago. This morning Agnes came to me and told me that the change toward me without explanation or apology for my transgression was due to her aunt's having confessed to her that she had kissed me in the coach.

THE FILM THAT PRESIDENTS GO TO SEE!

Annette Kellermann in the Picture Beautiful "The Daughter of the Gods"

Motion pictures in Washington entered a new shpere last night at the Belasco Theatre, when the President, Mrs. Wilson and party were present for the opening production in this city of William Fox's spectacular screen fantasy, "A Daughter of the Gods," featuring Annette Kellermann. No offering at the Belasco this season has drawn larger or more fashionable audience than witnessed the screen play last night.

"A Daughter of the Gods" is spectacular, colorful and big—big is the proper descriptive term—and dazzles by its variety adn exotic beauty of its scenes. The very best that nature has to offer in the way of effects has been skillful blended into the fanciful "plot" of the piece, and the result is a marvel of photographic beauty. While the tale makes certain demands upon the imagination, the naturalness of the pictures makes the trip from the present work-a-day world into a realm of fancy one easy to accomplish.

Miss Kellermann never appeared to better advantage before the camera than in "A Daughter of the Gods" Throughout she is the very embodiment of grace and in the aquatic scenes, which are in the majority, she thrills and delights with her exhibition of driving and swimming. —Taken from the "Washington Herald" of December 19, 1916.

"A Daughter of the Gods" with a special orchestra, larger than 'The Birth of a Nation' carried will be seen at the Bradley early in February.

DRY STATES ARE NOW DRY RIGHT

Law to Prohibit Shipment of Wet Goods Valid.

WEBB-KENYON ACT IS UPHELD

United States Supreme Court Gives Liquor Its Greatest Set Back, Foes of Traffic Declare—Intoxicants Cut Off From Outside Can't Get in by Court's Action.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Webb-Kenyon law, designed to prevent liquor shipments from wet and dry states, was declared constitutional by the supreme court by a vote of 7 to 2, which also upheld West Virginia's prohibition amendment prohibiting citizens from receiving liquor for personal use shipped by common carriers in interstate commerce.

The decision of the supreme court is hailed with exultation by saloon foes all over the nation.

No news could be more important at this time, they declare. In fact, the decision is of vital importance in the movement to end the traffic in liquor, it is held.

Means 27 States Are Really Dry.

It means that twenty-seven states that have decided to close saloons can prevent the shipment of liquor into their territory from other states. It means really dry states where the people want dry states.

The Webb-Kenyon law gives the states that have decided to be dry power to pass laws prohibiting the shipment of liquors from other states. It has been contended that states do not have power to make laws interfering with interstate commerce. The decision put an end to this contention.

State Law Will Do Work.

All that a dry state need do now is to pass the needed law or laws and dealers of liquor in other states cannot make shipments into dry territory.

Nineteen states are now dry. Four states have decided to be dry. Four others have elected dry legislatures and soon will act to be dry. This means that twenty-seven states are in line with the dry movement and can take advantage of the Webb-Kenyon law.

NEW CLEW IN MODEL DEATH

Sister Tells of Admirer Who Made Threat About Missing Ring.

PHILADELPHIA — The murder of Masie Colbert, pretty model which was thought cleared by the suicide of Bernard W. Lewis, Pittsburgh millionaire's son, became a live mystery.

Detectives are searching for a man who was brought into the case by Bessie Colbert, sister of the dead model. Bessie Colbert declared she had heard one of her sister's wealthy admirers say:

"I'll get back that diamond ring even if I have to choke the life out of her."

TIME NOT RIPE FOR PEACE PARLEYS, POPE

Pontiff to Send Notes to America and Kaiser.

ROME — Pope Benedict will declare the present moment inopportune for a peace movement in notes to Germany and America, the newspaper Messagero asserts.

According to this source, the notes will be practically identical in terms and will be dispatched by the vatican on Wednesday. In them, the Messagero declares the pope will narrate his own personal efforts toward peace and his desire for stopping of the great war but sum up his conclusions that the time is not yet ripe for definite steps.

GREECE REPLIES TO ALLIES

Points to Difficulties in Way of Complying With Terms.

LONDON, ENG. — Reuter's Athens correspondent says the Greek government has handed to the diplomatic representatives of the entente a series of statements in response to the latest note of the allies. These statements the dispatch says, are neither a refusal nor an acceptance of the entente note, but point out difficulties in the way of compliance with some of the terms.

LAWSON IS NEAR BLOWS AT PROBE

Little Netted at Inquiry into Peace Note Leak.

LANSING AND TUMULTY DENY

Neither Knew Anything About Leak. Tumulty Never Heard of Peace Note Until He Read It in Papers. Lawson Involves Unnamed Congressman and Cabinet Officer.

WASHINGTON — Full of sound and fury, but netting exactly nothing in the way of revelations was the investigation by the house rules committee into the alleged leak in the state department by which Wall street is supposed to have profited untold millions.

Sweeping denials of any knowledge of any leak were made by Secretary of State Lansing and Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President. Both secretaries manifested indignation at being dragged from their duties to answer foolish questions. They convinced political friends and foes on the committee that they neither kne wof any leak nor had ever heard of one till the leak story was in full swing about the capital.

Secretary Tumulty's statement said that he never heard of the peace note until it appeared in the newspapers, and he included a statement from President Wilson affirming its truth.

All efforts to shake out of Thomas J. Lawson any concrete substantiation of his sensational charges proved unavailing. The committee threatened him with punishment by the house for refusing to answer questions. Mr. Lawson said he did not give a d—n what they did. The committee told him that he was not in a bar room. Mr. Lawson thanked them for the information and apologized to the ladies who composed more than half of the audience that packed the vast committee room.

Questions Lawson Refused to Answer.

These are the specific questions for refusing to answer which Lawson was threatened with contempt proceedings:

"Who was the cabinet officer mentioned by the member of congress in his conversation with you as having dealt in stocks at the time of this leak?"

"Who was the member of congress who told you this?"

"What was the date and what are the circumstances of this conversation?"

Most of the time Lawson was red with rage. When the committee was not admonishing him, he was admonishing the committee. But though he piled up insinuations against senators, representatives and cabinet members, neither wheedling nor threats could draw from him a single name save that of Barney Baruch, who he said was a man of the highest integrity and could not possibly be mixed up in shady transactions of any description.

Solon and Cabinet Officer Accused.

By way of adding to his previous intimations of scoundrelly co-partnership between Washington and Wall street, Lawson said that a member of congress had told him that a member of the cabinet had profited by the leak.

Nearly all the members of the committee prodded him violently, in an effort to draw forth the identity of either the member of congress or the member of the cabinet. He refused flatly to answer.

Congressman Chiperfield of Illinois, who had almost come to the stage of blows with the witness, moved that the committee report the refusal to the house and that he might be punished for his recalcitrance. Lawson got purple in the face, but persisted in his refusal.

A little later he said he had heard of a joint account in a Wall street bank of a senator and a member of the cabinet, and believed that these two had profited by the information alleged to have been spilled before the peace note was issued. He said this banker had boasted that he could bring the cabinet member any hour of the day or night to answer his questions.

Wild committeemen could not drag the names of any of these politic-financiers from him.

The inquisitors told him he had smirched the name of the administration and of congress and intimated that he ought to be ashamed of himself for not going ahead and giving them information for an investigation.

Tells Committee How to Learn.

He offered, in reply to furnish them with a formula by which he said they could obtain all the information they wanted. All they needed to do, he said, was to bring before them the big firms that had lately made great profits and find out who made the money. Nothing could be easier, according to the witness than to obtain this information. Then all names would come out and the "hellish conspiracy" against the people would stop.

When Mr. Lawson was reminded a second time that he was not in a bar room, he announced that in his view, "hellish" was a perfectly proper and highly descriptive term. He added that it was the purpose of the committee to make him the "goat" and he would not tolerate it.

MILL GRADE WHEAT UP TO $2

Figure Is the Highest Since the Civil War—May Also Gains.

CHICAGO, ILL.—No. 2 red winter wheat sold at $2 a bushel, Monday, the highest price since the civil war. Once before this season some fancy grade of spring wheat reached that price, but this is the first time any regular milling grade has reached the high figure. Foreign demand was the principal reason for the upturn. Exporters are anxious to get the wheat and they are paying fancy premiums in all markets.

May wheat sold up to 1.89½, 4⅜ cents higher than the close Saturday.

The tax payers of School District No 7 will be called upon Monday evening to decide whether or not they will bond the district for the additional $20,000 needed to complete our new schoolhouse.

This idea of digging down in our pockets and furnishing $20,000 more to build our school is not a pleasant thought to any of us, especially when we thought we had provided ample funds last spring to build the building. But it is not hard for us to see that the rapid advance in the market is responsible for it. No one in business or, in fact, any person living in this district doubts this fact for we all have come in contact with the rapid advance in prices in all lines. We don't like it, any of us and we kick and growl, but it does us no good, if we want the goods we have to pay the market price and so it is with our school—if we want the school we will have to pay the price. If we vote it down we still have the old building to send our pupils to and these buildings will have to be patched up if used much longer. The heating systems in these buildings have been patched up and patched up until they will stand but little more tinkering with. Something will have to be done with them and you voters will have to foot the bill.

The money you have voted for a new building will be lying in the banks as it cannot be used for any other purpose than the erection of a new school. You are receiving interest on this money at the rate of 3 per cent. and are paying 4½ percent. on the bonds, a loss of 1½ per cent. on your money, or $1125.00 per annum. It would seem to be poor business to let it remain longer than necessary in the banks.

The building of this school is our job, we happen to be the fellows called upon to do it, so let's get behind the extra bond issue and help push it through.

We candidly believe that if the question of free public schools was to be decided by the vote of this district tomorrow, that there would be votes against the question right here and still no one questions the wisdom of our great free school system.

This is a broad statement, but it had its opposition at the time it was established and without doubt it would meet with opposition now.

If we must provide "free" schools, we must provide suitable buildings and this is what our Board are asking you to do. Stand back of them. Mr. Voter, and give Tecumseh a good school, a school ample for our needs now and in the years to follow. Surely this is not an unreasonable thing to ask of you.

It is your business to get out and express yourself If you have made up your mind that the demand made upon you is a worthy one don't be indifferent about it and stay at home but be at the meeting at the Grange hall Monday evening and do your duty as a man or woman.

We assume that those who are opposed to it will be there as they have every right to be and will register their vote against it

In this issue of the Herald the school board is publishing an article which goes into the details of the matter and covers it thoroughly. If there are still points that trouble you go to any member and we are sure you will get the required information. But be sure you vote.

Hot Cross Bun In History.

The hot cross bun has both antiquity and tradition in its favor. Its history traces back not only to the time of Cecrops and Astarte, but also to the Jewish passover cakes and the cross marked wafer or eucharistic bread adopted by the early Christians and mentioned in St. Chrysostom's liturgy. The substitution of the cross mark for the born mark on the surface of the bun by the Greeks is supposed to have been done for the purpose of dividing more easily the bun into four equal parts. Similar cross marked buns were found in the ruins of Herculaneum.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE SCHOOL BOARD

That every voter in this District may have a full, fair and complete understanding of the situation relating to the new schoolhouse and what seems to be an imperative need for an additional sum of $20,000.00 for the purpose of building the new school building, the Board of Education desire to lay before the District all the facts in the case.

Sealed bids for the construciton of the schoolhouse were asked for by advertising in the Tecumseh Herald, trade journals and by personal notices given to contractors in Detroit, Toledo and elsewhere.

All the bids received were sealed bids and were accompanied by certified check for 5 per cent of the amount of the bid, or Surety Company bonds, to be forfeited in case the successful bidder failed to enter into contract upon his bid and before contracting, to give ample bond for the faithful performance of his contract and the additional bond required by the Statue to protect laborers and material men.

All these bids were opened at two o'clock p. m. January 3rd, at the Library and in the presence of most of the bidders and some citizens. There were three classes of bids, general contractors bids for the construction of the building exclusive of plumbing and drainage, and heating and ventilation; separate bids being made for the plumbing and drainage and for the heating and ventilation.

The bids received from general contractors were as follows:

Willing Bros. of Bellvue, Ohio	$79,453.00
A. R. Cole Company, Inc. Ann Arbor Mich.	$84,059.00
W. H. Isgrigg, of Greensburg, Indiana	$75,750.00
Chas. E. Dibble, of Adrian, Mich.	$83,808.00
V. M. Gettins, of Toledo Ohio	$73,334.00
and offering $2,000 for the old school building, should his bid be accepted.
Henry J. Speiker Co. Toledo, Ohio	$95,962.00
J. Comte, of Toledo, Ohio	$88,963.00
Dyke Jonkman Construction Co., Holland Mich.	$74,939.00
and offering $900.00 for old building, should his bid be accepted.

One of the very high bidders offered $500.00 for the old building, no record was kept of this as the bid was so high that it was out of consideration.

The following bids were received for plumbing and drainage:

Jones-Kinn Eng. Co., Lima, Ohio	$ 8,062.00
The Bryan Plumbing & Heating Co. of Bryan O	$ 8,526.00
The Samuel A. Esswein Heating & Plumbing Co. of Columbus, Ohio	$ 7,496.00
Carry & Hall, of Defiance, Ohio	$10,000.00

The following bids were received for heating and ventalation, the system being the so-called Split System of steam heating:

Jones-Kinn Eng. Co. of Lima, Ohio	$13,590.00
The Bryan Plumbing & Heating C., of Bryan O.	$18,765.00
The Samuel A. Esswein Heating & Plumbing, Co. of Columbus, Ohio	$14,980.00
Cary & Hall of Defiance, Ohio	$20,000.00
The Lige Heating & Ventilating Co. of Auburn, Ind.	$15,333.00

The American Warming & Ventilating Co. of Toledo, O. filed a bid of $7403.00 for heating by the Hot Blast (hot air furnace) System. This bid was without automatic control, automatic control is an absolute necessity and would increase this to about $8,600.00.

Based upon careful investigation and the experience of others the Board of Education can not recommend the Hot Air Furnace, or Hot Blast System for the new schoolhouse and upon the best information obtainable, believes that District should not consider such a system of heating. They believe that by far the best results can be obtained by using the Split System, which though the cost may be more in the initial installation means for greater economy in fuel and up-keep. By this system steam radiators are placed under the windows, or in cold corners of large rooms and hot air is also forced into the rooms being warmed by passing over steam heated coils. Which also provides and insures a room reasonably tempered by the radiators in event of any accident to the forced air system.

From these it is readily seen that the low bids are as follows:

V. M. Gettins, General Contractor	$73,334.00
Jones-Kinn Eng. Co. heating & ventilating	$13,590.00
The Esswein Heating & Plumbing Co. plumbing & drainage	$ 7,496.00
A total of	$94,420.00

To meet this the District has on hand the proceeds of the sale of the bonds of last July plus premium of $700.00 thereon and interest accrued on these funds in the bank, amounting to $77,200.00 and Gettins' bid for old building [illegible]

[illegible] as governor of the Jamestown colony. His charter provided that he should call a few chosen men, two from each of the eleven boroughs that constituted the colony. The meeting, which was known as the assembly, was held at the church, with the governor and his council presiding. Those who came from the boroughs were called burgesses, and the assembly, which met every year, was styled the house of burgesses. At this period this was the only English colony in America.—Spokane Review.

It is better to back out than to be thrown out

ches, towers, etc, etc. But when a man of moderate means plans, having strick economy in view, he plans for living room, dining room, kitchen, bath room and the necessary chambers for sleeping purposes.

The Board has followed the latter course in planning for the new schoolhouse. The plans include absolutely nothing but those things which are absolutely required as indicated by the best of modern experience in schoolhouse planning. And in making the present plans they have been so trimmed down to absolute necessity, save only for providing a very moderately reasonable space for future growth, but which it would be false economy to ignore, the Board can offer nothing less in the way of a schoolhouse other than contemplated by the plans and specifications upon which these bids were made, and being the same schoolhouse for which plans were on exhibition at the time the $75,000 bond issue was approved.

Could the schoolhouse have been built immediately and upon the market for materials and labor that obtained May 1st, 1916, the Board is satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the $75,000.00 then provided would have built the schoolhouse and have provided moderatley well for its equipment.

Until the bonds should be sold no one knew what amount of money was available for the purpose and acting upon the best advice obtainable in financial circles, (it being feared that any delay might result in serious disappointment as to the funds to be realized on the sale) the bonds were sold and resulted in a fund of $75,700.00. This amount has been in the treasury and on deposit in savings account, and the $75,000 of bonds have been drawing interest since July 11, 1916.

There has been no unnecessary delay in getting this matter to a conclusion. First, the general plan of the school building had to be submitted to the State Board of Education for its approval. There was some delay at this point owing to the serious illness, and later his necessary vacation, of the member of the State Board who alone passes these matters, a matter entirely beyond the control of our Board of Education and of every one else. As soon as the plans had received the approval of the State Board, specifications for all details were worked out (it had been folly to have done this work, prior to being first approved by the State Board, for no one could foresee what changes might then be required). While the Board of Education has at all times had absolute confidence in Mr. Stophlet the architect, the Board deemed it wise for the protection of the District that the building plans be submitted to an expert for investigation, criticism, or approval. Mr. Barnum, of Cleveland, Ohio and expert in these matters, of national reputation, was consutled and just prior to this the building plans and specifications were finally approved by the State Board of Education.

In passing upon the plans and specifications both the State Board of Education and Mr. Barnum have taken occasion to say that the building is model in every particular.

The conditions under which the bids were made allowed the Board only ten days in which to accept or reject them. The power of expending money in this matter lying wholly and absolutely in the qualified voters of the District and not in the Board, and no bids being within the appropriation, there was but one course left open for the Board to pursue.

The written agreement of the lowest two bidders on each of the three classes was immediately obtained, to give the District until the 17th day of January, 1917, in which to accept or reject their bids. This was a considerable concession on the part of these bidders in view of the utterly unsettled condition of the material market. Thereupon the Board immediately called a meeting of the District for its action on this proposition, January, 15th, being the earliest reasonable time and within the extension of the time for consideration of the bids.

If an additional loan of $20,000.00 is granted, it will only provide for the building of the schoolhouse, with no provision for its equipment. But, by using the present furnishings of the present central and East Branch buildings, together with the money to be obtained from the sale of the East and North Branch school properties, the Board believes that very little additional money will have to be provided by the District for equipment for some time to come. However that may be, when that question comes no large sum will be required, and this is a matter which does not require immediate attention or expenditure.

Inasmuch as no School District can lawfully issue bonds to run more than fifteen years, and as the $75,000.00 bond issue, authorized last April, will have finally matured and been paid January 1st, 1931, the recommendation for the time of payment of this additional $20,000.00 is full fifteen years, which matures the principal one year after the final payment of the $75,000.00 issue. Under this arrangement as the maturity of the principal of the $20.000.00 approaches, it is in the power of the District then to meet this payment by refunding, or issuing new bonds covering the $20,000.00 with maturities scattered through the succeeding fifteen years, as the District may then decide is best. This leaves nothing but the interest upon the $20,000.00 to be paid during the next fourteen years. The Board has recommended that the rate of interest be four and one-half per cent, which means $900.00 per year. Now let us see what a loan of this kind will cost. The assessed valuation of this School District is nearly $2,000,000.00 (being $1,821,450.00) that a valuation of $2,000,000.00 is taken as the basis of computation. Applying the above annual interest charge of $900.00 to this valuation means a tax of a shade under 5c, per $100.00 of taxable valuation, for the next fourteen years.

And when the time comes, should the District deem its best to pay the entire $20,000.00 in the fifteenth year, that tax would be as nearly as can be sated $10.00 per $1,000.00 of assesed valuation, or $1.00 per $100.00 of assessed valuation, plus the above few cents for the interest that will come due with the principal.

Meetings of the District, such as are called for the 15th; are often called "elections" they are properly nothing of the kind. The meeting is simply a meeting of the District at which the question of borrowing or not borrowing this sum of money will be submitted, the only requirement being that the vote upon the question shall be by ballot, and that not less than two hours shall be allowed for the taking the ballot. On former occasions when the proposition was to raise a much larger sum of money, it was deemed best to allow a full day for all voters to have an opportunity to express their wishes in the matter, hence the reason for calling those meetings "election". At the coming meeting, however, the time for balloting will not be less than two hours and will be extended as much longer as may be necessary for all voters to express their wish by their ballot. And by calling it for a shorter time than all day, it is hoped the voters of the District can be assembled at one time, that full opportunity for complete discussion of this question may be afforded them, and which could not be obtained in an all day meeting.

The Board in this article have set forth fully and in detail all questions which have occurred to its members which might arise in considering this proposition. At the coming meeting, or at any intervening time, the members of the Board will be very glad indeed to extend all information and answer all questions which can be required. It is the earnest desire of every member of the Board that the proposition be thoroughly understood and that the will of the District shall control.

To all who know the course of the markets for labor and for all materials entered into a building such as contemplated, to all who will inquire and inform themselves, it must be self-evident and beyond controversy, that the reasons for the need of this additional money is due to the phenomenal and unprecedented rise in the selling price of labor and material since May 1st last, and to that alone, a condition that could be foreseen and calculated upon by no one. However, in determing the question now before the District, we have this advantage, that responsible bids are now in and if authorized by the District, contracts for the construction of this building will be entered into by your Board within forty-eight hours after your coming District meeting, which puts additional rises in the market for labor and material beyond harm to your enterprises. In other words, in dealing with the present figures we are dealing with established facts and not with estimates based upon a fluctuating market. But delays are dangerous.

We believe that if the voters of the District will take pains to be informed upon present and past market conditions, that they will be driven to the following conclusions, that the present war will continue for many months to come, with its effect upon the cost of labor and materials; that when peace does come the termenduous demand both for labor and material will continue to hold prices up for a long time; that under these conditions it is to be expected that labor and material cost will continue to advance steadily in the future as in the past. And with these things being so, to delay the building of this schoolhouse will mean its much greater cost later, and that it must be built in the near future is ineviable. That it is false economy to delay the completion of this building for any material time, during which the District must pay interest on per cent $75,000.00 of idle money is self evident, especially when there is no hope for better conditions.

It seems to the Board so plain a business proposition, that good business judgement requires this expenditure, that there can be no reasonable and intelligent counter-opinion if the voters of the District will only take home all the facts in the case.

Epitomized it is this, a new schoolhouse is absolutely necessary, the old one can be used no longer without serious danger to the health of the children to say nothing of its many serious defects. The District has borrowed $75,000.00 and is paying interest upon it. Will it borrow the comparatively small amount that is absolutely necessary, and complete the enterprise, or will it defer it indefinitely and continue to pay interest upon the large sum of money which can be used for no other than building purposes?

For a number of years past he has been travelling salesman for the American Steel & Wire works

During their residence in Tecumseh, Mr Boyd and family were located in the house now occupied by Bert Lawrence He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity here and has never withdrawn from this lodge, always having a loving regard for his old home town though living in Warsaw for many years During his illness when his mind was wandering, he would call upon his old chums in Tecumseh in terms of endearment.

He is survived by his wife and daughter Gertrude, one sister Mrs. R. B. House of Springfield O., and a brother Robert M Boyd of Adrian, his brother Archie preceeding him to the better country but a few months ago.

His funeral was held from the home Tuesday afternoon with burial in Warsaw.

A Timely Suggestion.

Prior to Jan 1st we made partial purchase of our seasons requirement of farm machinery Last week we were advised from several leading manufacturers that all prices were withdrawn and new prices would be made that would be about 20 per cent higher.

We suggest this;—

Buy your farm machinery early, get it home early then you KNOW you will have it to assist in raising the highest priced farm products you ever raised

It is not a matter of selling goods but that of getting material. Don't wait for the salesman to call but place your orders at once and get your requirements from the first shipments as the latter shipments may be delayed and cost more.

"THE CRISIS"

A picturization of the stirring events before and during the Civil war as related in Winston Churchill's American novel, "The Crisis," is to be seen at the Bradley soon.

This story was dramatized for the legitimate stage a few years ago and has had a strong appeal to the reading public ever since the first copy of the book came from the press.

In its screen form "The Crisis" is a moving, patriotic picture and is developed in a series of scenes and interesting incidents. The battle scenes are spectacular; historical events in the stirring history of the early '60s are faithfully reproduced, and there is a charming love story, which wends its romantic way throughout the storm and stress of the war of the rebellion.

Many of the pictures are as magnificent in proportion and wealth of detail as similar scenes in "The Birth of a Nation." "The Crisis" has much historical value and should be of educational aid to all Americans in placing firmly in the memory the unusual events of the Civil war.

"The Crisis", is the first super-Photoplay to be presented in Tecumseh which carries a special stage setting. A special orchestra is also carried which adds greatly to the presentation of this magnificent production.

"The Crisis" will be seen at the Bradley Opera House the latter part of this month, undoubtly Saturday, January 27th, as that is the only open date the company has at this writing.

Lloyd Heesen and Chas. Williamson left Thursday morning for Detroit on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith of Grand Rapids are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Waring.

H. T. Dunn is reported as improving finely, and hopes to return to his home in the near future.

HIGH-GRADE BACONS CAN'T BE CHEAP

First because there are so many pigs that have to be rejected They are too large, or too fat or too lean.

Then a high grade Bacon goes thru more processes than others.

And the processes are more expensive, too.

But it's all worth while.

And high grade Bacon, like ours, isn't dearer than the others, if it does cost more per lb

Really, it's the most economical Bacon a family can use

HUGH DIAMOND DELIGHTS HIS HEARERS.

Hugh Diamond the Scotch humorist from Cleveland. O.. was the attraction at the Presbyterian church Thursday evening. This was Mr. Diamond's second appearance before a Tecumseh audience, having been heard a year ago when he responded to a toast at the Presbyterian Men's Banquet. So delighted with him were the men, that when this present course was being planned he easily won a place for himself on the course.

Mr. Diamond is just an ordinary Scothman who tells things in his own humorous way driving home his points with a good story. He sang many songs including Scotch songs and had a peculiar way of stopping in the middle of his song to tell the audience something that occurred to him in reference close of his lecture he was called back to the song or its application. At the for more.

A splendid house greeted Mr. Diamond.

WHAT'S THE REASON?

Many Tecumseh People in Poor Health Without Knowing the Cause.

There are scores of people who drag out a miserable existence without realizing the cause of their suffering. Day after day they are racked with headache and backache; suffer from nervousness, dizziness, weakness, languor and depression. Perhaps the kidneys have fallen behind in their work of filtering the blood and that may be the root to the trouble. Look to your kidneys, assist them in their work—give them the help they need. You can use no more highly recommended remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills—endorsed by people all over the country and by your neighbors in Tecumseh.

Mrs. Alex Reid, Maiden Lane, Tecumseh, says: "My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly and I felt dull and languid. I tired easily, too. My back ached. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Pulver's Drug Store, and they relieved the backaches and helped me in every way."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pils—the same that Mrs. Reid had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv

Corns Peel Right Off With "Gets-It"

2 Drops, and the Corn is a "Goner!"

When you've got to walk on the sides of your shoe to get away from those awful corn-pains, there's only one common-sense thing to do.

Use "Gets-It." Your Corns Won't Swell in Water. Besides, They'll Shrivel, Loosen and Peel Off!

Put 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It" on the corn right away. Pain and inflammation will disappear, the corn will begin to shrivel from that instant—then it loosens and falls right off.

There's no other corn-remover in the world that acts like "Gets-It." No new discovery has been made in corn-removers since "Gets-It" was born. Don't forget that fact. "Gets-It" does away forever with the use of salves that irritate, bandages that make a bundle of your toe, plasters that half do the work, knives and scissors that draw blood. Use "Gets-It"—no more digging or cutting.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Tecumseh and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by E. J. Ruby.

SENATOR STONE

He Is Probably Solon Tom Lawson Meant.

MR. TOM LAWSON IS HALTED

But Those Who Read Probably Know Whom He Meant.

WASHINGTON — Tom Lawson started to loosen his feelings toward the lawmakers of the nation and got this, far, presumably referring to Senator Stone:

"I came to Washington to aid in an honest investigation, only to have hell lambasted out of me as soon as congress convened. Promptly when the senate met, the leather lunged, sewer mouthed, old blatherskite———"

At this point Mr. Lawson was abruptly stopped.

HOLY GREEK SYNOD PROTESTS BLOCKADE

Appel Sent to Heads of Great World Churches.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Holy Synod of Greece has appealed against the allied blockade of Greece, which it says threatens "the death of an entire people by starvation."

The appeal, which is declared to be without political significance, is addressed to the Holy Synod of Russia, the Pope at Rome and the Archbishop of Canterbury—heads of the great state churches of Europe.

The blockade ordered to force King Constantine to accede to the entente demands is denounced as "an inhuman and horrible measure of extermination against old men, women and children whom the belligerent armies and fleets are under obligation not to harm."

NOTHING AGAINST VOPICKA

State Department Says No Nation Has Filed Complaints.

WASHINGTON — Officials of the statement department made it clear that no charges have been preferred here by Germany or any other country reflecting personally on Chares J. Vopicka of Chicago, United States minister to Roumania. It was pointed out that while Mr. Vopicka or any other diplomatic officer may find himself persona non grata to a government he may still be persona grata to his own government.

Newspaper reports have been received that Mr. Vopicka has been asked by the German authorities to leave Roumania on the ground of unneutral conduct.

ASKS GIRARD TO EXPLAIN

"Dove of Peace" Allusion Stirs Administration.

WASHINGTON — The report by the Overseas News agency that Ambassador Gerard at a public welcome back to Germany had said that "never since the beginning of the war have the relations between the United States and Germany been so cordial as now," were inquired into officially by the state department through a cable to the ambassador personally.

Officials in making this announcement refused to add any comment except that they wished to know exactly what he had said.

REAR ADMIRAL KNIGHT

He Soon Will Be Made a Full Admiral, Is Report.

It is reported that Admiral Knight, who is to be succeeded as head of the Naval War college by Captain W. S. Simms, will be made a full admiral and assigned to command of the Asiatic squadron.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR.

Wednesday, Jan. 3.—In Roumania the Teutonic allies have gained another considerable success in the capture in northern Dobrudja of the towns of Matchin and Jijila, on the eastern bank of the Danube, opposite the important town of Braila, forcing the Russians to a point just south of the Danube, where the river bends and separates Dobrudja from Bessarabia.

At several points in the center of the lines in northern Wallachia the Russians and Roumanians are tenaciously fighting to hold them back, and according to Petrograd, in the region southwest of Fokshani and near the river Rimnik, the Teutonic allies were defeated.

Thursday, Jan. 4.—Dobrudja has been cleared of Russian and Roumanian defenders with the exception of Russian rear guards, who occupy a narrow strip of land leading toward Galatz. About 1,000 prisoners and ten machine guns were captured in the taking of Matchin and Jijila.

The capture by Russian forces on the Roumanian front of 600 prisoners, three cannon and sixteen machine guns, together with some mine throwers and bomb mortars, is announced.

Friday, Jan. 5.—The Russian bridgehead position before Braila was pierced by Teutonic troops, the war office announces. Four Roumanian towns were captured and 1,400 prisoners brought in.

Russian troops began an attack on German positions on the northern part of the Russo-Galician front, north of Friedrichstadt. Four Russian attacks near Dvinsk were repulsed.

Saturday, Jan. 6.—British troops entered German trenches near Arras and penetrated to the third line, damaging defenses. Elsewhere on the French front there was artillery fighting.

Russian troops advanced on the Riga front and took 272 prisoners and booty.

Roumanian forces again were driven back. German big guns are bombarding Galatz after the capture of Braila.

Turkish forces repulsed 10,000 British troops who attack Tigris positions in the Kut region.

Sunday, Jan. 7.—Although the Teutonic allies have made further advances in Roumania, both eastward from the mountain region and northward from Wallachia into Moldavia, the Russians and Roumanians at various points gave battle and at several places have met with success.

Between Fokshani and Fundeni the Russians made a strong attack over a front of about fifteen miles. They gained ground near Obilechti, says the German war office, but elsewhere were repulsed with heavy casualties. The Petrograd official communication, however, says the Russians re-established their former position near Kapatuno, northwest of Fokshani, made an advance in the vicinity of Raspitza lake, and in a surprise attack captured trenches to the northwest of the Oituz valley.

Admission is made by Petrograd that the Russians and Roumanians on the upper reaches of the Suchitza river retired before the advancing invaders.

THE FILM THAT PRESIDENTS GO TO SEE!

Motion pictures in Washington entered a new shpere last night at the Belasco Theatre, when the President, Mrs. Wilson and party were present for the opening production in this city of William Fox's spectacular screen fantasy, "A Daughter of the Gods," featuring Annette Kellermann. No offering at the Belasco this season has drawn larger or more fashionable audience than witnessed the screen play last night.

"A Daughter of the Gods" is spectacular, colorful and big—big is the proper descriptive term—and dazzles by its variety adn exotic beauty of its scenes. The very best that nature has to offer in the way of effects has been skillful blended into the fanciful "plot" of the piece, and the result is a marvel of photographic beauty. While the tale makes certain demands upon the imagination, the naturalness of the pictures makes the trip from the present work-a-day world into a realm of fancy one easy to accomplish.

Miss Kellermann never appeared to better advantage before the camera than in "A Daughter of the Gods" Throughout she is the very embodiment of grace and in the aquatic scenes, which are in the majority, she thrills and delights with her exhibition of driving and swimming.—Taken from the "Washington Herald" of December 19, 1916.

"A Daughter of the Gods" with a special orchestra, larger than 'The Birth of a Nation' carried will be seen at the Bradley early in February.

DRY STATES ARE NOW DRY RIGHT

Law to Prohibit Shipment of Wet Goods Valid.

WEBB-KENYON ACT IS UPHELD

United States Supreme Court Gives Liquor Its Greatest Set Back, Foes of Traffic Declare—Intoxicants Cut Off From Outside Can't Get in by Court's Action.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Webb-Kenyon law, designed to prevent liquor shipments from wet and dry states, was declared constitutional by the supreme court by a vote of 7 to 2, which also upheld West Virginia's prohibition amendment prohibiting citizens from receiving liquor for personal use shipped by common carriers in interstate commerce.

The decision of the supreme court is hailed with exultation by saloon foes all over the nation.

No news could be more important at this time, they declare. In fact, the decision is of vital importance in the movement to end the traffic in liquor, it is held.

Means 27 States Are Really Dry.

It means that twenty-seven states that have decided to close saloons can prevent the shipment of liquor into their territory from other states. It means really dry states where the people want dry states.

The Webb-Kenyon law gives the states that have decided to be dry power to pass laws prohibiting the shipment of liquors from other states. It has been contended that states do not have power to make laws interfering with interstate commerce. The decision put an end to this contention.

State Law Will Do Work.

All that a dry state need do now is to pass the needed law or laws and dealers of liquor in other states cannot make shipments into dry territory.

Nineteen states are now dry. Four states have decided to be dry. Four others have elected dry legislatures and soon will act to be dry. This means that twenty-seven states are in line with the dry movement and can take advantage of the Webb-Kenyon law.

NEW CLEW IN MODEL DEATH

Sister Tells of Admirer Who Made Threat About Missing Ring.

PHILADELPHIA — The murder of Mazie Colbert, pretty model which was thought cleared by the suicide of Bernard W. Lewis, Pittsburgh millionaire's son, became a live mystery.

"I'll get back that diamond ring even if I have to choke the life out of her."

TIME NOT RIPE FOR PEACE PARLEYS, POPE

Pontiff to Send Notes to America and Kaiser.

ROME — Pope Benedict will declare the present moment inopportune for a peace movement in notes to Germany and America, the newspaper Messagero asserts.

According to this source, the notes will be practically identical in terms and will be dispatched by the vatican on Wednesday. In them, the Messagero declares the pope will narrate his own personal efforts toward peace and his desire for stopping of the great war but sum up his conclusions that the time is not yet ripe for definite steps.

GREECE REPLIES TO ALLIES

Points to Difficulties in Way of Complying With Terms.

LONDON, ENG. — Reuter's Athens correspondent says the Greek government has handed to the diplomatic representatives of the entente a series of statements in response to the latest note of the allies. These statements the dispatch says, are neither a refusal nor an acceptance of the entente note, but point out difficulties in the way of compliance with some of the terms.

LAWSON IS NEAR BLOWS AT PROBE

Little Netted at Inquiry into Peace Note Leak.

LANSING AND TUMULTY DENY

Neither Knew Anything About Leak. Tumulty Never Heard of Peace Note Until He Read It in Papers. Lawson Involves Unnamed Congressman and Cabinet Officer.

WASHINGTON — Full of sound and fury, but netting exactly nothing in the way of revelations was the investigation by the house rules committee into the alleged leak in the state department by which Wall street is supposed to have profited untold millions.

Sweeping denials of any knowledge of any leak were made by Secretary of State Lansing and Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President. Both secretaries manifested indignation at being dragged from their duties to answer foolish questions. They convinced political friends and foes on the committee that they neither kne wof any leak nor had ever heard of one till the leak story was in full swing about the capital.

Secretary Tumulty's statement said that he never heard of the peace note until it appeared in the newspapers, and he included a statement from President Wilson affirming its truth.

All efforts to shake out of Thomas J. Lawson any concrete substantiation of his sensational charges proved unavailing. The committee threatened him with punishment by the house for refusing to answer questions. Mr. Lawson said he did not give a d——n what they did. The committee told him that he was not in a bar room. Mr. Lawson thanked them for the information and apologized to the ladies who composed more than half of the audience that packed the vast committee room.

Questions Lawson Refused to Answer.

These are the specific questions for refusing to answer which Lawson was threatened with contempt proceedings:

"Who was the cabinet officer mentioned by the member of congress in his conversation with you as having dealt in stocks at the time of this leak?"

"Who was the member of congress who told you this?"

"What was the date and what are the circumstances of this conversation?"

Most of the time Lawson was red with rage. When the committee was not admonishing him, he was admonishing the committee. But though he piled up insinuations against senators, representatives and cabinet members, neither wheedling nor threats could draw from him a single name save that of Barney Baruch, who he said was a man of the highest integrity and could not possibly be mixed up in shady transactions of any description.

Solon and Cabinet Officer Accused.

By way of adding to his previous intimations of scoundrelly co-partnership between Washington and Wall street, Lawson said that a member of congress had told him that a member of the cabinet had profited by the leak.

Nearly all the members of the committee prodded him violently, in an effort to draw forth the identity of either the member of congress or the member of the cabinet. He refused flatly to answer.

Congressman Chiperfield of Illinois, who had almost come to the stage of blows with the witness, moved that the committee report the refusal to the house and that he might be punished for his recalcitrance. Lawson got purple in the face, but persisted in his refusal.

A little later he said he had heard of a joint account in a Wall street bank of a senator and a member of the cabinet, and believed that these two had profited by the information alleged to have been spilled before the peace note was issued. He said this banker had boasted that he could bring the cabinet member any hour of the day or night to answer his questions.

Wild committeemen could not drag the names of any of these politic-financiers from him.

The inquisitors told him he had smirched the name of the administration and of congress and intimated that he ought to be ashamed of himself for not going ahead and giving them information for an investigation.

Tells Committee How to Learn.

He offered, in reply to furnish them with a formula by which he said they could obtain all the information they wanted. All they needed to do, he said, was to bring before them the big firms that had lately made great profits and find out who made the money. Nothing could be easier, according to the witness than to obtain this information. Then all names would come out and the "hellish conspiracy" against the people would stop.

When Mr. Lawson was reminded a second time that he was not in a bar room, he announced that in his view, "hellish" was a perfectly proper and highly descriptive term. He added that it was the purpose of the committee to make him the "goat" and he would not tolerate it.

The tax payers of School District No 7 will be called upon Monday evening to decide whether or not they will bond the district for the additional $20,000 needed to complete our new schoolhouse.

This idea of digging down in our pockets and furnishing $20,000 more to build our school is not a pleasant thought to any of us, especially when we thought we had provided ample funds last spring to build the building. But it is not hard for us to see that the rapid advance in the market is responsible for it. No one in business or, in fact, any person living in this district doubts this fact for we all have come in contact with the rapid advance in prices in all lines. We don't like it, any of us and we kick and growl, but it does us no good, if we want the goods we have to pay the market price and so it is with our school—if we want the school we will have to pay the price. If we vote it down we still have the old building to send our pupils to and these buildings will have to be patched up if used much longer. The heating systems in these buildings have been patched up and patched up until they will stand but little more tinkering with. Something will have to be done with them and you voters will have to foot the bill.

The money you have voted for a new building will be lying in the banks as it cannot be used for any other purpose than the erection of a new school. You are receiving interest on this money at the rate of 3 per cent. and are paying 4½ percent. on the bonds, a loss of 1½ per cent. on your money, or $1125.00 per annum. It would seem to be poor business to let it remain longer than necessary in the banks.

The building of this school is our job, we happen to be the fellows called upon to do it, so let's get behind the extra bond issue and help push it through.

We candidly believe that if the question of free public schools was to be decided by the vote of this district tomorrow, that there would be votes against the question right here and still no one questions the wisdom of our great free school system.

This is a broad statement, but it had its opposition at the time it was established and without doubt it would meet with opposition now.

If we must provide free schools, we must provide suitable buildings and this is what our Board are asking you to do. Stand back of them, Mr. Voter, and give Tecumseh a good school, a school ample for our needs now and in the years to follow. Surely this is not an unreasonable thing to ask of you.

It is your business to get out and express yourself If you have made up your mind that the demand made upon you is a worthy one don't be indifferent about it and stay at home but be at the meeting at the Grange hall Monday evening and do your duty as a man or woman.

We assume that those who are opposed to it will be there as they have every right to be and will register their vote against it

In this issue of the Herald the school board is publishing an article which goes into the details of the matter and covers it thoroughly. If there are still points that trouble you go to any member and we are sure you will get the required information. But be sure you vote.

Hot Cross Bun In History.

The hot cross bun has both antiquity and tradition in its favor. Its history traces back not only to the time of Cecrops and Astarte, but also to the Jewish passover cakes and the cross marked wafer or eucharistic bread adopted by the early Christians and mentioned in St. Chrysostom's liturgy. The substitution of the cross mark for the horn mark on the surface of the bun by the Greeks is supposed to have been done for the purpose of dividing more easily the bun into four equal parts. Similar cross marked buns were found in the ruins of Herculaneum.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE SCHOOL BOARD

That every voter in this District may have a full, fair and complete understanding of the situation relating to the new schoolhouse and what seems to be an imperative need for an additional sum of $20,000.00 for the purpose of building the new school building, the Board of Education desire to lay before the District all the facts in the case.

Sealed bids for the construciton of the schoolhouse were asked for by advertising in the Tecumseh Herald, trade journals and by personal notices given to contractors in Detroit, Toledo and elsewhere.

All the bids received were sealed bids and were accompanied by certified check for 5 per cent of the amount of the bid, or Surety Company bonds, to be forfeited in case the successful bidder failed to enter into contract upon his bid and before contracting, to give ample bond for the faithful performance of his contract and the additional bond required by the Statue to protect laborers and material men.

All these bids were opened at two o'clock p. m. January 3rd, at the Library and in the presence of most of the bidders and some citizens. There were three classes of bids, general contractors bids for the construction of the building exclusive of plumbing and drainage, and heating and ventilation; separate bids being made for the plumbing and drainage and for the heating and ventilation.

The bids received from general contractors were as follows:

Willing Bros. of Bellvue, Ohio	$79,453.00
A. R. Cole Company, Inc. Ann Arbor Mich.	$84,059.00
W. H. Isgrigg, of Greensburg, Indiana	$75,750.00
Chas. E. Dibble, of Adrian, Mich.	$83,808.00
V. M. Gettins, of Toledo Ohio	$73,334.00
and offering $2,000 for the old school building, should his bid be accepted.
Henry J. Speiker Co. Toledo, Ohio	$95,962.00
J. Comte, of Toledo, Ohio	$88,963.00
Dyke Jonkman Construction Co., Holland Mich.	$74,939.00
and offering $900.00 for old building, should his bid be accepted.

One of the very high bidders offered $500.00 for the old building, no record was kept of this as the bid was so high that it was out of consideration.

The following bids were received for plumbing and drainage:

Jones-Kinn Eng. Co., Lima, Ohio	$ 8,062.00
The Bryan Plumbing & Heating Co. of Bryan O	$ 8,526.00
The Samuel A. Esswein Heating & Plumbing Co. of Columbus, Ohio	$ 7,496.00
Carry & Hall, of Defiance, Ohio	$10,000.00

The following bids were received for heating and ventalation, the system being the so-called Split System of steam heating:

Jones-Kinn Eng. Co. of Lima, Ohio	$13,590.00
The Bryan Plumbing & Heating C., of Bryan O.	$18,765.00
The Samuel A. Esswein Heating & Plumbing, Co. of Columbus, Ohio	$14,980.00
Cary & Hall of Defiance, Ohio	$20,000.00
The Lige Heating & Ventilating Co. of Auburn, Ind.	$15,333.00

The American Warming & Ventilating Co. of Toledo, O. filed a bid of $7403.00 for heating by the Hot Blast (hot air furnace) System. This bid was without automatic control, automatic control is an absolute necessity and would increase this to about $8,600.00.

Based upon careful investigation and the experience of others the Board of Education can not recommend the Hot Air Furnace, or Hot Blast System for the new schoolhouse and upon the best information obtainable, believes that District should not consider such a system of heating. They believe that by far the best results can be obtained by using the Split System, which though the cost may be more in the initial installation means for greater economy in fuel and up-keep. By this system steam radiators are placed under the windows, or in cold corners of large rooms and hot air is also forced into the rooms being warmed by passing over steam heated coils. Which also provides and insures a room reasonably tempered by the radiators in event of any accident to the forced air system.

From these it is readily seen that the low bids are as follows:

V. M. Gettins, General Contractor	$73,334.00
Jones-Kinn Eng. Co. heating & ventilating	$13,590.00
The Esswein Heating & Plumbing Co. plumbing & drainage	$ 7,496.00
A total of	$94,420.00

To meet this the District has on hand the proceeds of the sale of the bonds of last July plus premium of $700.00 thereon and interest accrued on these funds in the bank, amounting to $77,200.00 and Gettins'

ches, towers, etc, etc. But when a man of moderate means plans, having strick economy in view, he plans for living room, dining room, kitchen, bath room and the necessary chambers for sleeping purposes.

The Board has followed the latter course in planning for the new schoolhouse. The plans include absolutely nothing but those things which are absolutely required as indictated by the best of modern experience in schoolhouse planning. And in making the present plans they have been so trimmed down to absolute necessity, save only for providing a very moderately reasonable space for future growth, but which it would be false economy to ignore, the Board can offer nothing less in the way of a schoolhouse other than contemplated by the plans and specifications upon which these bids were made, and being the same schoolhouse for which plans were on exhibition at the time the $75,000 bond issue was approved.

Could the schoolhouse have been built immediately and upon the market for materials and labor that obtained May 1st, 1916, the Board is satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the $75,000.00 then provided would have built the schoolhouse and have provided mederatley well for its equipment.

Until the bonds should be sold no one knew what amount of money was available for the purpose and acting upon the best advice obtainable in financial circles, (it being feared that any delay might result in serious disappointment as to the funds to be realized on the sale) the bonds were sold and resulted in a fund of $75,700.00. This amount has been in the treasury and on deposit in savings account, and the $75,000 of bonds have been drawing interest since July 11, 1916.

There has been no unnecessary delay in getting this matter to a conclusion. First, the general plan of the school building had to be submitted to the State Board of Education for its approval. There was some delay at this point owing to the serious illness, and later his necessary vacation, of the member of the State Board who alone passes these matters, a matter entirely beyond the control of our Board of Education and of every one else. As soon as the plans had received the approval of the State Board, specifications for all details were worked out (it had been folly to have done this work, prior to being first approved by the State Board, for no one could foresee what changes might then be required). While the Board of Education has at all times had absolute confidence in Mr. Stophlet the architect, the Board deemed it wise for the protection of the District that the building plans be submitted to an expert for investigation, criticism, or approval. Mr. Barnum, of Cleveland, Ohio and expert in these matters, of national reputation, was consutled and just prior to this the building plans and specifications were finally approved by the State Board of Education.

In passing upon the plans and specifications both the State Board of Education and Mr. Barnum have taken occasion to say that the building is model in every particular.

The conditions under which the bids were made allowed the Board only ten days in which to accept or reject them. The power of expending money in this matter lying wholly and absolutely in the qualified voters of the District and not in the Board, and no bids being within the appropriation, there was but one course left open for the Board to pursue.

The written agreement of the lowest two bidders on each of the three classes was immediately obtained, to give the District until the 17th day of January, 1917, in which to accept or reject their bids. This was a considerable concession on the part of these bidders in view of the utterly unsettled condition of the material market. Thereupon the Board immediately called a meeting of the District for its action on this proposition, January, 15th, being the earliest reasonable time and within the extension of the time for consideration of the bids.

If an additional loan of $20,000.00 is granted, it will only provide for the building of the schoolhouse, with no provision for its equipment. But, by using the present furnishings of the present central and East Branch buildings, together with the money to be obtained from the sale of the East and North Branch school properties, the Board believes that very little additional money will have to be provided by the District for equipment for some time to come. However that may be, when that question comes no large sum will be required, and this is a matter which does not require immediate attention or expenditure.

Inasmuch as no School District can lawfully issue bonds to run more than fifteen years, and as the $75,000.00 bond issue, authorized last April, will have finally matured and been paid January 1st, 1931, the recommendation for the time of payment of this additional $20,000.00 is full fifteen years, which matures the principal one year after the final payment of the $75,000.00 issue. Under this arrangement as the maturity of the principal of the $20.000.00 approaches, it is in the power of the District then to meet this payment by refunding, or issuing new bonds covering the $20,000.00 with maturities scattered through the succeeding fifteen years, as the District may then decide is best. This leaves nothing but the interest upon the $20,000.00 to be paid during the next fourteen years. The Board has recommended that the rate of interest be four and one-half per cent, which means $900.00 per year. Now let us see what a loan of this kind will cost. The assessed valuation of this School District is nearly $2,000,000.00 (being $1,821,450.00) that a valuation of $2,000,000.00 is taken as the basis of computation. Applying the above annual interest charge of $900.00 to this valuation means a tax of a shade under 5c. per $100.00 of taxable valuation, for the next fourteen years And when the time comes, should the District deem its best to pay the entire $20,000.00 in the fifteenth year, that tax would be as nearly as can be sated $10.00 per $1,000.00 of assesed valuation, or $1.00 per $100.00 of assessed valuation, plus the above few cents for the interest that will come due with the principal.

Meetings of the District, such as are called for the 15th, are often called "elections" they are properly nothing of the kind. The meeting is simply a meeting of the District at which the question of borrowing or not borrowing this sum of money will be submitted, the only requirement being that the vote upon the question shall be by ballot, and that not less than two hours shall be allowed for the taking the ballot. On former occasions when the proposition was to raise a much larger sum of money, it was deemed best to allow a full day for all voters to have an opportunity to express their wishes in the matter, hence the reason for calling those meetings "election". At the coming meeting, however, the time for balloting will not be less than two hours and will be extended as much longer as may be necessary for all voters to express their wish by their ballot. And by calling it for a shorter time than all day, it is hoped the voters of the District can be assembled at one time, that full opportunity for complete discussion of this question may be afforded them, and which could not be obtained in an all day meeting.

The Board in this article have set forth fully and in detail all questions which have occurred to its members which might arise in considering this proposition. At the coming meeting, or at any intervening time, the members of the Board will be very glad indeed to extend all information and answer all questions which can be required. It is the earnest desire of every member of the Board that the proposition be thoroughly understood and that the will of the District shall control.

To all who know the course of the markets for labor and for all materials entered into a building such as contemplated, to all who will inquire and inform themselves, it must be self-evident and beyond controversy, that the reasons for the need of this additional money is due to the phenomenal and unprecedented rise in the selling price of labor and material since May 1st last, and to that alone, a condition that could be foreseen and calculated upon by no one. However, in determing the question now before the District, we have this advantage, that responsible bids are now in and if authorized by the District, contracts for the construction of this building will be entered into by your Board within forty-eight hours after your coming District meeting, which puts additional rises in the market for labor and material beyond harm to your enterprises. In other words, in dealing with the present figures we are dealing with established facts and not with estimates based upon a fluctuating market. But delays are dangerous.

We believe that if the voters of the District will take pains to be informed upon present and past market conditions, that they will be driven to the following conclusions, that the present war will continue for many months to come, with its effect upon the cost of labor and materials; that when peace does come the termenduous demand both for labor and material will continue to hold prices up for a long time; that under these conditions it is to be expected that labor and material cost will continue to advance steadily in the future as in the past. And with these things being so, to delay the building of this schoolhouse will mean its much greater cost later, and that it must be built in the near future is ineviable. That it is false economy to delay the completion of this building for any material time, during which the District must pay interest on per cent $75,000.00 of idle money is self evident, especially when there is no hope for better conditions.

It seems to the Board so plain a business proposition, that good business judgement requires this expenditure, that there can be no reasonable and intelligent counter-opinion if the voters of the District will only take home all the facts in the case.

Epitomized it is this, a new schoolhouse is absolutely necessary, the old one can be used no longer without serious danger to the health of the children to say nothing of its many serious defects. The District has borrowed $75,000.00 and is paying interest upon it. Will it borrow the comparatively small amount that is absolutely necessary, and complete the enterprise, or will it defer it indefinitely and continue to pay interest upon the large sum of money which can be used for no other than building purposes?

A Timely Suggestion.

Prior to Jan 1st we made partial purchase of our seasons requirement of farm machinery. Last week we were advised from several leading manufacturers that all prices were withdrawn and new prices would be made that would be about 20 per cent higher.

We suggest this:—

Buy your farm machinery early, get it home early then you KNOW you will have it to assist in raising the highest priced farm products you ever raised.

It is not a matter of selling goods but that of getting material. Don't wait for the salesman to call but place your orders at once and get your requirements from the first shipments as the latter shipments may be delayed and cost more.

"THE CRISIS"

A picturization of the stirring events before and during the Civil war as related in Winston Churchill's American novel, "The Crisis," is to be seen at the Bradley soon.

This story was dramatized for the legitimate stage a few years ago and has had a strong appeal to the reading public ever since the first copy of the book came from the press.

In its screen form "The Crisis" is a moving, patriotic picture and is developed in a series of scenes and interesting incidents. The battle scenes are spectacular; historical events in the stirring history of the early '60s are faithfully reproduced, and there is a charming love story, which wends its romantic way throughout the storm and stress of the war of the rebellion.

Many of the pictures are as magnificent in proportion and wealth of detail as similar scenes in "The Birth of a Nation." "The Crisis" has much historical value and should be of educational aid to all Americans in placing firmly in the memory the unusual events of the Civil war.

"The Crisis" is the first super-Photoplay to be presented in Tecumseh which carries a special stage setting. A special orchestra is also carried which adds greatly to the presentation of this magnificent production.

"The Crisis" will be seen at the Bradley Opera House the latter part of this month, undoubtly Saturday, January 27th, as that is the only open date the company has at this writing.

Lloyd Heesen and Chas. Williamson left Thursday morning for Detroit on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith of Grand Rapids are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Waring.

H. T. Dunn is reported as improving finely, and hopes to return to his home in the near future.

HIGH-GRADE BACONS CAN'T BE CHEAP.

First because there are so many pigs that have to be rejected They are too large, or too fat or too lean.

Then a high grade Bacon goes thru more processes than others.

And the processes are more expensive, too.

But it's all worth while.

And high grade Bacon, like ours, isn't dearer than the others, if it does cost more per lb

Really, it's the most economical Bacon a family can use.

Get it here and get it right

HUGH DIAMOND DELIGHTS HIS HEARERS.

Hugh Diamond the Scotch humorist from Cleveland, O., was the attraction at the Presbyterian church Thursday evening. This was Mr. Diamond's second appearance before a Tecumseh audience, having been heard a year ago when he responded to a toast at the Presbyterian Men's Banquet. So delighted with him were the men, that when this present course was being planned he easily won a place for himself on the course.

Mr. Diamond is just an ordinary Scothman who tells things in his own humorous way driving home his points with a good story. He sang many songs including Scotch songs and had a peculiar way of stopping in the middle of his song to tell the audience something that occurred to him in reference close of his lecture he was called back to the song or its application. At the for more.

A splendid house greeted Mr. Diamond.

Corns Peel Right Off With "Gets-It"

2 Drops, and the Corn is a "Goner!"

When you've got to walk on the sides of your shoe to get away from those awful corn-pains, there's only one common-sense thing to do.

Use "Gets-It" Your Corns Won't Swell in Water. Besides, They'll Shrivel, Loosen and Peel Off!

Put 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It" on the corn right away. Pain and inflammation will disappear, the corn will begin to shrivel from that instant—then it loosens and falls right off.

There's no other corn-remover in the world that acts like "Gets-It." No new discovery has been made in corn-removers since "Gets-It" was born. Don't forget that fact. "Gets-It" does away forever with the use of salves that irritate, bandages that make a bundle of your toe, plasters that half do the work, knives and scissors that draw blood. Use "Gets-It"—no more digging or cutting.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

SENATOR STONE

He Is Probably Solon Tom Lawson Meant.

MR. TOM LAWSON IS HALTED

But Those Who Read Probably Know Whom He Meant.

WASHINGTON — Tom Lawson started to loosen his feelings toward the lawmakers of the nation and got this, far, presumably referring to Senator Stone:

"I came to Washington to aid in an honest investigation, only to have hell lambasted out of me as soon as congress convened. Promptly when the senate met, the leather lunged, sewer mouthed, old blatherskite——"

At this point Mr. Lawson was abruptly stopped.

HOLY GREEK SYNOD PROTESTS BLOCKADE

Appel Sent to Heads of Great World Churches.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Holy Synod of Greece has appealed against the allied blockade of Greece, which it says threatens "the death of an entire people by starvation."

The appeal, which is declared to be without political significance, is addressed to the Holy Synod of Russia, the Pope at Rome and the Archbishop of Canterbury—heads of the great state churches of Europe.

The blockade ordered to force King Constantine to accede to the entente demands is denounced as "an inhuman and horrible measure of extermination against old men, women and children whom the belligerent armies and fleets are under obligation not to harm."

NOTHING AGAINST VOPICKA

State Department Says No Nation Has Filed Complaints.

WASHINGTON — Officials of the statement department made it clear that no charges have been preferred here by Germany or any other country reflecting personally on Chares J. Vopicka of Chicago, United States minister to Roumania. It was pointed out that while Mr. Vopicka or any other diplomatic officer may find himself persona non grata to a government he may still be persona grata to his own government.

Newspaper reports have been received that Mr. Vopicka has been asked by the German authorities to leave Roumania on the ground of unneutral conduct.

ASKS GIRARD TO EXPLAIN

"Dove of Peace" Allusion Stirs Administration.

WASHINGTON — The report by the Overseas News agency that Ambassador Gerard at a public welcome back to Germany had said that "never since the beginning of the war have the relations between the United States and Germany been so cordial as now," were inquired into officially by the state department through a cable to the ambassador personally.

Officials in making this announcement refused to add any comment except that they wished to know exactly what he had said.

A Word F[illegible]used Man.

Is it not time [illegible] had a square deal?

Years ago—not so many—our children spoke to and of us as "papa" and "mamma," as case and gender might be. Now we have dignified "mamma" into "mother," but poor "papa" is robbed of even that small dignity. He's just "daddy."—Life.

REAR ADMIRAL KNIGHT

He Soon Will Be Made a Full Admiral, Is Report.

It is reported that Admiral Knight, who is to be succeeded as head of the Naval War college by Captain W. S. Simms, will be made a full admiral and assigned to command of the Asiatic squadron.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR.

Wednesday, Jan. 3.—In Roumania the Teutonic allies have gained another considerable success in the capture in northern Dobrudja of the towns of Matchin and Jijila, on the eastern bank of the Danube, opposite the important town of Braila, forcing the Russians to a point just south of the Danube, where the river bends and separates Dobrudja from Bessarabia.

At several points in the center of the lines in northern Wallachia the Russians and Roumanians are tenaciously fighting to hold them back, and according to Petrograd, in the region southwest of Fokshani and near the river Rimnik, the Teutonic allies were defeated.

Thursday, Jan. 4.—Dobrudja has been cleared of Russian and Roumanian defenders with the exception of Russian rear guards, who occupy a narrow strip of land leading toward Galatz. About 1,000 prisoners and ten machine guns were captured in the taking of Matchin and Jipila.

The capture by Russian forces on the Roumanian front of 600 prisoners, three cannon and sixteen machine guns, together with some mine throwers and bomb mortars, is announced.

Friday, Jan. 5.—The Russian bridgehead position before Braila was pierced by Teutonic troops, the war office announces. Four Roumanian towns were captured and 1,400 prisoners brought in.

Russian troops began an attack on German positions on the northern part of the Russo-Galician front, north of Friedrichstadt. Four Russian attacks near Dvinsk were repulsed.

Saturday, Jan. 6.—British troops entered German trenches near Arras and penetrated to the third line, damaging defenses. Elsewhere on the French front there was artillery fighting.

Russian troops advanced on the Riga front and took 272 prisoners and booty.

Roumanian forces again were driven back. German big guns are bombarding Galatz after the capture of Braila.

Turkish forces repulsed 10,000 British troops who attack Tigris positions in the Kut region.

Sunday, Jan. 7.—Although the Teutonic allies have made further advances in Roumania, both eastward from the mountain region and northward from Wallachia into Moldavia, the Russians and Roumanians at various points gave battle and at several places have met with success.

Between Fokshani and Fundeni the Russians made a strong attack over a front of about fifteen miles. They gained ground near Obilechti, says the German war office, but elsewhere were repulsed with heavy casualties. The Petrograd official communication, however, says the Russians re-established their former position near Kapatuno, northwest of Fokshani, made an advance in the vicinity of Raspitza lake, and in a surprise attack captured trenches to the northwest of the Oituz valley.

Admission is made by Petrograd that the Russians and Roumanians on the upper reaches of the Suchitza river retired before the advancing invaders.

EL PASO, TEXAS — Parral, Chihuahua, was occupied by Carranza forces under General Francisco Murguia, a message received by Carranza Consul Bravo here stated. The Villa forces who occupied Parral fled to the mountains.

DENVER — Members of the Colorado federation of the German Alliance pledged $7,000 for the aid of war sufferers in East Prussia at a meeting here.

Young and Inexperienced.

"I can't say, my dear, except that I was a foolish little slip of a girl when he proposed, and I accepted him."—Detroit Free Press.

FREIGHTER SINKS U-BOAT

Crew of American Steamship Tell of Encounter.

BOSTON — An account of the ramming of a German submarine mine-layer outside the harbor of St. Nazaire, France, by the British freight steamer Arrina, bound for this port, and the subsequent destruction of the crippled submarine by a French patrol-boat, was brought here by members of the crew of the American steamship Alaskan.

Paris.—General Hubert Lyautey, the minister of war in the new French cabinet, arrived in Paris after a voyage full of incidents from Morocco, where he was French resident general. A LETTER FROM MRS. I. S. HAMILTON

The following taken from a letter just received by Mrs G. R. Gillespie will be of interest to the many friends of Mrs. I. S Hamilton for many years a resident here:

Lucas, Wash , Jan. 19, 1917.

Mrs. Gillespie,

Dear Friend:

I wish I might write with a more steady hand. I have a long time, or since June, 1915, been hoping that I could recover the use of my right hand. I have gained on using it a little but in a very slow manner.

At that time I was called to my telephone by a neighbor who said a fearful electric storm was aiming toward my house from the southeast, for me to disconnect my telephone. I attempted it, but too late. The lightning hit. My right hand was on the transmitter. The shock felled me to the floor. The inside works of the 'phone were melted and run together.

Someone whose 'phone escaped tried to call me. Getting no answer, they came and found me unconscious on the floor. They then succeeded in getting a doctor here (none nearer than Goldendale, 25 miles away). He came in an auto and brought my brother with him. They said it was a mystery that my house was not burned.

I was helpless. I have not recovered. It effected my right side, I can walk about now with a crutch but am extremely nervous and I have to stay alone

Please excuse me for writing so much. I wish I could see you and talk to you, but now my hand is all played out. Yours with best wishes,

Mrs. I S Hamilton.

REV. WALTER E. BURNETT LEAVES PITTSBURG

The following is a reprint taken from a bulletin issued by the Franklin Street M. E church of Pittsburg and sent to C. F. Patterson by Rev. Walter Everett Burnett and refers to his transfer to the Foundry M. E. church of Washington, D C.

"A special meeting of the Official Board was held last Wednesday evening to receive the report of our pulpit committee The committee reported that for several weeks the officials of the Foundry Methodist Episcopal church of Washington, D C, have been making overtures to our pastor looking toward his transfer to Washington."

"Our pastor's name had been suggested to the Foundry Church committee by Bishop John W. Hamilton, who was instrumental in originally bringing Mr Burnett from Michigan to the Bellevue church, and then transferred him, from the Bellevue church to the Franklin street church. In an explanatory and very gracious letter, the Bishop disclaimed any knowledge that our pastor had consented to remain with this church through the present year. He also informed our committee that Mr Burnett had definitely declined to consider a personal move at this time. The Washington committee, however, had concluded, after two visits here, that our pastor was eminently fitted to carry on the work at the Foundry church and was not willing to accept Mr Burnett's refusal."

"Bishop Hamilton then advised them to send representatives directly to the pulpit committ e of the Franklin street church and lay the urgency of the Foundry church situation before our officials. They did so and a committee was in conference with the pulpit committee of this church on the evening of December 20th At this conference the pulpit committee of the Franklin street church agreed to release Mr Burnett as soon as a satisfactory man could be found for our own church."

"At last Wednesday evening's meeting the pulpit committee presented the report of the matters outlined above, whereupon the official board ratified the action of the pulpit committee, in consenting to our pastor's release as soon as a qualified minister could be found for our own church

"The pulpit committee is today visiting in the east and will confer with prospective pastors in New York City, Poughkeepsie and Boston. It is the purpose of the Official Board, acting at present through the Pulpit Committee, to secure a minister whose record will guarantee the highest degree of success in the work of the Franklin-street Church The Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church is the most important Methodist Church in Washington and its standing makes its minister a national figure and gives to him a nation-wide hearing."

BOTTLE DRIFTS 6,600 MILES.

Determines Currents Off South American Coast.

Seattle, Wash.—After drifting 6,600 miles in the south Pacific a bottle containing a position report from the steamship Eureka of Seattle thrown overboard off the Peruvian coast by Captain J. B. Guptill, the vessel's master, Feb. 9, 1915, was found March 1, 1916, on the beach at Tamasua, Yasawa group, Fiji islands.

There has been a difference of opinion among mariners as to the set of the current off the coast of South America, and the finding of the message is of great value, as it determines the direction of the flow of ocean water in that part of the world.

Plans for better roads in Sangamon county will be discussed at a meeting of the township road overseers to be held the latter part of this month.

The Sunday closing law will be enforced in Granite City, it was announced by Mayor Steel. Owners of fifty saloons were warned of the order.

Following the discovery of a case of smallpox at the Genesee county infirmary, ninety aged inmates were vaccinated and the institution quarantined.

FAMILY REUNITED.

Children Long Separated by the Civil War Meet.

SEARCH BEGUN BY BROTHER.

Bushwhackers Raided Home, Killed Parents and Drove Children Into Woods—Adopted in Different Homes, Survivors Drifted Apart—Meeting Between Sisters and Brother Pathetic.

Clarinda, Ia.—A tragedy of the civil war which resulted in the separation of three children of a Missouri family was recalled recently by the reunion of the three children who had been separated during the long period, too young at the time to maintain a correspondence, and it was only after much effort and correspondence that the members of the family were enabled to meet and hold a reunion after so long a separation.

Living near Laclede, Mo., was a family named Deer. Bushwhackers raided their home, killed the parents and drove the children into the woods, where they passed a night in terror.

The children were Mary Deer, eight years old; Addie Deer, six years old, and a brother two years old. Upon the girl of eight years devolved the task of keeping the others with her and to vainly try to console them. Speaking of the terrifying incidents of the night, Mary, now Mrs. Mary Rahn of this city, told how the baby boy cried to be taken to his mother.

In the morning the children made their way to Laclede, where they were found nearly dead from exposure and fright and crying bitterly. A man who chanced to run across the children was so filled with pity that he took them in charge, fed them and cared for them for several days until he had succeeded in locating all three in homes, into which they were finally adopted.

Thus torn apart, the children did not again hear from each other. Mary spent her entire girlhood as a nurse girl in a family where there were several children, and from them she managed to learn to read and write. She was taken to Illinois, where she married. Addie Deer was taken with the brother to Crete, Neb., where the girl married and where the boy grew to manhood and where he still resides.

Addie married and lost her husband. She was married a second time to a Mr. Downing, owner of a large ranch near Glenwood Springs, Colo.

Some time ago the brother began a search for his sisters. It was an apparently hopeless task, but by perseverance, much correspondence and long range inquiry he managed to find them, and all held a reunion at the home of Mrs. Downing in Colorado.

Mrs. Rahn soon after her marriage moved from Illinois to this county. She is now a widow, sixty years of age. The meeting between the sisters and brother was pathetic despite the fact that a separation of over fifty years had obviously tended to break down the feeling of family relationship.

WAR AFFECTS WATER TOO.

No Soda Ash to Soften City's Drinking Supply.

Columbus, O.—Hard water will be the best the filtration plant can furnish consumers the rest of the winter unless something is done to increase the available supply of soda ash, one of the chief chemicals used in the softening process.

Superintendent O'Shaughnessy of the Columbus water plant said that soda ash could not be had at any price owing to inability of railroads to furnish adequate transportation facilities; also the Barberton plants, where the city's supply of soda ash is obtained, have been handicapped during the last few weeks because of a shortage of fuel.

No soda ash has been used at the filtration plant for several days. Since the war began soda ash has advanced $44 a ton. Water can be softened to a certain degree by lime, but soda ash must be added to get the desired softness.

WAR ON CATS SAVES GAME.

Good Hunting In New Jersey Since Feline Slaughter Started.

Trenton, N. J.—A report of the New Jersey fish and game commission recently issued states that the wholesale extermination of cats in Burlington county during the 1915 epidemic of foot and mouth disease has resulted in sportsmen finding Burlington among the best hunting grounds in the state.

Game animals and birds are more plentiful in the county than for years and scores of hunters have repeatedly bagged their legal limit of ten rabbits; also quails, pheasants and squirrels. It is held that the chief factor in the increase in game animals and birds as well as song birds in that county was the warfare on cats by both hunters and farmers. Sportsmen found hundreds of prowling homeless cats in the woods and fields preying upon native birds and animals and killed them.

Newspaper on Fig Leaves.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—Because of the high cost of paper and the failure of subscribers to pay up, Luther McQueston, publisher of the Mountain Echo at Boulder creek, printed an edition of his weekly on fig leaves. The edition consists of five dried leaves pinned together with a twig and printed on both sides and contains news items, classified and legal advertising and an editorial in which McQueston sets forth his reasons for "returning to first principles for print paper."

MUSKRATS CUT MEAT PRICE.

Serve as Substitute in Many Families of Moderate Means in New Jersey.

Alloway, N. J.—Muskrats are cutting the high cost of living in this region. With the price of meats flitting the high spots, there is an unprecedented demand for their carcasses, commonly known as "water rabbits."

Trappers, who this season are securing an average of nearly $1 each for muskrat pelts, are adding considerable extra revenue to their usual season's profits by selling the meat to villagers and to outside buyers. It is estimated that an average of 3,000 "water rabbits" are disposed of every week in Salem alone, where they serve as a substitute for meat in many families of moderate means.

CHASING A COYOTE IN AUTO EXCITING SPORT

Hound, Sighting Game, Leaps Over Mud Shield and Lands Twenty Feet Ahead of Car.

Larned, Kan.—An exciting coyote chase in automobiles took place near Hanston. The party consisted of Bill Hann, John Hann, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Seaman and William Warring. They went in two cars and took three greyhounds in each car.

Mr. Warring says that auto polo is mild compared with the way those two cars chased across the prairie, ravines and bluffs after coyotes. He said that his speedometer registered forty miles one time when he dared to glance at it, and he was afraid to look again.

They were going along between twenty and thirty miles an hour at the time they started up the first coyote, and when the biggest hound in Mr. Warring's car sighted the wolf it leaped over the wind shield and hood and landed running twenty feet ahead of the car. The coyote was a big fellow, but the hounds finally brought him down, the big hound throwing him, while the others pinned him down.

While chasing the first coyote the other auto nearly ran over another one, which leaped up almost from under the wheels of the car. The men shot at it several times, wounding it, but because of the speed of the bounding car could get but poor aim. It finally ran into a hole and was fished out with a wire. Messrs. Hann and Seaman have killed many coyotes.

WIRELESS PLANT IN BED.

Annapolis Middie Receives Messages Through Springs.

Annapolis, Md.—That a series of bedsprings connected by wires makes a satisfactory condenser for a wireless station has been proved by Midshipman J. B. Dow of the fourth class at the Naval academy.

Dow has connected the springs of his own and his two roommates' beds and attached them to a receiver. He has been able to pick up messages sent from and to the Arlington station. He has found out that it is not necessary to open the windows of his room in Bancroft hall or even to remove the bedding.

It is stated that Dow's use of the bedsprings to receive radio messages may be of considerable practical value.

Waits Fifty Years For Father's Gift.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—It cost fifty years of waiting and a lawsuit against his stepmother, but John W. Baker of New Bloomfield recently received $525, turned over to his mother by his father in 1867. It was to be his on his father's death, but Mrs. Rebecca T. Baker, stepmother and administratrix, had withheld payment.

GIRL SUES DRUGGIST FOR LOSS OF HER HAIR

New York.—The efficacy of peroxide as a hair bleach was brought into question when Katie Gottdank, sixteen years old, asked $5,000 damages from Julius Kalish, incorporated, druggist. In trying to transform herself into a blond she lost part of her hair, and what she had left became brick red. She exhibited a shoe box full of hair. Miss Gottdank's grandfather, Carl Weisshar, a barber, was not allowed to qualify as an expert.

TEACHING INDIANS IS THIS WOMAN'S HOBBY

Mrs. Molineux Declares Red Man Can Be Led, but Will Not Be Driven.

Salt Lake City.—To have mothered one or possibly two tiny lives through the strenuous days of early infancy is a task that most women consider plenty, but Mrs. Elizabeth Molineux, until recently a teacher in the United States Indian service, has the distinction of having mothered a whole tribe of Piute Indians, and claims the satisfaction of having raised them, old and young, from a condition bordering on the squalid state where they consider cleanliness next to godliness and, one and all, are heartily in favor of both.

Mrs. Molineux recently resigned her post as teacher on the Shivwits reservation in southern Utah and is in Salt Lake resting preparatory to going to Ketchikan, Alaska, to take charge of the Episcopal church's mission school there. She is a guest at the home of the Right Rev. Paul Jones, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Utah, while here.

Indians have become a hobby with this diminutive little Scotchwoman. She speaks their languages and in her eight years of service with the Indian department has been intimately associated with the trials and tribulations that beset poor Lo on his native heath. Mrs. Molineux is an ardent churchwoman and attributes her success in dealing with Indians to the fact that by blending religious teachings with the "three R's" she has dismissed distrust of her from the minds of her charges and has always been regarded by them more in the light of a friend than a teacher. She declared the Indian mind to be susceptible to teaching if properly approached, but adds that he can be led but will not be driven.

Governor Sleeper has appointed Rev. Ralph Duff, a Congregational minister, private secretary.

The Briar Patch school, Volinia township, Cass county, has been closed following an outbreak of scarlet fever.

Vido Hanson, fourteen years old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hanson, of Pere Marquette township, Mason county, was shot while hunting.

Fred L. Woodworth, of Caseville, Huron county, was named as dairy and food commissioner for the term ending December 31, 1918.

Addison A. Keiser, of Ludington, Mason county, was made a member of the Michigan railroad commission, for the term ending January 15, 1923.

University of Michigan naval reserves were mustered into the United States naval volunteers. Many distinguished naval officers were present.

He Made It "We."

It was the night of Lincoln's first election, and the little frame home of the Lincolns in Springfield, Ill., was filled with friends and relatives, all eager for some news of the election results. The reports for awhile had been coming in early and favorable, but after awhile they began to be less promising. Mrs. Lincoln had been by her husband's side all day. He now insisted that she retire. The crowd gradually began to dwindle. Then came the news that New York had been carried, followed immediately by the report that Lincoln had carried the country. The rest of the story would be better told by the great man himself.

"When there was no longer any doubt or reason for doubt," he related afterward, "I went up to my bedroom and found my wife asleep. I gently touched her shoulder and said, 'Mary!' She made no answer. I spoke again, a little louder, saying, 'Mary, Mary, we are elected!'"—Brooklyn Eagle.

Slang at Annapolis.

For certain slang expressions used by cadets I am indebted to a member of the corps. From this future admiral I learn that a "bird" or "wazzo" is a man or boy; that a "pap sheet" is a report covering delinquencies and that to "hit the pap" is to be reported for delinquency; that "steam" is marine engineering and to be "bilged for juice" is to fail in examinations in electrical engineering, to get an "unsat" or unsatisfactory mark, or even a "zip" or "swabo," which is a zero.

Cadets do not escort girls to dances, but "drag" them; a girl is a "drag," and a "heavy drag" or "brick" is an unattractive girl who must be taken to a dance. A "sleuth" or "jimmylegs" is a night watchman, and to be "ragged" is to be caught. Mess hall waiters are sometimes called "mokes," while at other times the names of certain exalted dignitaries of the navy department or of the academy are applied to them.—Julian Street in Collier's Weekly.

Why We Walk In Our Sleep.

Roughly speaking, the mind is divided into two parts. One controls the actions of which we are conscious and the other those which we do unconsciously. In the latter class are such things as walking and breathing. So that the second part of the mind works equally as well whether its owner is asleep or awake. When the body or the other part of the mind is tired to the point of exhaustion or is harried by pain the second part is liable to be unduly active. Then it is that we are most likely to walk or talk in our sleep and have "nightmares." And be-

During Queen Victoria's reign eight parliaments lasted over five years and two over six years. The property qualifications considerably restrict the right of suffrage, and only about one-sixth of the people are voters. BIDWELL STOCK FARM

Tecumseh, Michigan

A most modern and thoroughly equipped Shorthorn breeding establishment is being completed by the Bidwell Stock Farm at Tecumseh, Michigan.

The main barn is frame 174x38 and is built on deep concrete foundations, as are all sheds and other buildings. A concrete driveway extends the entire length, with a row of boxstalls on both sides. Feed rooms, calf pens and stanchion stalls are conveniently located. The feed rooms have concrete floors and all box-stalls and stanchion stalls are paved with Ayer & Lord Tie Company's Interior Creosoted Wood Blocks.

Louden equipment has been used throughout for barn and sheds, cupolas, windows, ventilating system, feed and litter carriers, tracks, hay carriers, etc., and each stall has an automatic drinking bowl, supplying fresh running water to every animal. The second story mow contains storage space for about 300 tons of loose hay.

Two 118 Ton McClure "Saginaw" Redwood silos stand in the open feed yard and are connected with the barn by a covered feed-carrier track. A covered litter carrier track extends from one end of the barn to a covered concrete manure pit 100 feet distant. The feed yard, open to the South is enclosed by the barn on one side, and on two sides by a shed, 174 x90x26ft deep. Four open bull yards occupy the space on the opposite side of the barn.

The barns, sheds, silos and farm house make an attractive color scheme, being roofed with the McClure Company's green crushed slate surfaceed asphalt shingles and are painted with McClure Quality red paint and white trim.

A pressure water system is used and city elecrtic service supplies current for lighting and power.

This modern, sanitary equipment is devoted exclusively to the production of registered Shorthorns, tuberculin tested. This breed of cattle has been an important factor in the successful operation of this farm by three generations of Bidwells, covering a period of more than 60 years.

HOW TO MINIMIZE YOUR FEET

William Fox, producer of "A Daughter of The Gods," Reveals to All Women a Million Dollar Recipe.

To William Fox, belongs to the credit for the discovery which might enable the unfortunately flat footed woman to remodel her pedal extremities after the Trilby display by the great Madame DuBarry. This secret aid to feminine beauty shall remain a secret no longer; there is nothing selfish or meager about Mr. Fox, the man who spent one million dollars making the exquisite film fantasy ever produced.

Mr. Fox was entertaining Sakaroff, the distinguished Russian artist at luncheon and beaming over the enthusiastic praise bestowed by the friend of the great Verestchagin on the entire production of "A Daughter of the Gods". The artist particularly "raved" over the mermaid scenes 'I have never beheld such beautiful faces, such perfectly rounded, delicately shaped women before, and withal so athletic, like your adorable rm [illegible], with her dainty and aristocratic hands and te

MARRIED

MISS LYDIA WINNIFRED HALL AND ELMER H. GREEN

Popular Young Couple United in Marriage Wednesday Evening Jan. 17, 1917

AT THE HOME OF HER MOTHER, MRS. EMILIE HALL

The home of Mrs. Emilie Hall in Brownville was the scene of a very pretty wedding when her daughter Winnifred was united in marriage to Elmer H. Green. At 6 o'clock to the strains of Mendelsohn's wedding march played by Miss Ivalene Lamkin, the bridal couple accompanied by Miss Frances Peters as maid of honor and Ernest Church as best man, took their places under a trellis work of smilax where Rev. Geo W. Jennings pronounced the words that made these two one, using the beautiful ring service.

The bride was gowned in white embroidered organdie and carried a shower bouquet of white roses, the maid of honor wore white and carried yellow roses. After congratulations a three course supper was served.

The bridal table in the dining room was prettily decorated with smilax. A large basket filled with narcissus was placed in the center with strands of smilax and butterflies leading to the corners of the table where candelabra with yellow candles diffused a soft light.

Small tables were scattered through the rooms for the guests. The supper was served by the Misses Janetta Hall, Georgiania Conklin, Marjorie Field, Gertrude Turner and Mildred Courtad, Mrs. Mattis catering.

The presents of cut glass, silver, china, furniture and money attested to the high esteem in which the bridal pair were held. A new home a gift from his parents and furnished by her grandmother Mrs. Coryell, just four miles south of town, awaits their return from their wedding trip.

Those from out of town who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Smith of Adrian, Mr and Mrs Barber of New York State. Mr and Mrs. Pearl Ash and children of Britton.

Mr and Mrs Green were both graduates of Tecumseh high school in the class of 1914 and have a host of friends who extend congratulations.

The bridal couple attended by Miss Harriett Wiggins of Tecumseh and Carl Van Etten a brother of the bride, took their places under a bower of ever green where Rev. W J. Gray of Onsted pronounced the words that made these two one using the ring service. The ring was carried in the heart of a white rose, by Sylvia a sister of the bride

The bride's dress was of white silk with pearl trimmings, she carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore a white crepe de chene and carried red roses. After congratulations and best wishes refreshments were served.

A MASTER TOUCH IN THE MOVIES

Before such a presentation as that given "The Crisis," all the criticisms of the movies lose their force. It is a remarkable assembly of appeals to the many sides of the human mind.

The physical representation of Lincoln was startling in its faithfulness, the resemblence being perfect, and in the action of the play the actor approached most satisfactorily the proper pose and expression. This similarity was also present in the make-up of the impatient Gen. Sherman, and even extended to other historical characters presented in the play.

But greater than in the faithfulness of these details was the power of the play on the affections, on the sympathies and on the repugnant. It reproduces the very atmosphere of the days "before the war,"—in the bitter quarrels between the two high-minded gentlemen of the play, in the scene of the slave auction, and in the beautiful relations between the favored house slaves and their beloved masters and mistresses. In the final farwell given the dying judge by his freed negro servant there was such [illegible]ieving adoration that makes the sorrow of the other mourners, deep and natural and unrestrained as it was, appear mild in comparison.

Throughout the development of the other characters in the play there is given a powerful suggestion of the high feeling that existed between the opposing factions on the question, al so naturally expressed that the spectator could only accord respect that the spectator could only accord respect to their beliefs, although differing with the holdres.

All the phases of slavery were introduced the distressing, the tolerable and the admirable; war was reenacted, and that more naturally than usually obtains in such attempts, and southern society, in dress and manners and functions, again "moved, lived and had its being."

Such a presentation deserves special mention. In its class it is an event, the same as the appearance of a Booth or Bernhardt in the legitimate.

With such possibilities in appealing to the emotions as feature "The Crisis" the future of the moving picture is one of promising pleasure and education.

—An Editorial taken from "The Jackson Patriot of Saturday December 23rd.. "The Crisis" played a three day engagement in Jackson, matinee and night each day to such enormous buisness that they are rebooked for three days more. The Majestic, the largest theatre in Jackson was packed for every performance.

"The Crisis" will be at the Bradley Opera House, next Wednesday, January 24th, with a special matinee at 2:15 p. m. and will be presented exactly as in all of the large cities, including a special orchestra. Don't miss your only chance of seeing "America's Greatest American Play", said by many who have seen it to be the equal and some scenes better than "The Birth of a Nation."

Corns Peel Right Off With "Gets-It"

2 Drops, and the Corn is a "Goner!"

When you've got to walk on the sides of your shoe to get away from those awful corn-pains, there's only one common-sense thing to do.

Use "Gets-It." Your Corns Won't Swell in Water. Besides, They'll Shrivel, Loosen and Peel Off!

Put 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It" on the corn right away. Pain and inflammation will disappear, the corn will begin to shrivel from that instant—then it loosens and falls right off. There's no other corn-remover in the world that acts like "Gets-It." No new discovery has been made in corn-removers since "Gets-It" was born. Don't forget that fact. "Gets-It" does away forever with the use of salves that irritate, bandages that make a bundle of your toe, plasters that half do the work, knives and scissors that draw blood. Use "Gets-It"—no more digging or cutting. "Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold in Tecumseh and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by D. J. Pulver. adv.

KEPT HIS MONEY IN A PAPER BAG

They tell a story of Josh Billings who himself spun many a yarn.

It seems that each night for thirty years Josh kept his money in a paper bag under the impression that no one would ever think of looking in a common paper bag for money.

But on the forty-second night of the thirty-first year a really inquisitive burglar took the bag with the biggest wad of green-backs it ever held.

And—just so—those people who think they have a safe hiding place for their money may sooner or later come to grief.

Announcement made by the traffic department of the D. T. & I. Railroad shows that the dairy business in this locality is growing at a remarkably rapid rate, and the owners of cows are finding the sale of cream and milk very profitable and much less work than the old method of churning at home. So rapidly has the milk and cream business developed on the D. T. & I. that it has more than doubled in one years' time and thousands of gallons are being carried daily from the smaller towns to various creameries and for city consumption. Additional facilities have been provided by the road for handling a greatly increased production of dairy products this year.

"THE CRISIS"

America's Greatest American Story
By WINSTON CHURCHILL

The greatest story ever written of our own Civil War. "The Crisis" as a story, is among the best of our literature.

"The Crisis," as a photo-spectacle is so true, so deeply human in its portrayal of courage, patriotism, love, honor, self-sacrifice and Americanism, that the cheap exhibitions supposed to arouse these dormant sentiments when the band plays "America" and the hero runs up the flag, are tawdry in comparison.

Never Put a Croupy Child to Bed Without Giving a Dose of Foley's Honey and Tar

Mothers know it stops croup because it cuts the thick choking mucus, clears the throat of phlegm, stops the hoarse metallic cough, eases the difficult breathing, then quiet sleep.

Mrs. T. Neurauer, Eau Claire, Wis., writes: "Foleys Honey and Tar completely cured my boy of a very severe attack of croup. We know from experience that it is a wonderful remedy for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough."

FOUND IMAGE IN CAVE.

Crude Stone Idol Probably Antedates Indian Mound Builders.

Madisonville, Ky.—E. L. Littlepage of the Morton Gap country brought to this place recently a stone image that is a curiosity and probably of historic value.

Mr. Littlepage found it at the edge of a cave on a high elevation in North Christian county, Ky., while investigating some prospective oil land belonging to him. The cave is located in a wild and broken section of land uncultivated and but thinly inhabited.

The image is rudely carved out of a tough, ferrous sandstone. It is about six inches in height and is well preserved, except for a slight injury on one side of its head and slight weathering of one arm. The figure is in a sitting position, with its legs doubled under its body and arms extended in front, with hands resting on its knees.

The image is evidently a relic of an idol worshiping people and antedates any old Indian relic found in various Indian mounds in western Kentucky.

WIDOW SAVES TREES.

Turns Commissioners From Those Planted by Her Husband.

St. Cloud, Mich.—"Woodman, spare that tree; touch not a single bough."

Thus quoted Mrs. Mary Spicer, widow, as she pleaded for the preservation of trees planted by her husband, long dead.

It was three years ago that Mrs. Spicer started her battle with city officials over the maintenance of this arborian inheritance. She was called upon to enter another skirmish the other day when sidewalk bids were opened, in which provision was to have been made for the removal of the trees.

Mrs. Spicer's "pets" fringe a lot on which her modest little home is built. "Wait until I am gone and you may remove them," she told the city commissioners, who took her words to heart. When sidewalk bids were opened there were proposed contracts on other jobs, but on the Widow Spicer's property—not a word.

EIGHTY, WANTS HEART BALM

Woman Is Deaf, Has Lost Right Eye and Is a Little Lame.

Utica, N. Y.—Mrs. Almira Kingsbury is just a little on the right side of eighty years old. She is rather deaf. She has lost her right eye and her left thumb. Besides she is a little lame.

But she took the stand to testify that Robert Roberts of Trenton, seventy-six years old and a farmer, had been so smitten with her charms at first sight that he urged her to marry him. Then she said he broke troth and she sued for breach of promise. They met at an employment agency where he sought a housekeeper.

Judge Hazard told Mrs. Kingsbury's attorney, "I think your client is clearly entitled to about 6 cents." However, the case was held open for more evidence.

Merle Stillwell, of South Haven, a teamster and an inmate of Kalamazoo State hospital, was killed when a wagon he was driving ran over his body in a runaway accident.

William M. Smith, of St. Johns, Clinton county, was appointed as a member of the industrial accident board, to succeed Claude S. Carney, for the term ending August 31, 1922.

Cassius R. Benton, of Northville, Wayne county, was nominated as a member of the state board of tax commissioners, for the term ending the first Wednesday in January, 1923.

Phelps Ferris, of Big Rapids, Mecosta county, is the member of the Mackinac Island state park commission, to succeed Edwin O. Wood, resigned, for the term ending June 21, 1923.

The car ferry Chief Wawatam, which was fast in the ice one mile out from Mackinaw City has been released. She had on board 300 passengers including 200 teachers, bound north.

Officers of Berrien county are searching for fourteen year old Duane Clauser of St. Joseph, who it is alleged was kidnaped and taken to Chicago by a former roomer at the lad's home.

Rev. Nelson, Cedar Rapids, pastor of First Christian church, has received a unanimous call from the ministers' committee and church board of the First Church of Christ in Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. Charles E. Mahan, wife of the former treasurer of Kalkaska county, who disappeared about three weeks ago and whose accounts were later found to be $4,500 short, believes her husband is dead.

Thomas Murdock, a retired farmer of Corunna, has a broken neck. An Ann Arbor railway box car in which he was standing was struck by a moving car and he was thrown to the floor. He may recover, doctors say.

The Teal farm, three miles southeast of Mason, has been transferred to the state of Michigan for $16,500, to be used as a state game refuge. There are 196 acres in the farm, which will be for the propagation of ring-necked pheasants.

The board of supervisors, by a vote of 32 to 4, decided that the charges of misconduct and immorality brought against Robert London, superintendent of the farm of Kent county by Sheriff Berry, had not been substantiated.

FIND HEART ON RIGHT SIDE, LIVER ON LEFT

Body of William King Described as Left Handed Both Inside and Out.

St. Louis.—The body of William King, which has been preserved for twenty months, is described by an anatomist as "left handed, both inside and out," according to a statement made public at the City hospital.

In May, 1915, King, who was thirty-five years old, applied at the hospital for treatment. He said he was a laborer and had lived most of his life in Wisconsin. He was suffering from typhoid fever.

When asked who should be notified in case of his death King said: "Don't worry about that. Just cut me up and examine my body. There's something wrong with me besides the fever."

He died a few days later. When surgeons made an examination of the body they found one of the most abnormal cases in the history of surgery. The heart was on the right side, the liver on the left; the appendix was on the left side and the spleen on the right. The stomach was turned around completely. On the left lung were three lobes; the right lung had but two. The left kidney was larger and lower than the right one.

DANCE TO WIRELESS MUSIC MILES AWAY

Phonograph at High Bridge, N. Y., Heard All Over House at Morristown, N. J.

New York.—What was declared to be the world's first wireless dance was held at 29 Morris avenue, Morristown, N. J., the home of Theodore E. Gaty, vice president of the Fidelity and Casualty Insurance company of this city. His two sons—John P. and Theodore E. Gaty, Jr., the latter home from Cornell for the Christmas holidays—got up a dance and throughout the evening the seven or eight couples who had been invited danced to music that was played on a phonograph in High Bridge, at the northern end of Manhattan, about forty miles away from Morristown by air line.

Mr. Gaty and his sons are enthusiastic amateurs in the science of radio telephony and telegraphy. A friend, P. F. Godley of Montclair, who is a radio engineer, made use of the Lee de Forest audion detector and the sound amplifier invented by Dr. Edwin H. Armstrong of Columbia, the inventions which made transcontinental telephony possible, as well as a wireless telephone message to Honolulu. Mr. Godley, who is only twenty-seven years old, adapted the two devices to amateur use and attached them to a phonograph horn in the Gaty home.

The phonograph that furnished the dance music was played in the High Bridge plant of the De Forest Radio Telephone and Telegraph company, and the musical sound waves were received by the amateur receiver over Mr. Gaty's house.

When the faint sounds, which, coming from the receiver, could scarcely be detected by the ear, passed through the combined sound amplifiers and then through the megaphone they could be heard all over the house.

BANK INSURES ASSETS FOR TWENTY-FOUR HOURS

New York.—A $90,000,000 protective insurance policy for twenty-four hours was purchased by the Chatham and Phoenix National bank to cover the transfer of its assets from 192 Broadway to the new offices of the bank in the Singer building, a distance of about a block and a half. About $16,000,000 in cash was carried to the new quarters in an armored car, with armed guards at the front and rear, and there were guards stationed every fifty feet between the two buildings.

Steel Maker is Declared to Be No Patriot.

DAMAGING FIGURES GIVEN

Not One in Eleven Shells Made for U. S. Government Acceptable, in Charge—All British Output is Perfect—Greed Jeopardizes Entire Preparedness Program.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Sweeping charges of inefficiency, lack of patriotism and attempts to hold up the government were made against American munition manufacturers by Secretary Daniels.

Charles M. Schwab and the Bethlehem Steel company are mentioned specifically in the secretary's statement. Figures are given showing that less than 9 per cent of a lot of fourteen-inch shells submitted by the Bethlehem company were acceptable to the naval examiners. On the other hand, all the shells submitted by Hadfields, Limited, the English concern, to which a large contract has just been awarded, met the American requirements.

Secretary Daniels says he would not make these figures public did he not believe the facts were already known abroad.

"Profits, Not Patriotism."

After praising some of the manufacturers for willingness to assume their share in the program of preparedness, Mr. Daniels says:

"That other large manufacturers of war materials should persist in extracting the last penny of profit from our urgent necessity gives a certain color to the arguments of those who believe that preparedness is a synonym for profits and not partiotism."

It is stated officially that the explosion was caused by a fire such as any factory would be subject to.

The central point of the upheaval was in the heart of a suburban town.

BERLIN HINTS AT 3 DRIVES

Germans Believe Allies May Go Through Neutral Countries.

Berlin, Jan. 22.—With the threatened spring offensive of the entente allies soon to be reckoned with, the eyes of Germany are turning towards Holland, Switzerland and Denmark. It is through one of these countries that the attack is expected by many military experts.

The extreme nature of the allied demands in their reply to President Wilson's peace note is regarded in Berlin as indicating a feeling of desperation which might draw other nations into the war.

Unless this is done, the probe may draw along until March 4, and then go under Republican control.

ARMED SHIPS IS AGAIN AN ISSUE

Germany Reported to Be Holding Three Americans.

MEN TAKEN FROM YARROWDALE

United States Has Held That Merchantmen Armed for Defense Are Not Warships — Germany Holds Otherwise—Ambassador Gerard Directed to Make Inquiry.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Direct issue between the German government and the United States on the question of "armed merchant vessels" looms up as a possible result of the raiding activities of German commerce destroyers in the Atlantic. Prompted by unofficial reports that American citizens are held as prisoners of war in Germany, the state department directed Ambassador Gerard at Berlin to make a detailed report on the circumstances at once. A prompt reply is expected from the ambassador.

Reported 3 Americans Held.

The department was informed that among the "prisoners of war" taken to Germany by the British vessel Yarrowdale, were at least three Americans, members of the crew of the captured ship. All of the crew of the Yarrowdale were held as prisoners of war, it was stated, the German government holding that they were taken aboard an armed ship opposing the German naval forces.

Armed Ship Question to Fore.

The situation, however, it causing serious concern to the state department. The armed ship question is still at issue although in abeyance, between this country and Germany. The United States has held since the beginning of the war that placing guns on a merchant vessel for defensive purposes did not destroy the "peaceful merchantman" character of the ship. Germany has taken the position that the arming of a merchantman automatically transforms into an uxiliry cruiser the vessel, and places her crew in the position of belligerents.

Explain Prisoners' Status.

London, Jan. 22.—James W. Gerard, American ambassador at Berlin, has cabled to the state department at Washington a summary of the German admirality's official statement on the detention as war prisoners of neutral sailors aboard armed merchantmen captured by the German naval forces, according to a Berlin press dispatch.

BEER IS SCARCE IN BERLIN

Bottled Beverage Given Only to Men Doing Hard Physical Work.

London, Jan. 22.—Beer is very scarce in Berlin, according to a special dispatch from Amsterdam. Bottled beer is almost unobtainable. The scarcity is due to the small quantity of barley now allotted to the breweries.

Those who go to restaurants to eat or drink receive only a little beer at lunch and dinner. The small quantity of bottled beer remaining is given to men engaged in hard physical work. Because of the extent to which Germans depend upon beer this shortage is very serious.

JIRKA TO BE TAKEN TO IOWA

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 22.—Harold W. WAR TO LAST ANOTHER YEAR

Herbert C. Hoover, Belgian Relief Head, Arrives in U. S.

New York, Jan. 22.—The European war will last at least another year, in the opinion of Herbert C. Hoover, president of the European Belgian Relief commission, who arrived here on the Philadelphia of the American line.

"We are basing our preparations for relief work on the theory that the war will last another year," said Mr. Hoover. "We need $150,000,000 at once to carry on the work. The commission is caring for 1,000,000 Belgians every month and is expending $15,000,000 monthly."

MICHIGAN IS LONE EMPIRE IN ITSELF

Could Use Milkweed to Replace Cotton.

EAST LANSING, Jan. 22.

"It is time Michigan people realized the greatness of the development lying latent in their state," declared Dean R. S. Shaw, head of the department of agriculture at the Michigan Agricultural college, in an interview at East Lansing.

"Michigan could exist as an isolated empire while her people enjoyed all the reasonable comforts and luxuries of life, with the exception of cotton.

"Even in the case of cotton we could get along without the other states, for recent experiments with milkweed fabric have been such that we could develop the manufacture of this to such proportions that we could supply all with milkweed fabric clothing."

BLOW AT TRIAL IMMUNITY

Bill Would Sanction Comment on Defendant Staying Off Stand.

LANSING, Jan. 22.

One pet scheme of the Michigan State Bar association—an amendment to the constitution permitting the counsel for the state to comment on a defendant's failure to testify in his own behalf—has not yet turned up in the legislature, but as legislative committee of the association at its meeting in Lansing before the holidays announced that the proposed amendment would be presented to the solons, it is evpected almost any time.

When it does turn up it is going to be met with open arms to what some of the solons hope will prove an "open grace." Most of the lawyers in house and senate are against the scheme.

McTavish's Compromise.

A canny Scot owned a wonderful badger it was reported no dog could tackle. However, a friend of his had a dog he proposed to back against the badger, and a match was in due course made for £100, to come off in two months' time.

As the time drew near there were rumors that all was not right with the dog, and the Scot's friends were making sure of victory for him.

Imagine their surprise and disgust when they heard that McTavish had accepted £50 as a compromise in lieu of the £100.

"You've been done, Mac," said one of them. "The dog is so mangy and until he could not kill a rat."

"Ah," said McTavish, "I dare say, I dare say, but my badger is deed."—London Globe.

Professor Jesse Reeves of the U. of M. will lecture tonight at the opera house on "Commission Manager Form of City Government." Professor Reeves is brought to Tecumseh by the ladies of the Monday Club under whose auspices he will lecture.

His subject is of growing interest to all and every man in this village who is interested in good government should plan to attend. Many people in our village believe that we should change our form of government to the Commission form. It may be a real live question up to you to decide at some future time so come out and hear Prof. Reeves tonight. He is an acknowledged authority on this question and is sure to interest you.

Each year the Monday Club devote one evening to the gentlemen last year a banquet was given, this year a feast to the mind will be given.

The ladies have invited the Mayor, councilmen, clergy and press of their own town, the city of Adrian and surrounding towns to be present and to occupy seats on the stage. In most cases the invitations have been accepted.

For the past day or two our walks have been a glare of ice, which has made walking a very dangerous task. It is hard to prevent this condition for the "Weather Man" sends the sleet and ice and when the ice once covers the walks it is very hard to remove. Ashes, sawdust or salt if used would help and make it farsafer for the travelling public.

We have noticed one very dangerous place in our travels back and forth on West Chicago street. The Library steps have been so icy that people using them have done so at the risk of a fall and perhaps a broken limb. It appears to us that if salt or sawdust were used on these steps they would be far less dangerous and we are sure it would be much appreciated by the patrons of the Library.

The History of a Book.

Following is the story of the first edition of Fitzgerald's celebrated translation of Omar Khayyam:

The book was issued anonymously and found no buyers. Accordingly the author went to Bernard Quaritch's shop, dropped a heavy parcel of 200 copies of the "Rubaiyat" and said, "Quaritch, I make you a present of these books."

The famous bookseller offered them first at half a crown, then at a shilling, and, again descending, at sixpence, but no buyers came. In despair he reduced the book to a penny and put copies into a box outside his door with a ticket, "All these are 1 penny each." At that price the pamphlet moved. In a few weeks the lot was sold, and in this way one of the finest gems of English literature was dispersed among a not overdiscerning public.

The legend has it that Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Swinburne and Burton were among those who discovered the "hidden treasure in the penny box." Years passed, and the once despised volume rose in the market, and in 1898 Quaritch bought in for £21 a copy which forty years before he had sold for a penny.—London Spectator.

Located the Bodies.

As a means of locating the bodies of four United States soldiers who were accidentally drowned in the Rio Grande recently an unusual experiment was tried and proved successful.

A hat was thrown into the water at the point where the men had last been seen and was followed downstream until, after traveling about five miles from the scene of the accident, it came to an eddy where it moved about slowly for some time. This gave the searchers what they thought might be a clew, and, following a practice frequently used in searching for bodies, a charge of dynamite was exploded at the point where the progress of the hat had ceased. Immediately the bodies came to the surface.

The explanation of the experiment is that the Rio Grande in this region is tortuous and has many eddies. The searchers rightly assumed that the bodies would be carried downstream until they came to an eddy, which in this instance was indicated by the retarded progress of the hat.—St. Louis Republic.

Our First National Road.

The first of our great national roads was the Cumberland road, which ran from the Potomac to the Mississippi. Starting from Cumberland, Md., it ran west through Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois to its terminal point at the Mississippi opposite St. Louis. It was built by the United States government under the supervision of the war department. In order to secure funds for the constant repairs necessary congress passed a bill in 1822 ordering the establishment of turnpikes, with gates and tolls, but President Monroe vetoed the bill on the ground that congress had no power to pass such a sweeping measure of internal improvement. Two years later he signed a somewhat similar bill, and the road received the needed appropriation. The last appropriation was made by congress in 1844. Parts of the old road are still in use.

RIGHTS OF MAN.

The sacred rights of mankind are not to be rummaged for among old parchments or musty records. They are written, as with a sunbeam, in the whole volume of human nature by the hand of divinity itself and can never be erased or obscured by mortal power.—Alexander Hamilton.

Europe's Longest Dam.

The largest dam in Europe is in Spain and is the result of American engineering. It is built across the chasm through which the Noguera Pallaresa river flowed and is situated near the old fortified town of Talarn. Abutting on almost perpendicular cliffs, the dam is constructed of concrete and measures 330 feet in height and 700 feet in length. It forms an artificial lake fifteen miles long and nearly four miles wide. Its object is twofold—production of electric power and for irrigating. The cement used in the construction of the dam was made on the spot from limestone and marl found within a short distance and transported by a temporary railroad.

SOME OLD TECUMSEH BOYS

A letter recieved by John J. Orr from Dr Wm H. Aten of Brooklyn, N. Y. is before us The doctor was a Tecumseh boy in the long ago, and has made many visits to the home town, so long as he had relatives here, but one by one they have passed away

He says, "he has taken the Herald for the last thirty years, and so has kept in touch with the happenings in our town but finds that the names are mostly strange to him so many of the old timers have gone over the Great Divide."

Enclosed in his letter is a clipping from the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, relative to another Tecumseh boy, Dr Lewis E. Meeker, who has made pheonominal progress since leaving Tecumseh He has retired from the presidency of the E. D. Savings Bank which he organized twenty-one years ago and as a family historian for the Meeker family he has gathered much interesting data.

Dr. Meeker was an old school mate of Mr. Orr's who was much pleased to receive the clipping and hope to be in communication soon with the doctor who will soon go to California for an extended visit with relatives.

It must be over 40 years since the Meeker family lived in Tecumseh Will Meeker was in the dry goods business under the firm name Merritt, Meeker & VanCamp and is the only survivor of the firm.

To the older inhabitants of our village, it seems good to hear of the boys and girls who have left Tecumseh for other places, and have made good.

THE 32ND RETURNS FROM THE BORDER

Adrian has been making great preparations for the return of the 32d. Michigan Infantry. The special train bearing the troops was expected to arrive in Adrian, over the Wabash, some time Monday morning, enroute for Detroit where they are to be mustered out of service at Ft. Wayne. A quantity of tobacco, candy, eatables, etc. was to be presented to the boys. A drum corps to furnish music, the station decorated and a committee of Citizens were to welcome them on their return.

Owing to some change in running time, the train did not appear as scheduled but was expected to arrive some time Monday night. Not to be disappointed Adrian people announced that they would be on hand even if they arrived in the middle of the night.

A number of Tecumseh people went over to see the boys pass through but were doomed for a long wait.

THE WEATHER

First it snowed and then it blowed and then it rained and then it friz is about the way the storm raged Sunday and Sunday night in this section.

It is claimed that the storm that has been raging over Northwestern states is the worst in twenty years. Minnesota, Wisconsin and Dakota suffered severely the wind reached a velocity 42 miles an hour and the snow piled up in great drifts.

We were more fortunate here though we thought we had it bad enough when we had the walks to clean.

Bullfighters Afraid of Cows.

Most Spanish bullfighters object to fighting cows. The average toreador is sincerely afraid of a cow. And he has good reason. The cows of the half wild breed used for the arena are much quicker in their movements than are the bulls. Their horns are more pointed and more formidable. They do not lower their heads to the ground, shut their eyes and charge like a locomotive upon the rails, but are alert and ready to follow every movement of their persecutors.—Exchange.

TECUMSEH ELECTRIC CO. EXTEND THEIR LINES

Add about Sixteen Miles of New Service

DEERFIELD WILL BE LIGHTED BY CURRENT FROM TECUMSEH PLANT

For some time back the Tecumseh Electric Company have been working on a new line to Deerfield The work is about completed and will be ready for use about February 1st A new service line has been put in from their plant here to Deerfield, via Holloway, and besides furnishing current to the Village of Deerfield, it will open up a new territory all along the line between Tecumseh and Deerfield. About 50 per cent of the farmers living along the route have already applied for the current

The post lighting system similar to to the one now in use here will be used in Deerfield as well as street lights, 300 and 80 candle power 6.6-10 ampere lights, the same as we are using in Tecumseh, will be used.

A branch office will be maintained in Deerfield for the convenience of the company and a full line of fixtures will be carried. Ed Pritchard is to have charge of this office.

A line owned by the Petersburg Light and Power Co extends from Petersburg to the east corporation line of Deerfield but has not been used because the Petersburg company cannot furnish enough "juice" to supply their needs. A contract has been made with the Tecumseh Electric Co to connect with this line and continue the current into Petersburg. When this is done the Petersburg plant will be discontinued and Tecumseh current used in that village.

When this new extension is in operation it will give the Tecumseh Electric Co. about 40 miles of service outside of Tecumseh. the new line to Deerfield covering about 16 miles

Electric service is proving very popular with the farmer and they are connecting their homes and buildings whenever the service is available. Electric motors are used for innumerable purposes on the farm and this service alone is proving to be quite beneficial to our local company.

LETTER FROM THE BORDER

ElPaso, Texas.
Jan. 15, 1917

Mr. Turner,

Dear Friend:—

Just to tell you that we've only three more days left to stay in this God Forsaken country. We leave Thursday for Ft. Wayne to be mustered out of the service. It will take about three weeks to muster us out and then good-bye to the army.

This life is a very monotonousone but I don't think that any of us will ever regret the trip, not very many would care to come down here again under the same circumstances however. Of course if war were actually declared, we would be the first ones to answer the call.

This morning we had a chance to see some real snow, about an inch fell during the night. It didn't last very long when the sun came up.

Among the many things showed the people of ElPaso by the 32nd, Mich. Boys is the best foot ball team ever seen in the entire southwest. We defeated everything that came along and we are the "Champs of the Border." Eleven victories and not a defeat is our record. Every game was a most decisive win, the 31st. Mich. boys gave us the best battle of any. A big silver loving cup was our prize. I was a member of the team.

Tuesday was pay day and as usual ElPaso belonged to the soldiers for several days.

Will close, wishing you a happy and most prosperous year, As ever, ever,

Very sincerely
Russell A. Blesing,
Co. B. 32nd. Mich. Inf.
ElPaso, Texas.

P. S. Am sending some snap shots. They are labeled on the backs.

GOOD NEWS TO HOMESEEKERS

On February 8 the Department of the interior will open for settlement under the general homestead and reclamation laws upwards of 4,000 acres of choice land in the Belle Fourche valley of South Dakota This comprises the fifth unit on this project thus far opened and is located within a few miles of town and railroad adjoining lands already developed by settlers. The usual residence of three years is required and to all bona fide settlers the Reclamation Service will furnish water for irrigation purposes at actual cost without interest on deferred payments covering 20 years.

The Government regards this opening as exceptionally good, and because of present economic conditions and the high cost of living it is thought there will be a large influx of homeseekers As an evidence of the increased values which Federal development has given to lands in this section it is stated that lands homesteaded in 1912 and valued at that time at $25 per acre have been sold recently at $75 and $125 per acre

Detailed information concerning the Belle Fourche opening may be obtained by addressing The Settlement Agent U. S. Reclamation Service, Chicago, Illinois

LETTER FROM THE SOUTHLAND

Interesting Letter from A. W. Mills

We publish below a few extracts from a letter just received from A. W. Mills who sends his subscription for the Herald to be sent him in St Petersburg, Fla.

724 Kinyon st, St Petersburg, Fla.
January 14, '17

Mr. Turner:

I forgot to subscribe for the Herald before I came away so enclose $1.00 and till further notice, please send to above address.

Wife and I arrived Tuesday and before night were settled here We are within about two blocks of your father and sister and about the same distance from Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bradley.

I find great changes have taken place here since my last visit twelve years ago this winter. Then it was a village of 1600 to 1800. Now the size depends upon whom you interrogate. If you ask a real estate agent it is from 35,000 to 50,000 and others will tell you all the way down to 10,000. My judgment after many inquiries is that they have from 15,000 to 18,000 of real settlers.

It surely has made a fine growth and the class of buildings erected are fine and would be a great credit to any city.

Most of the weather so far has been fine. The day we came the mercury stood about 70 The second night we had a fine rain followed by cold Friday morning the mercury stood at 35 to 40 according to location and heavy overcoats were seen everywhere. Yesterday it was much warmer and today Wife and I are sitting between two open windows writing and the mercury stands at 75 in the shade.

We are both feeling pretty well After church we took dinner down town and Wife said, "Let's walk home," which we did and it's more than a mile That's a longer walk than Wife has taken for months, so you see she is improving.

Yours truly,
A. W. Mills.

"A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS"

The Million Dollar Picture Beautiful

Coming to the Bradley opera house, Tecumseh, Wednesday and Thursday, February 7 and 8, with a matinee on Thursday, the picture that is creating a furore throughout the entire country, now having a phenomenal run at the Lyric theatre, New York city—William Fox's million dollar picture, "A Daughter of the Gods," with Annette Kellerman, the picture beautiful

Dazzling the eye, astounding the mind, stirring the heart and overshadowing anything previously conceived or executed by master-minds of moving pictures. A generation in advance of all other film achievements.

Gorgeous and glittering fairyland, wondrously appealing and fascinating blending of the Arabian Nights and "Never Never Land" for the children. Completely absorbing and amazing the imagination of the grown ups. Sublime musical score by Robert Hood Bowers, interpreted by an augmented symphony orchestra of 20 players.

The only million dollar picture ever made!

MRS. JOHN CADMUS

Mrs. Charity Cadmus was born in Macon July 28, 1833, being the eldest of a family of seven, four of whom survive her.

In 1853 she was united in marriage to John Cadmus and at that time was a much envied bride as Mr Cadmus had a horse and buggy belonging to his stepfather Simeon Davidson to take his wife to their new home on the farm where she passed away Oxen at that time being the motive power with but few exceptions.

To this union nine children were born six of whom are left to mourn their loss. Albert and Agnes twins who live at home, Sydney, John, and Mrs John McIntyre and Mrs. Rose of Toledo She was a life long member of the Methodist in Ridgeway Always she kept cheerful and happy, and it was the delight of her friends and neighbors to visit with her for she was full of reminiscences of the long ago.

Slowly and calmly life ebbed away and when the final call came, she passed to her reward and her children while they miss her, cannot regret that she is resting from her labors

DEARBORN CONCERT CO.

The Dearborn Concert Co., the fifth number on the course which is being put on by the Men's class of the Presbeterian church was given last night in the auditorium of the church

The company was composed of three lady entertainers who gave an evening of music and reading. The troupe consisted of Miss Smallwood, Miss Hoover and Miss Brunner who not only sang a number of chorus pieces but played a variety of musical instruments such as piano, American harp, Irish harp, violin, guitar, mandolin, French horn and appeared in many different costumes such as Dutch, Greek, Japanese, Hawaiian and Irish.

Miss Brunner as a whistler delighted her audience and her imitation of the mocking bird was unusually clever.

The church was well filled. The next number on the course will be given on the evening of February 2.

MONDAY CLUB

Regular meeting of the Monday Club was held Monday afternoon. After the business session, the leader of the afternoon being absent, the president called on Mrs. H. S. Bredow who gave a very interesting paper on "Contemporary Authors: Edyth Wharton, Ellen Glasgow and Jean Stratton Porter."

"THE CRISIS"

In bringing the wonderful production of Winston Churchill's "The Crisis" to Tecumseh, the local management of the Bradley does so knowing that he is offering his patrons one of the best entertainments on the American stage today, both from an educational as well as entertaining point of view Everywhere that "The Crisis" has been presented nothing but words of praise have been heard as the result of this wonderful production. Endorsed everywhere by clergymen, professors, the leading newspapers and in fact by everyone fortunate enough to have seen it.

What part of American history is more intensely interesting than that which covers the period of Lincoln's administration? During this period the story of "The Crisis" was laid

"The Crisis" is not a war story. It is one of the real stories of the war, replete with love, patriotism and self sacrifice, yet portraying the horrors of war only to show the serious import of a people's hatred Many of the scenes are as magnificent in proportions and wealth of detail as similar scenes in "The Birth of a Nation" The battle scenes showing the seize and capture of Vicksburg by Grant and the bombardment of Porter's fleet are some of the most thrilling views ever photographed The entire national guard of Mississippi appears in the play, and all the encounters of history on land and water necessary to the exact reproduction of Winston Churchill's story have been enacted on the ground where they took place when the nation was in the throes of its struggle against slavery.

"The Crisis" will be presented at the Bradley Opera House next Wednesday, Jan 24th, for two performances, a matinee at 2:15 p. m. and an evening performance at 8:15. A special musical score prepared for "The Crisis" will be rendered by a special orchestra Every American, man, woman or child, should make a special effort to see this wonderful American photo-drama known everywhere as America's Greatest American Story.

Mothers know it stops croup because it cuts the thick choking mucus, clears the throat of phlegm, stops the hoarse metallic cough, eases the difficult breathing, then quiet sleep.

AFTER NINE YEARS

Tecumseh Testimony Remains Unshaken

Time is the best test of truth. Here is a Tecumseh story that has stood the test of time. It is a story with a point which will come straight home to many of us.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte and Pottawatamie streets, Tecumseh, says: "The first notice I had that my kidneys were disordered was a sharp, shooting pain across my back. At that time I was sick in bed with malaria. The nurse I had attending me said I ought to try Doan's Kidney Pills; I got a box and began their use. The pains left, the kidney secretions became natural and the gravel stones that I had been passing for years, disappeared." (Statement given December 10, 1906.)

Still Uses Doan's

On July 27, 1916, Mrs. Stevenson said: "I still use and recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I could not get along without them when my back or kidneys trouble me, for they never fail to give relief."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Stevenson has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv

D'AOSTA AND WIFE

Separated Royal Pair Who May Rule Greece.

Photos by American Press Association.

If plans of the entente allies as given in a dispatch from Rome are carried out members of the royal house of Italy may rule Greece. It is reported there that the allies intend to depose King Constantine and have offered the throne to the Duke d'Aosta, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel. His wife, who was Princess Elena of Orleans, has been separated from the duke for some time, but they may occupy the Grecian throne together.

Writing Made Easy.

Steadily the roads that lead to success in literature are being made easier. A good many people who would like to write fiction, but have shrunk from the labor of finding equivalents for "said," will welcome a list of substitutes for the necessary little word published in the Boston Writer. There are no less than 386 fairly satisfactory variations, from "acceded" to "yowled." The prisoner at the bar no longer need say that he is innocent. He can babble it or bawl it or blurt it or breathe it, to use but one letter of the alphabet. The vindictive district attorney can bark his questions, the lawyer for the defense can boom his objections, the spectators may either bristle their indignant protest or blubber their sympathy. But the merit of such a list is not simply that it facilitates the management of dialogue. A thorough study of the 385 substitutes for "said" will easily suggest the plot and the characterization that must precede dialogue. The letter C in itself is a compendium of plot and a gallery of portraits. Given somebody who cachinnates, another who chuckles, another who coos, another who croons, another who challenges, another who confesses and minor characters who cry, croak, commune, and cut in, and it is plain that we have a scenario almost ready made.—New York Post.

Wonderful Carving.

Dr. Peter Oliver, who lived in England during the early part of the eighteenth century, tells of seeing a carved cherry stone which would be a wonder even in this age of fine tools and fine workmanship. The stone was one from a common cherry, and upon it were carved the heads of 124 popes, kings, queens, emperors, saints, etc. Small as they must necessarily have been, it is announced on the authority of Professor Oliver that with a good glass the heads of the popes and kings could readily be distinguished from those of the queens and saints by their miters and crowns. The gentleman who brought this little wonder to England purchased it in Prussia, allowing the original owner £5,000 for his treasure. Think of it—$25,000 for a cherry seed!

The General's Orderly

A Story of the Pan-European War

By ALAN HINSDALE

During a lull in the fighting in Flanders, when the Germans were making their onslaught upon the allies, Hans Schrieber, who had been called to the colors from his father's farm in Westphalia, had marched away as a private and had through the killing off of officers and his own bravery been promoted to be captain, was one morning ordered before the colonel of his regiment.

"Captain," said his commander, "it has been reported to me that you have been caught fraternizing with a private soldier in your company. Possibly you may not know the customs of the army in this respect. In the army there can be no familiarity whatever between an officer and a soldier. This war has necessitated the promotion of many men from the ranks, which is contrary to the spirit of the military forces, and doubtless there are officers who do not realize the great gulf that lies between them and their former companions. I have sent for you to warn you that if you are again caught conversing familiarly with Fritz Oelrich you will be court martialed, and the punishment will be severe."

"But, colonel," the captain protested, "Private Oelrich is from the same locality as I. He is very young and requires a friend to cheer him, to prevent his falling a victim to homesickness, which will impair the value of any soldier. I feel it to be my duty"—

"Your duty is to obey orders. Go, and do not again let me hear any more of this breach of military discipline."

The colonel turned away from Captain Schrieber, who saluted and went back to his command. The very next day the Germans made a drive in which the captain again distinguished himself. One of the field officers of his regiment was killed, and his colonel was about to recommend him for promotion to be major when it was reported that young Oelrich had been slightly wounded and the captain, forgetting that his position was at the head of his company, had carried the private to the rear in his arms.

The colonel, as he considered this act of gallantry on the one hand and dereliction of duty on the other, knit his brows. Had it not been for the necessity of supplying the gaps constantly occurring among the officers he would have made short work of Captain Schrieber, notwithstanding his efficiency as a leader. As it was, he felt compelled to recommend his subordinate for promotion. Indeed, he knew of no other man that he could put in the place of the officer who had been killed in whom he would have confidence.

The necessities of the service and not a yielding to any tenderness he might feel induced the colonel to ignore the report of Schrieber's having carried Fritz Oelrich off the field and to give him a higher command than a single company.

"Captain," he said to Schrieber, "Major Heckler having been killed, you will assume his position and the command of the companies that were intrusted to his care. I shall only add that the higher the rank of an officer the more incumbent it is upon him to remember the gap between him and the men of the ranks whom he commands. The discipline of the army is of the highest order. This cannot be attained or kept up except by the officers being absolute masters of the men."

Captain—now Major—Schrieber saluted, but said nothing and again left his commander without that punishment which he knew except for necessity would have been meted out to him.

A combination of bravery and tenderness has always captivated the world. Major Schrieber the moment a fight opened was a lion; the moment it ended he became a lamb. He went about with the Red Cross workers succoring the wounded and was never known to prefer the case of a German to a Frenchman. It was this that led his comrade officers into a tacit unacknowledged agreement to turn the other way whenever the major's sympathetic nature overcame his sense of duty and he went beyond the limits in expressing that sympathy to a common soldier.

In the case of Fritz Oelrich he never offended openly. Toward Fritz, when others were there to see, he maintained an unapproachable dignity. But unfortunately he had been surprised speaking earnestly to the boy, and on one occasion had taken Fritz's hand in his while speaking words of encouragement and comfort. He did not know how often he had been seen in such position, for those who saw him kept the secret.

There was fighting all this time, and Schrieber's efficiency as a leader was constantly being demonstrated. On a reorganization of a certain force that had been very much depleted he was made colonel of a regiment. Another fight took the general of his brigade, and Colonel Schrieber was put in his place.

When those officers and soldiers who understood their general's weakness heard that he had made Fritz Oelrich, who was still a private, his orderly there was a feeling of dread among them. They feared that Schrieber's affection for the boy might place him in a position to bring his honors tumbling about his head. If Oelrich had but enough of the qualities of a soldier to promote him to the lowest rank of officer there would be no danger. There was no military law to prevent a general from hobnobbing with a lieutenant, but there was a very stringent law against his having anything of a social nature with a private. When men have confidence in a leader they are anxious that that leader should continue to command them. General Schrieber's troops were fearful that his partiality for young Oelrich would end in his being degraded and they obliged to accept another untried commander.

Their fears were not groundless. One day General Wenz, commanding one of the brigades, went to General Schrieber's headquarters—they were at the time in a farmhouse—for the purpose of arranging with him certain features of an attack that was to be made upon the enemy. He found Schrieber, bending over his orderly, who was lying on a bed in an adjoining room in a high fever. The visitor called Schrieber out for consultation, but found it impossible to secure his attention.

"I presume, general," he said to Schrieber, "that my brigade and yours are to advance upon the enemy as soon as the artillery has demolished their defenses."

"What enemy?" asked Schrieber.

"What enemy? Why, the French, of course. There's no other enemy in our front. The British are far north of us."

"Oh!" was the only reply. A groan from the rear room carried the general there. When he returned he said:

"Please excuse me, general. My orderly is very ill. He comes from the same region as I, and we came to the war together, both in the ranks. I feel it obligatory on me to take especial care of him."

"Certainly. The orders are that we shall advance under a curtain of fire"—

Another groan. General Schrieber heard it and did not hear the speaker. The visitor arose impatiently. "I perceive, general," he said, "that your mind is centered upon your orderly, and the army must wait till the orderly recovers."

This was said with bitter tone, and the man who said it clanked out of the house.

The next morning the two brigades were drawn up in mass and at a given signal advanced to capture a French position that had been pounded by the German heavy guns. The attacking force became confused and were driven back.

"General," said Wenz savagely, "this comes of my being unable to get your attention yesterday when I called to talk over this attack. Your mind was on a single private soldier instead of on the welfare of the fatherland."

"Let us try again," Schrieber replied. And, moving out to the front of the line, he seized a standard from a color bearer and led a charge that was not only successful, but was maintained.

Soon after this fight Schrieber received an order from the general commanding the division to send Private Oelrich back to his regiment. It was evident to the recipient that General Wenz had reported the failure of his effort to secure his colleague's attention when he had called to arrange the details of the coming attack and the cause. Had not Schrieber by his gallantry accomplished the object of the charge he would not have got off so lightly.

Nothing was heard of the stumbling block in the way of General Schrieber's efficiency till the Germans began their attempt to reduce Verdun. Then after one of the terrible and unsuccessful charges in mass made on the French works the general was seen by his division commander leaning over Private Oelrich, who was lying on the ground in a pool of his own blood.

"General Schrieber, what are you doing here? Your brigade is forming with others to make another attack. We are expected to take the position if we have to try a hundred times."

There was no response except a moan. The man addressed quite likely did not know that he was addressed. The other was about to pour forth some stinging rebuke when he saw Schrieber fall lifeless across the body before him. He had been struck by the fragment of a shell.

When the Red Cross workers went over the battlefield they took up the bodies of General Schrieber and Private Oelrich together and carried them to the rear. Their identification tags were examined, and it was found that they hailed from the same place in Westphalia. Their bodies were sent home addressed to the same person, an old farmer, the father of General Schrieber.

The neighbors got together to do the last honors to the dead. Some troops in the neighborhood were detailed to carry the general's body to the grave and fire the customary salute over it. Old Schrieber took the commander of the escort aside and told him that Fritz was to be buried with the general and it would please the family if his body could go on the same gun carriage. The officer said no, but when the old man whispered a few words in his ear he consented.

The funeral cortege attracted more than usual attention, not only on account of the high military rank of General Schrieber, but because the secret of his attachment to his comrade was known to many of his fellow citizens who lined the route over which it passed, some of them shedding tears.

The two bodies were lowered into the same grave, and a volley was fired over them, and the mourners dispersed. In due time a headstone was placed over them, on which was inscribed, "In Memory of Carl Schrieber and Gretchen, His Wife."

SUPPOSED RAIDER SIGHTED

German Sea Rover Believed to Be Flying U. S. Flag.

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 22.—The captain of the Brazilian steamer Maranhao, says a report from Pernambuco, encountered off the coast of Rio del Norte (northern Brazil) two cargo vessels, accompanied by two auxiliary ships, all flying the American flag, but supposed to be German.

The crews landed at Pernambuco, numbering in all 237 men, included 170 British, fifty-four French and thirteen Americans. The commander of one of the ships which fell victim to the raider said that the Germans at first made use of the British flag. It is now understood that nine vessels were captured by the Germans.

NO VICTORY, IS WILSON'S PEACE PLEA

Epochal Appeal Is Made to Senate.

MONROE PLAN FOR ALL

U. S. Urged to Join In League to Prevent War.

ALL PRECEDENT IS BROKEN

Speech That Startles Nation Outlines Terms on Which America Should Insist—Freedom of Sea and Limitation of Armaments Essential—Polish Autonomy Demanded—Declares Entente Has Submitted Terms Which Are Definite—Denies Traditions of Republic Would Be Violated.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Wilson, in a personal address to the senate, laid down the question of whether the United States shall depart from its traditional policy of isolation and no entangling alliances and take part in a world league to preserve peace after the war.

Shattering precedent of more than a century, the President, regarding the senate with its treaty-making power as his counselor in foreign affairs, explained why he believed the time had come for the world to know America's position, and discussed the underlying causes on which he believes a permanent peace of the world can be maintained.

While President Wilson was speaking directly to the senators, after the manner of Washington, Madison and Adams, his address was in the hands of all foreign governments or on its way to them.

Solemn Scene in Senate.

No such history-making event with such far-reaching possibilities to the United States probably ever had been seen in the senate chamber.

In the background of the fundamental proposition of whether the United States should alter the foreign policy, laid down by Washington and carried out by a long list of Presidents, was the possibility that out of some such league of nations might come a way to end the present war.

Text of Speech.

The full text of the President's speech follows:

"Gentlemen of the senate: On the 18th of December last I addressed an identic note to the governments of the nations now at war, requesting them to state, more definitely than had yet been stated by either group of belligerents, the terms upon which they would deem it possible to make peace. I spoke on behalf of humanity and of the rights of all neutral nations like our own, many of whose most vital interests, the war puts in constant jeopardy.

"The central powers united in a reply which stated merely that they were ready to discuss terms of peace.

"The entente powers have replied much more definitely and have stated in general terms indeed, but with sufficient definiteness to imply details, the arrangements which they deem to be the indispensable conditions of a satisfactory settlement.

"We are that much nearer a definite discussion of the peace which shall end the present war. We are that much nearer the discussion of the international concert which must thereafter hold the world at peace.

Must Prevent Future Wars.

"In every discussion of the peace that must end this war it is taken for granted that that peace must be given by some definite concert of power which will make it virtually impossible that any such catastrophe should ever overwhelm us again. Every lover of mankind, every sane and thoughtful man must take that for granted.

"I have sought this opportunity to address you because I thought that I owed it to you, as the council associated with me in the final determination of our international obligations, to disclose to you, without reserve, the thought and purpose that have been taking form in my mind in regard to the duty of our government in these days to come, when it will be necessary to lay afresh, and upon a new plan, the foundations of peace among nations.

People of United States Must Aid.

"It is inconceivable that the people of the United States should play no part in that great enterprise. To take part in such a service will be the opportunity for which they have sought to prepare themselves by the very principles and purposes of their polity and the approved practices of their government ever since the days when they set up a new nation in the high and honorable hope that it might in all that it was and did show mankind the way to liberty.

"They cannot in honor withhold the service to which they are now about to be challenged. They do not wish to withhold it. But they owe it to themselves and to the other nations of the world to state the conditions under which they will feel free to render it.

Cannot Be Long Postponed.

"That service is nothing less than this—to add their authority and their power, to the authority and force of other nations to guarantee peace and justice throughout the world. Such a settlement cannot now be long postponed. It is right that before it comes this government should frankly formulate the conditions upon which it would feel justified in asking our people to approve its formal and solemn adherence to a league for peace. I am here to attempt to state those conditions.

"The present war must first be ended; but we owe it to candor and to a [illegible] to say that so far as our participation in guarantees of future peace is concerned it makes a great deal of difference in what way and upon what terms it is ended. The treaties and agreements which bring it to an end must embody terms which will create a peace that is worth guaranteeing and preserving, a peace that will win the approval of mankind; not merely a peace that will serve the several interests and immediate aims of the nations engaged.

"We shall have no voice in determining what those terms shall be, but we shall, I feel sure, have a voice in determining whether they shall be made lasting or not by the guarantees of a universal covenant and our judgment upon what is fundamental and essential as a condition precedent to permanency, should be spoken now, not afterward when it may be too late.

"No covenant of co-operative peace that does not include the peoples of the new world can suffice to keep the future safe against war, and yet there is only one sort of peace that the peoples of America could join in guaranteeing.

"The elements of that peace must be elements that engage the confidence and satisfy the principles of the American governments, elements consistent with their political faith and the practical convictions which the peoples of America have done for all embraced and undertaken to defend.

Do Not Make Sure Peace.

"I do not mean to say that any American government would throw any obstacle in the way of any terms of peace the governments now at war might agree upon nor seek to upset them when made, whatever they might be. I only take it for granted that mere terms of peace between the belligerents would not satisfy even the belligerents themselves. Mere agreements may not make peace sure. It will be absolutely necessary that a force be created as a guarantor of the permanency of the settlement so much greater than the force of any nation now engaged or any alliance hitherto formed or projected that no nation, no probable combinations of nations, could face or withstand it. If the peace presently to be made is to endure it must be peace made secure by the organized major force of mankind. The terms of the immediate peace agreed upon will determine whether there is a peace where such guaranty can be secured. The question upon which the whole future peace and policy of the world depends in this:

What is War's Aim?

"Is the present war a struggle for a just and secure peace or only for a new balance of power? If it be only a struggle for a new balance of power, who will guarantee, who can guarantee, the stable equilibrium of the new arrangement? Only a tranquil Europe can be a stable Europe.

"There must be, not a balance of power, but a community of power; not organized rivalries, but an organized common peace:

Have Received Assurances.

"Fortunately, we have received very explicit assurances on this point. The statesmen of both of the groups of nations now arrayed against one another have said, in terms that could not be misinterpreted, that it was no part of the purpose they had in mind to crush their antagonists. But the implications of these assurances may not be equally clear to all—may not be the same on both sides of the water. I think it will be serviceable if I attempt to set forth what we understand them to be.

"They imply first of all that it must be a peace without victory. It is not pleasant to say this. I beg that I may be permitted to put my own interpretation upon it and that it may be understood that no other interpretation was in my thought. I am seeking only to face realities and to face them without soft concealment. Victory would mean peace forced upon the loser, a victor's new terms imposed upon the vanquished. It would be adopted in humiliation, under duress at a tolerable sacrifice, and would leave a sting, a resentment, a bitter memory upon which terms of peace would rest, not permanently, but only as upon quicksand. Only a peace between equals can last; only a peace the very principle of which is equality and a common participation in a common benefit. The right state of mind, the right feeling between nations is as necessary for a lasting peace as is the just settlement of vexed questions of territory or of racial and national allegiance.

Peace Depends Upon All.

"The equality of nations upon which peace must be founded, if it is to last, must be an equality of rights, the guaranties exchanged must neither recognize nor imply a difference between big nations and small, between those that are powerful and those that are weak. Right must be based upon the common strength, not upon the individual strength, of nations upon whose concern peace will depend.

"Equality of territory or of resources there of course cannot be, nor any other sort of equality not gained in the ordinary peaceful and legitimate development of the peoples themselves. But no one asks or expects anything more than an equality of rights. Mankind is looking now for freedom of life, not for equipoises of power.

Must Get People's Consent.

"And there is a deeper thing involved than even equality of right among organized nations. No peace can last, or ought to last, which does not recognize and accept the principle that governments derive all their just powers from the consent of the governed, and that no right anywhere exists to hand peoples about from sovereignty to sovereignty as if they were property. I take it for granted, for instance; if I may venture upon a single example, that statesmen autonomous Poland and that henceforth, inviolable security of life, of worship and of industrial and social development should be guaranteed to all peoples who have lived hitherto under the power of governments devoted to a faith and purpose hostile to their own.

"I speak of this not because of any desire to exalt an abstract political principle which always has been held very dear by those who have sought to build up liberty in America, but for the same reason that I have spoken of the other conditions of peace which seem to me clerly indispensable—because I wish frankly to uncover realities. Any peace which does not recognize and accept this principle will be inevitably upset.

Life Must Be Stable.

"It will not rest upon the affections or the convictions of mankind. The ferment of spirit of whole populations will fight subtly and constantly against it, and all the world will sympathize. The world can be at peace only if its life is stable, and there can be no stability where the will is in rebellion, where there is not tranquility of spirit and a sense of justice and freedom and right.

"So far as practicable, moreover, every great people now struggling toward a full development of its resources, and of its powers should be assured a direct outlet to the great highways of the seas. Where this cannot be done by the cession of territory, it can, no doubt, be done by the neutralization of direct rights of way under the general guarantee which will assure the peace itself.

"With a right comity of arrangement no nation need be shut away from free access to the open paths of the world's commerce.

Sea Paths Must Be Free.

"And the paths of the sea must alike, in law and in fact, be free. The freedom of the seas is the sine qua non of peace, equality and co-operation. No doubt a somewhat radical reconsideration of many of the rules of international practice hitherto sought to be established may be necessary in order to make the seas indeed free and common in practically all circumstances for the use of mankind, but the motive for such changes is convincing and compelling. There can be no trust or intimacy between the peoples of the world without them. The free, constant, unthreatened intercourse of nations is an essential part of the process of peace and of development. It need not be difficult to define or to secure the freedom of the seas, if the governments of the world sincerely desire to come to an agreement concerning it.

"It si a problem closely connected with the limitation of naval armament and the co-operation of the navies of the world in keeping the seas at once free and safe. And the question of limiting naval armaments

Quaker Oats

The Extra-Delicious Vim-Food
Flaked from Queen Oats Only

All the world over Quaker Oats holds first place among oat foods. Oat lovers of a hundred nations send to us to get it. A billion dishes are consumed each year. Nowhere in the world do connoisseurs find any oat food to compare with it.

The reason is this: Quaker Oats is made from queen grains only—just the big, plump, luscious oats. No puny starved grains are included. A bushel of the choicest oats yields only ten pounds of Quaker.

The result is a flavor which has won the world—a flavor which is matchless. Yet these large and luscious flakes cost you no extra price.

Nature stores in oats a wealth of vitality which everybody needs. We want you to know this fascinating vim-food, made as we make it and cooked in our way.

Pettijohn's

Rolled Wheat with 25% Bran Flakes
A Modern Bran Dainty

Every doctor advises bran, as essential to right living. It is Nature's laxative. Everybody every day should eat it. It means better health, better spirits, sunnier days. Without it, our diet of fine food forces folks to drugs.

Pettijohn's is made to meet doctors' requirements. The bran is hidden in flavory flakes of wheat. The food is a morning dainty which everybody likes. Yet it contains 25 per cent tender bran.

The bran is in flake form, which makes it doubly efficient. Ground bran will not do.

Try Pettijohn's one week. Note its delightful effects. Never again will you go back to a branless diet.

Then try Pettijohn's Flour. It is 75 per cent fine patent flour mixed with 25 per cent bran flakes. Use it like Graham flour in any recipe.

"THE CRISIS"

The moving picture show, "The Crisis," was shown at the opera house, Wednesday afternoon and evening and was one of the finest of its kind ever shown in Tecumseh. As an educator in American history it surely was wonderful for no period in our history is so replete with interest and so vital in its results as that covered by the story written by Winston Churchill and brought out on these films.

The greatest man of the age was Abraham Lincoln and his administration when, with a sad heart but determined will, he wrought such great deeds which resulted far better than he dreamed.

In the Southland we see those lifelong friends, Col. Comyn Carvel and Judge Silas Whipple, fighting against fate because of their difference of opinion on the questions of the day, but whom Death brought together at last. Stephen Brice, whose career was watched with such interest by the old Judge and by Lincoln whom he honored above all men and many others whom history has made familiar to us all were here portrayed. But words fail to tell the story as it should be told and we can only say that the entertainment held one's close attention throughout and inspired all with a greater love of country than ever before. A vein of romance runs through the story which culminates in the marriage of Virginia Carvel to Stephen Brice, the once hated Yankee.

The afternoon's entertainment was not as largely attended as it should have been, but the evening brought out a larger crowd. Manager Mark certainly deserves much praise for the many good things he brings to Tecumseh for our entertainment and benefit.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION OF PYTHIAN SISTERS

Held Wednesday Evening—About Eighty in Attendance

About eighty were in the company who assembled at the K. of P. temple Wednesday evening for the public installation ceremony of the Pythian Sisters. Mrs Fred Marsh, the most excellent chief, called the assemblage to order and announced as the opening of the ceremony a piano duet by Mrs. A. B. McLachlin and Miss Hazel Roberts.

After this came the installation at which Mrs. Ray Kemp of Tipton, the grand chief of the state lodge, acted as installing officer with Mrs. Ethel Mathias as grand senior and Mrs. Clara Ziehr as grand manager.

The officers installed were:

M. E. C.—Mrs. Iva Marsh
P. C.—Mrs. Hettie McIntyre
M. E. S.—Mrs. Alta Lidke
M. E. J.—Mrs. Ida Freeman
M. of T.—Mrs. Eva Nemire
M. of R. and C.—Mrs. Ella Davis
M. of F.—Mrs. Edith Smith
P. of T.—Mrs. Lula Everett
G. of O. T.—Mrs. Florence Coller

A beautiful feature of the installation was the entrance of Mrs. Will Westcott as "Flora," driving with white ribbons four little girls, Alice Nemire, Rogena Bell, Rena Marsh and Isabelle McIntyre, who carried a tray draped in smilax on which were crowns of smilax for each of the officers and a bouquet of carnations for the grand chief. The kneeling about the altar in their crowns with the little girls in white with the wreaths of green about them, was splendid and was a fitting close to the beautiful ceremony.

The chief called the following excellent program, each performer kindly responding to encores:

Reading, "St. Peter at the Gate" —Mrs. Allen Montgomery.
Vocal solo—Miss Edna Taylor
Address — Grand Chief Addie Kemp
Vocal solo—Ernest Church

The remainder of the evening was passed in a jolly dancing party, Mr. and Mrs. Will Coller furnishing the music

WINDOW TRIMMING VALUE

Mr. Merchant:—

From the small cabin-like window of a country store way back in the days of early history making of America, to the modern architectural structure of to day, is a long leap; the trimming of a show window has undergone an evolution even greater than the window itself, and the merchant of today knows very well that he must look to his window as part of his best advertising.

The merchant of the trading vessel day often heaped his wares on the tops of boxes, on the banks of the [illegible] he traveled, and old Si Hawkins hung in his window the red and blue "caliker" he had to sell and probably a coal bucket or a mop hung too near the coveted dress goods but merchandise must be shown, and the art of displaying was primitive in those days, and still is, in remote spots of the world.

It is the merchant who is cutting with the keen edge of friction in the thick of competition, who has to look to his own wits or to some artist's skill for the best results in window trimming, for the window indicates the spirit of the shop. Is it classy and wide awake? Are the articles selected by one who knows what's what? Look to the window for the answer.

What has brought about this need for classy window trimming? Simply this, people do not make a memorandum of their needs and then take a day or two of each year to buy supplies. They buy every day, the beautiful things they see and cannot resist, and the smart merchant knows his window has sold the goods very often before the customer has entered the shop. Time was when grandmother had only one silk dress, which was taken out on state occasions, and more often than not handed down through several generations as were most of wearing apparel.

How is it today? The silk dress that mother wore last season is not even suitable for making over the next, too many pretty things tempt her from the shop window, and the longing is created then and there and so it must be a new dress, and here is the secret of selling goods, TEMPT the passers-by, FORCE upon their notice, by your window trims and window CARDS, the things they can not help liking and you are increasing your volume of business daily.

Those old days of stringing a line across the window, on which was hung the merchandise, or setting up a rack or box on which to display, have gone and with them the slow merchant, the fly specked goods (which hung for months at a time in the window and were not even put on a bargain counter when they were taken out) and the creeping method of doing business. You must have new displays, change your windows weekly, or semi-weekly, for remember the customer does not always buy because he needs that tie, knife or fish bait, but because they are temptingly displayed.

The merchant who has found out for himself this telling argument of display is the man who is doing the business. So here we are, starting a new year, let us all fix our wndows up and make it a rule to trim once or twice a week with goods you have to sell and try and have your window trim go with your paper ad and don't forget to have a nice card made for your window also.

W. L. Coller.

Prof Reeves Lectures

GOOD ATTENDANCE HEAR LECTURE ON "COMMISSION MANAGER FORM OF GOVERNMENT"

Tuesday Evening at Bradley's Opera House

UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE MONDAY CLUB

A good attendance gathered at the Opera house Tuesday evening for the lecture of Professor Jesse Reeves of Ann Arbor. The hall was tastely decorated with American flags. A row of small flags were arranged across the front of the stage, while large flags were displayed across the back of the stage and at either end. Seats were provided for the speaker, officers of the Monday Club, officers of the various clubs of the village and also for the clergy, Mayor and members of the council, press of our own town and surrounding towns.

At 7:30 the President of the Monday Club, Mrs. T. C. Harris, called the meeting to order. Two musical numbers were rendered, the High School Glee Club favored the audience with a selection, 'Winkum, Blinkum and Nod' and Mrs. Grace Heck Moore a solo. "The March of America."

Mrs Harris in introducing the speaker of the evening paused long enough to announce that the evenings entertainment was following out a custom that the Monday Club had establised in setting aside one evening out of the year for Gentlemen's evening and that this meeting was more of the nature of a birthday party, for 22 years ago the Monday Club was first organized with a membership of 50 and today they had on their membership role 120 names. After reviewing the work of the club she introduced the speaker of the evening, Professor Reeves of the University of Michigan.

Professor Reeves remarks were along the line of Constructive City Government" He reviewed the history of City Government in the United States and stated former Ambassador James Bryce announced some thirty years ago that City Government in this country was a failure. Conditions have changed rapidly in the period since this time and today cities and towns all over the country are adopting, "Commission Form of Government" and are yet improving this form of government by adopting, "The Manager Form."

The old form of city government had been largely patterned after State Governments and the State Governments after our National Governments so that we have today in operation throughout our country the aldermatic form of government for our cities. Commission form of government tends to simplify and good government does not necessarily mean cheap government. Good government assists and bad government pulls down. Bad government does not usually apply to smaller towns and cities but is most often found in the great cities where graft and corrupt politics creep in and control. Simplicity in government affairs makes for efficiency. For every $1.00 paid in taxes in the city of New York only 62c goes to the place where it was intended to go.

In Prussia the manager form of government has been in use for a great many years but it is a compulsive form of government and would not do for a democratic country like ours

The commission manager form of government he likened to a large business corporation, the people being the stockholders who elect their own board of directors, or commissions, and the directors, or commissioners, choose their manager to take charge and to be responsible for the detailed work of running the city. The people, however, have the right to demand the removal of the manager should he prove unsatisfactory. The commission make all appropriations, pass rules and regulations and direct the general business of the city and the manager attends to the details The city manager form is simple. A commission consisting of from three to five are usually chosen by the people and are in most cases, a mayor, a commissioner of public works, a commissioner of public finance and a commissioner of public safety The manager chosen by the commission should be a trained man for this kind of work and should be an engineer, an accountant and a man with executive ability.

He compared the city manager form of government to our public school system No school board expected to employ a cheap superintendant of schools they want an experienced man. The city problem is the same. The best asset a community can have is an efficient business administration.

The speaker then handed out a fine compliment to the ladies for he claimed that in most all communities the ladies organizations were the best aid toward bettering conditions and were progressive along the lines of better government. Next are the organizations commonly called, "Commerce Clubs" or civic organizations which are made up of the best men of the community.

City government is getting to be a bigger job each year. In the year 1790, when the Constitution of the United States was put into effect, about 3 per cent of the United States were found living in the cities and to day the percentage has increased until now there are found to be about 50 per cent living in the cities.

After the close of Professor Reeves address many took the opportunity of asking him questions and he was kept busy until he was forced to leave to catch the nine o'clock train.

Mayor Billings of Adrian who was present was called upon for a few remarks and gave a very enthusiastic talk on the work that the commission is doing in Adrian. He was followed by R. M. McClure, secretary of the Adrian Chamber of Commerce. The gentlemen also answered many questions which were asked by interested people.

Bethlehem's Bid on Shells for the United States Navy

To the American People:

The Secretary of the Navy has awarded contracts amounting to over $3,000,000 to a British bidder for 14 and 16-inch projectiles for the Navy because of very much lower prices offered by the English bidders.

We know nothing of the basis upon which the British bids were made, but the public is entitled to know the facts upon which we ourselves bid for this work.

Two years ago we took contracts to make 4,200 14-inch shells at a price of $1,515,000. Up to now not a single shell has been accepted by the Government, although we have expended, in wages, materials, etc., on these orders $522,881, and we have not received a SINGLE DOLLAR on these contracts.

In addition, a literal interpretation of the contract might make us liable for penalties amounting to $678,016.

In the light of our experience, and having no other basis, we bid for 16-inch shells approximately the same rate per pound as that which the Navy Department actually awarded a 14-inch shell contract one year ago.

AUTO HIT BY TRAIN

NEW DODGE CAR COLLIDES WITH N. Y. CENTRAL TRAIN AT CLINTON

Driver Fatally Injured. Dies this Morning. Car a Wreck.

A fatal accident occurred at Clinton Thursday afternoon about 4 o'clock when a new Dodge car collided with a New York Central train at the Chicago street crossing

The Dodge car was one of a group of cars which were being driven through from the factory in Detroit to points in Indiana and were making west through Clinton on the pike The driver of the car struck by the train evidently did not hear the bell at the crossing ringing as his car was all enclosed with side curtains and his view may have been obstructed by the building that stands near the crossing.

The train No. 15 due in Tecumseh at 3:01 was nearly an hour late and was just pulling in from the north when it struck the crossing and collided with the Dodge car. The auto was tossed back about two rods by the impact and was a complete wreck. The driver was thrown from the car and was found lying under the front part of the auto.

He was taken to the office of Dr. Tuttle who resides near the crossing and, as the doctor was out, Dr Davis was called It was found that the unfortunate man's skull was fractured and the scalp torn loose from the skull. Two other doctors were later called on the case and every aid was rendered which was possible to give He lived until 6 o clock this morning

We were unable to find out the unfortunate man's name or the town in Indiana where he lived. He was a married man and leaves a wife and two children. His friends were notified and his father is expected to arrive today to take charge of the remains.

A GREEK WEDDING

HELEN MELONAKOS BECOMES BRIDE OF PETE BAGIKAS OF ERIE, PA.

K. of P. Hall Scene of Wedding Ceremonies Thursday Afternoon 2:30 O'clock, Jan. 25, 1917

A wedding of unusual interest, being the first of its kind in Tecumseh, was solemnized Thursday at 2:30 p. m. in K. of P. hall when Helen Melonakos, a sister of Mike Melonakos, was united in marriage to Pete Bagikas of Erie, Pa., Rev. George Petridis, pastor of the Greek Orthodox church of Detroit, performing the ceremony.

Promptly at the appointed hour, the bride and groom took their places in the center of the hall, facing the east. The bride was attended by Miss Irene Viagiakos of Erie, Pa., as maid of honor, and Mrs. Chas. Melonakos of Toledo, O. The groom's best man was Gust Askounas with his assistants, Gust Viagiakos and Bill Lukas. Pete Askounas was assistant to the priest.

The regular Greek ceremony was used, part being read and part sung. Two rings were used during the ceremony, also two wreaths of white flowers tied with white satin ribbon were placed on the heads of the bride and groom three times, commemorating the three days Christ lay in the tomb. They also partook of the sacramental bread and wine.

The bride wore a white satin gown with lace overdress and a bridal veil, her attendants were also dressed in white. During the ceremony the bridal couple and their attendants bore lighted candles.

After congratulations the bridal company marched around in a circle and were freely pelted with rice and small candies, after which the company were invited to the dinning room where a bountiful chicken dinner was served.

The wedding festivities were prolonged until late in the night. During the ceremony in the hall the bride was presented with necklaces, bracelets, diamond earings and a gold watch from the groom's family. Lester Coller took a flash light picture of the wedding party at the close of the ceremony.

There were about 30 guests present coming from Erie, Penn., Toledo, Monroe, Detroit and Adrian. Mr. and Mrs. Bagikas with those who came from Erie, left on the morning train for their home, where the wedding festivities will be continued Red Man's hall has been engaged for the occasion and some two or three hundred guests have been invited.

Helen Melonakos came to this country from Mulans, Northern Greece, about two years and a half ago and has made her home with her brother Mike in Tecumseh, the proprietor of the Candy Kitchen. Since living here she has made many friends who extend their best wishes.

For the Family Medicine Chest

Green Bay, Wis., Mrs. Wm. F. Bubolz says: "I always use Foley's Honey and Tar for our children as it quickly breaks up their colds with no bad after effects, and they like to take it."

In this season of coughs, colds and croup, every family medicine chest should be supplied with a good cough medicine that can be relied upon when needed.

Such a family cough syrup is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. This standard medicine has been on the market for years and in many sections was found in every home in the days when doctors were not so handy and when money was scarcer.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is an excellent medicine for coughs, colds, raw or inflamed throat, hoarseness, tightness and soreness of the chest, croup and whooping cough. It is an absolutely safe remedy, contains [illegible]

Tecumseh Testimony Remains Unshaken

Time is the best test of truth. Here is a Tecumseh story that has stood the test of time. It is a story with a point which will come straight home to many of us.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte and Pottawatamie streets, Tecumseh, says: "The first notice I had that my kidneys were disordered was a sharp, shooting pain across my back. At that time I was sick in bed with malaria. The nurse I had attending me said I ought to try Doan's Kidney Pills; I got a box and began their use. The pains left, the kidney secretions became natural and the gravel stones that I had been passing for years, disappeared." (Statement given December 10, 1906.)

Still Uses Doan's

On July 27, 1916, Mrs. Stevenson said: "I still use and recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I could not get along without them when my back or kidneys trouble me, for they never fail to give relief."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Stevenson has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv

Ladies Aid Society

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church which met with Mrs. Baron Pennington, Jan. 17th proved a delightful affair. The dinner was served by the men, and while their aprons didn't fit, they all seemed to know just how to help one to good things to eat—and how to wash dishes.

An enjoyable program consisted of the experiences of those who had earned a dollar for the social. The experiences ranged from every line of work to "just taking the dollar out of our pocket book," as one lady explained as to where she got hers. In a number of cases money was given by friends for those who had once been workers in the society but who had passed on.

The receipts in cash and pledges were $110.00. The financial report of the society shows that this will finish paying the $500 pledge towards church repairs and leave about $60 in the treasury.

Something In This.

"You women are always spending money for preparations to make yourselves better looking," growled Mr. Twobble.

"I guess that's true, my dear," replied Mrs. Twobble sweetly.

"Now, you hardly ever see a man doing that."

Old Time Prices.

When we are told that 100 years ago a dollar bought ten dozen eggs or three bushels of potatoes we picture to ourselves a perfect state of society. Then we learn that the same dollar paid a man for two days' hard work on the farm, and we realize that the former generation had its own problems.—Youth's Companion.

NO VICTORY, IS WILSON'S PEACE PLEA

everywhere are agreed that there should be a united, independent and opens the wider and perhaps more difficult question of the limitation of armies and of all progress of military preparation.

"Difficult and delicate as these questions are, they must be faced with the utmost candor and decided in a spirit of real accommodation if peace is to come with healing in its wings and come to stay. Peace cannot be had without concession and sacrifice. There can be no sense of safety and equality among the nations if great preponderating armaments are henceforth to continue here and there to be built up and maintained. The statesmen of the world must plan for peace and nations must adjust and accommodate their policy to it as they have planned for war and made ready for pitiless contest and rivalry. The question of armaments, whether on land or sea, is the most immediately and intensely practical question connected with the future fortunes of nations and of mankind.

Speaks Without Reserve.

"I have spoken upon these great matters without reserve and with the utmost explicitness because it has seemed to me to be necessary if the world's yearning desire for peace was anywhere to find free voice and utterance. Perhaps I am the only person in high authority among all the peoples of the world who is at liberty to speak and hold nothing back. I am speaking as an individual, and yet I am speaking also, of course, as the responsible head of a great government, and I feel confident that I have said what the people of the United States would wish me to say. May I not add that I hope and believe that I am in effect speaking for liberals and friends of humanity in every nation and of every program of liberty? I would fain believe that I am speaking for the silent mass of mankind everywhere, who have as yet had no place or opportunity to speak their real hearts out concerning the death and ruin they see to have come already upon the persons and the homes they hold most dear.

No Breach of Old Traditions.

"And in holding out the expectation that the people and government of the United States will join the other civilized nations of the world in guaranteeing the permanence of peace upon such terms as I have named, I speak with the greatest boldness and confidence because it is clear to every man who can think that there is in this no breach in either our traditions or our policy as a nation, but a fulfillment rather of all that we have professed or striven for.

"I am proposing, as it were, that the nations should with one accord adopt the doctrine of President Monroe as the doctrine of the world: That no nation should seek to extend its policy over any other nation or people but that every people should be left free to determine its own policy, its own way of development, unhindered, unthreatened, unafraid, the little along with the great and powerful.

To Avoid Entanglements.

"I am proposing that all nations henceforth avoid entangling alliances which would draw them into competitions of power, catch them in a net of intrigue and selfish rivalry, and disturb their own affairs with influences intruded from without. There is no entangling alliance in a concert of power. They all unite to act in the same sense and with the same purpose all act in the common interest and are free to live their own lives under a common protection.

"I am proposing government by the consent of the governed; that freedom of the seas which in international conference after conference representatives of the United States have urged with the eloquence of those who are the convinced disciples of liberty; and that moderation of armaments which makes of armies and navies a power for order merely, not an instrument of aggression or of selfish violence.

Sound American Policies.

"These are American principles, American policies. We can stand for no others. And they are also the principles and policies of forward-looking men and women everywhere, of every nation, of every enlightened community. They are the principles of mankind and must prevail."

The Gold Louis.

The French coin known as the louis d'or was first struck in 1641 under Louis XIII. While it has not been coined since 1795, since the execution of Louis XVI., the name is often given to the twenty franc piece, or gold napoleon. While the value of the louis fluctuated, it may be roughly estimated as about $5 of United States money.—Indianapolis News.

"Kie-Yie-Yie! Get Me 'Gets-It' Quick!"

2 Drops Make Corn "Fall" Off!

"I've joined the Never-Again Club. Never again will I use anything for corns but 'Gets-It.' Put 2 drops of 'Gets-It' on, and from that second the corn begins to shrivel,

"Oh, Don't Touch It! It's So Sore!" Use "Gets-It" and It Will Never Be Sore!

instead of swelling up like a little white sponge. Then it loosens from your toe—and, glory hallelujah! the corn comes off as though you'd take a glove off your hand!"

Yes, "Gets-It" is the corn discovery of the age. More "Gets-It" is sold by many times than any other corn remedy in existence. Try it and you'll know the reason why. It takes two seconds to apply it, and it dries at once. That's all. Don't experiment—follow the experience of millions and use "Gets-It."

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

AUTO GANG HAS ALLY IN CAPITOL OFFICE

Tags Come from Employe of Secretary of State.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Operations of the gang of automobile thieves, under investigation by State's Attorney Hoyne, seem to point to a connection with some one in the office of the secretary of state at Springfield, according to a statement made by the prosecutor.

"Some of the witnesses who were questioned relative to the workings of the automobile gang," said the state's attorney, "told us the gang had 'snaked' an employe of the secretary of state's office who furnished them with aluminum license tags. One of these tags was put on a stolen automobile while the car was being rebuilt to cover up its identity. Several of these tags are for the present year."

Mr. Hoyne produced one of the tags, which bore the number "1922." A telegram was sent to the secretary of state asking him to whom the tag had been issued. His reply was the record did not show it had been issued to anyone.

The suspected employ is said to be a Chicago man, a resident of the north side. Mr. Hoyne said he might be a resident of the Twenty-first ward.

BIGGER CITY, BIGGER BOOBS

Louise Sachen "Mere Waitress; Not Alaskan "Juno."

Kansas City, Jan. 29.—Kansas City, Kan., and not Koyukuk, Alaska, claims the "proud honor and distinction" of being the birthplace of Miss Louise Sachen, the "Alaskan Juno," who has dazzled New York for two weeks. She is just an ordinary [illegible] waitress.

"Them press agents are some guys," said Nick Sachen, laborer, and proud father of the "Alaskan beauty." "They sure put it over on them New Yorkers, didn't they? A friend of mine says: 'The bigger the burg, the bigger the boobs.' Sure Louise is my daughter. She came home from Alaska last June—been working in a boarding house up there for two years."

BUSINESS MEN TO SPEAK

Nation's Substantial Element to Go on Record on Rail Disputes.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The nation's representative business men will go on record this week and make plain their attitude on the question of disputes between railroads and their employes, particularly the prevention of strikes and lockouts, when the fifth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States assembles in this city Tuesday.

Results of the referendum will be announced at the opening session. The report will be submitted by C. F. Weed, of Boston, chairman of the railroad committee of the national chamber.

PRESIDENT VETOES IMMIGRATION BILL

Congress Believes It Can Pass It Over Objection.

Washington, Jan. 29.—President Wilson vetoed the immigration bill. The measure which passed the senate ten days ago would have become a law on Jan. 30 had the President not set the seal of his disapproval upon it. He anticipated by a single day this constitutional provision and denounced the measure as he had once done before. Former President Taft also vetoed the measure because of his objection to the "literacy test" clause.

Proponents of the immigration bill in the senate and house express the conviction that this time they will be able to pass the measure over the President's veto. When it came previously before him two years ago a similar effort was made which failed by a small margin. Both Chairman Burnett, of the house committee, and Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, chairman of the senate committee, believe that this year they have the necessary two-thirds vote in both houses.

BRITAIN HALTS U. S. GOLD

Warning Sent Against Shipments of Yellow Metal to Spain.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—The British government has warned United States ship brokers that they must not ship American gold to Spain. This was the word brought to Chicago by a steamship man, who has been in conference with ship brokers at one of the northern ports of entry.

Investigation, he said, showed that several heavy shipments of American gold were held up as the result of the British order. The shipowners fear the blacklist or even confiscation of the shipment, he said.

RETURNED GUARDS GO UNDER NEW U. S. LAW

Revised Pay Scale When Mustered Out in Effect.

LANSING, Jan. 29.

With the ceremony of mustering out of federal service, Michigan troops that have been or now are on the border will come under the operation of the new federal militia act, and as soon as the required inspections are completed, will begin to draw the new scale of militia pay.

The Thirty-fourth regiment, the first to muster out, will be inspected within a few weeks by Major James V. Heidt, Thirty-sixth United States infantry, who has been detailed by the war department to place the regiment upon its new footing.

All lacks in equipment will be supplied and the men will receive one-quarter of the regular army pay. This amounts to 12½ cents a day, or 93 cents for each drill. The money is payable semi-annually, the installments being $22.50 each. The date for the inspection of the Thirty-second regiment, now quartered in Fort Wayne, has not been decided.

The annual camp will hereafter continue for fifteen days instead of ten. The full army pay will be allowed for that period.

The investigations of the authorities after Mrs. West disappeared leaving her three little children here convinced them that his defense was true and that the blame rests on the wife.

Discarded the Baton.

At a concert in Moscow a number of years ago Safonoff, the famous Russian conductor, found as he mounted the conductor's rostrum that he had forgotten his baton. Two hours later his servant ran breathless into the hall with the missing baton; but, as Safonoff afterward explained, "a great reform had by then been accomplished." He had managed so well with his hands as a substitute that he determined never to use an unpliable bit of wood again. "I discovered," he said, "that I had ten sticks instead of one, and the players discovered it was impossible for them to be lazy, so carefully had they to watch those ten sticks."

MEXICAN WOMEN MOB AMERICANS

"Order of Bath" Stirs International Commotion.

RESIST SANITARY REGULATION

Effort of Health Officers to Halt Passage Over International Bridge Until Unwashed Peons Are "Dipped" Brings Riot—Street Cars Attacked and Americans Are Beaten.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 29.—Anti-American riots broke out in Juarez, Mexico, across the Rio Grande river. Mobs stormed street cars on which Americans were riding and drove the Americans from the town.

General Bell, in command of the United States troops here, immediately issued an order prohibiting Mexicans from crossing to the American side.

The Mexicans retaliated by barring all traffic across the international bridge. The races at the Juarez track were declared off.

Women's Aversion to Bathing, Cause.

The deep-seated aversion of Mexican women of the peon class toward bathing caused the anti-American riots. The rioting became so violent that new international complications are feared and it may result in action by the military authorities here.

Four hundred Mexican women, led by a red-headed girl, started to cross the international bridge to go to their places of employment. They were barred by health officers, acting under a new quarantine rule, which provides that all persons without military passes must take a disinfectant bath of vinegar and gasoline before entering El Paso.

The women vigorously refused to submit to the baths. They attempted to push their way past the health officers and bridge guards but were driven back.

Suddenly they turned their fury to a street car crossing the bridge. The forces of the women were augmented quickly by other women and children and later many men.

Four street cars in Juarez and on the bridge were attacked. The motormen and conductors were dragged from the cars and beaten. The cars were wrecked and burned.

A United States mail wagon, which was crossing the bridge, was also wrecked by the mob. The driver was beaten.

In the midst of the rioting, the Mexican authorities issued orders, directing that no Americans should be permitted to enter or leave Juarez.

Secretary Baker, announcing the recall of Pershing, said: "General Pershing has been ordered to bring his troops out of Mexico. The movement is to be an immediate one and is probably already under way."

ANTI-WHISKY BILL STRONG

Majority of Illinois Legislature Believed Personally Favorable.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 29.—In both houses of the assembly there is developing a strong undercurrent of sentiment favorable to the Bruce anti-whisky bill, both among the wets and the drys.

The peculiar condition exists at present, however, that senators and representatives who are personally enthusiastic over the plan to confine saloons to the sale of light wines and beer, and who admit it privately, hesitate to take an open stand pending conferences with chiefs outside the legislature to whom they owe allegiance in consequence of aid given at the polls.

Miscreants' Attempt to Injure Alfonso of Spain Thwarted.

Athens, Jan. 29.—King Constantine is to make public a decree dissolving the leagues of reservists.

When Representative Michael Harris, of Menominee, read a few days ago that a reciprocal demurrage bill was being prepared as a "come back" against the railroads and freight congestion, he began to investigate and has uncovered a fact unknown to any other member of the legislature and probably unknown to every shipper in Michigan, and the fact is this: Michigan has a reciprocal demurrage bill and the state railroad commission is charged with the duty of fixing the amount of demurrage a railroad shall pay when it fails to comply with the shipper's requirements.

TECUMSEH MAN TO THE FRONT

Dr. C. A. Waldron of Tecumseh Chosen President of The Lenawee County Jersey Breeders Association

At a meeting of Lenawee County farmers interested in raising and breeding high grade Jersey cattle held in Adrian last Saturday, an organization was effected to be known as The Lenawee County Breeders' Club.

A constitution and bylaws were adopted and about twenty farmers signed up as members. It is arrainged to have four meetings during the year with the annual meeting and banquet coming in January. The banquet this year will be held some time in March. The membership is limited to breeders interested and engaged in raising Jersey cattle.

The officers elected are: Dr. C. A. Waldron, Tecumseh, president; Arthur M. Bartel, Britton, vice president; J. H. Sword, Cadmus, secretary and treasurer. Three directors were also chosen: L. R. Kuney, Adrian; F. E. Skinner, Onsted, and F. W. Judson, Holloway.

Dr. Waldron, who was honored with the presidency of this association, is considered one of the best posted Jersey men in the county and has a fine herd of high grade Jersey cattle on his farm just south of Tecumseh. As a presiding officer the doctor is surely making good. He is president of the Tecumseh Co-Operative Association, the Cow Testing Association, the Tecumseh Poultry Association and now The Jersey Breeders' Club.

Wonderful Rainier Park.

This is the heart of the playground, worshiped by the red men in the days of old, and here in the evidence of scores of mineral springs bubbling from the ground one feels more keenly the puissance of God. To the left from the road, looking as if it were but a block away, rises Mount Tacoma, its sides showing the purplish lines of ice, great snow fields and jagged rocks. Yet it is five miles from the springs to Nisqually glacier, over a road as smooth as pavement and broken at almost every length of the car by vistas of surpassing beauty. Now it is a forest of silver, high tree trunks dotting the sides of a peak stripped of their branches and bark and whitened by the elements. Now it is a glimpse of Nisqually river, which takes its origin from the glacier of that name, as it tumbles along over its rocky bed, and now it is a forested peak rising toothlike out of the jaw of this mighty range of which Mount Tacoma, "the mountain that was God," in the picturesque language of the Indians, is a part.—Ralph P. Mulvane in National Magazine.

Sunset and 12 o'Clock.

The habit of counting 12 o'clock at sunset is very ancient. The Turks, Greeks and most other people in the Levant have almost always counted 12 o'clock from sunset, and to this day the common people cannot understand that their clocks have to be changed every day and not ours. The Turks have officially adopted meridian time, but only since the Young Turks came into power—that is, since 1908. The change was even then not made immediately. It encountered a great deal of opposition on religious grounds, because the Mohammedan hours of prayer are regulated by the sun. And the common people still stick to the old system. Only in Constantinople and Smyrna are there many Turks who keep the official meridian time, and the great majority of people throughout the Turkish dominions still count 12 o'clock, as their ancestors have from time immemorial, at sunset.—New York Times.

The Famous "Green Man of Brighton."

In October, 1806, an individual was to be observed at Brighton, England, who walked out every day dressed in green from head to foot—green shoes, green gloves, green handkerchief and other articles to match. This eccentric person lived alone, knew nobody, and in his house the curtains, the wall paper, the furniture, even the plates and dishes and the smallest toilet articles, offered an uninterrupted sequence of green. Having started on his career, there was obviously no reason to stop, and with full consistency he carried his tastes so far as to eat nothing but fruit and vegetables of the same green color. The consequences were extremely disastrous. One fine day the green man jumped from his window into the street, rushed forward and performed a second somersault from the top of the nearest cliff.

Self Convicted.

"Say, pa," queried small Bobby, "what is gossip, anyway?"

"Gossiping, my son," replied the old man, "if we get right down to the plain, unvarnished facts, is lying. But why do you ask?"

"Because," answered the young investigator, "ma says you do a lot of gossiping every time your business keeps you late at the office."—Exchange.

Too Much Practice.

"Does your minister practice what he preaches?" the newcomer questioned.

"He does," the citizen answered with a sigh, "and I'd be perfectly willing to have him stop. He lives next door to me and begins at 7 o'clock Sunday morning to practice what he is going to preach."—New York Times.

Increasing Its Plant Capacity.

TECUMSEH BUTTER CO. ENLARGING ITS FIELD OF ACTION

Will Build an Addition to Factory and Enter into the Wholesale Ice Cream Business

One of the really progressive institutions of our beautiful town is the Tecumseh Butter Co., and it deserves more than a passing meed of praise for the enterprise that it has been in the past and is still being exhibited by its officers under the management of its president and largest stockholder R. J. McCoy.

Incorporated in 1909 as the Tecumseh Butter Co., its business has been steadily increasing since that time until now it's making considerably over half a million pounds of butter per year and paying out to our farmers over $170,000 annually in weekly cash payments. It is needless to say that our country friends find it a mighty nice thing to have those fat weekly checks coming in for their cream, and a good feature of this business is that it does not try to reduce the price it pays for cream but rather to keep up the highest standard of prices that it is possible for it to pay.

During the year 1915 the company made 480,852 pounds of butter. In 1916 it made a big stride forward and manufactured 560,672 pounds. An increase of 79,820 pounds.

The company is now building a substantial addition to its factory in which will be installed a wholesale ice cream manufacturing plant. It is intended to have this building and machinery ready by March 1, 1917.

An ice cream making machine has been purchased which has a capacity of 60 gallons an hour. An emulser, to convert sweet butter back into sweet cream will also be installed and with this equipment a much better flavored and smoother bodied ice cream will be made than can possibly be obtained in any other way known.

This new departure will necessitate the employment of more help which is a gratifying thing for the material prosperity of "the biggest little town on earth."

The Herald congratulates the Tecumseh Butter Co. on its increasing business and enterprise and hopes to see it continue to go ahead and prosper.

A TEMPERMENTAL TREAT

If you are a tempermental believer in any particular branch of that comprehensive term "real art" we advise you to treat yourself to a performance of William Fox's million dollar picture beautiful, "A Daughter of the Gods." If landscapes appeal to you, you will see them in infinite variety, dazzling beautiful in the tropical sunlight. Impressive mountain sides and peaks, ravines, gorges, plains, tender valleys, shaded grottoes and fern-lipped pools are unrolled before you.

If you incline toward water scenes, palm-fringed shores, such as conrad pictures, pearly beaches, shimmering bays peopled with mythical mermaids, giant rocks and flying spray, mountain torrents and airy waterfalls will delight your nomadic soul.

If you admire the noble in architecture, the Moorish capital gleaming in the midday sun, with its mosques, its domes, its minarets and towers will be yours, all fitly done.

If the quaint and grotesque appeals to you, the gnomes and elves, with their tiny huts, giant toadstools and rustic bridges will find a place in your heart.

If you worship the divine in the human body, you will see the perfectly fashioned and talented Annette Kellermann, in all her awe-inspiring loveliness, beside a hundred or more engaging odalisques and dancing girls in the sultan's palace, and every one an artist's dream.

This tempermental treat will be shown at the Bradley Opera House on Wednesday and Thursday, February 7 and 8, and will run for three performances, there being a matinee Thursday at 2:15 in addition to the regular evening show Thursday evening at 8:15.

The seat sale opens at Hay's Bakery Monday morning (Feb 5th) at 8 o'clock but orders accompanied by cash will be filled now and held for you. Many orders have already been placed and it is advisable to get your seats as early as possible if you have any preference.

BERT AYERS OF SPRINGVILLE DEAD IN FLINT

Bert Ayers of Springville, and well known to resorters of Evans [illegible]d in Flint Sunday, Jan. 28, of pneumonia. He is survived by a widow and eight children, the youngest a babe of two weeks whom he had never seen. His remains were taken to his home Monday.

"The Daugher of the Gods" the big Kellermann picture which plays at the Bradley Opera House, next week, certainly has some of the best advertising matter that we have yet seen put out in Tecumseh. Some very fine large oil painting of different scenes from the films being displayed in the windows of some of our leading merchants among them the windows of the Jones Clothing Company and Tribolet's.

BITTEN BY DOG

LITTLE EVA WOOD BADLY BITTEN SATURDAY

While at Play with Other Children in the Neighborhood

As a group of young children were playing together in the neighborhood on East Logan street Saturday, and, as Ralph Hagadorn was drawing little Eva Wood down the street on a hand sled, the little girl was set upon by a young bull dog belonging to Floyd Owen. The child screamed for help and Ralph beat the dog with a club until help came, Mrs. Owen's pulling the dog away. The child's legs were badly chewed there being thirteen wounds. She was taken into the Beaubien home and Dr. Hammel was called at once. He rendered the necessary aid, making the little one as comfortable as possible under the circumstances for she was suffering greatly. As last reports she is quite comfortable.

TESTING DAIRY COWS

Increased Profits as Result of Cooperative Work—Bull Associations Raise Quality of Herds.

Increases of from $10 to $15 and in some cases much higher in the annual profits from each dairy cow have resulted from the organization of cooperative cow-testing associations in the United States, according to statistics gathered by the Dairy Davision of the United States Department of Agriculture. The expense of membership in these associations, on the other hand, has been only about $1 50 per year. The organizations therefore have been very profitable.

Because of the great and obvious economic advantages arising from the associations dairy specialists of the department believe that the organizations are one of the most important factors for the upbuilding and development of the dairy industry in this country. Such an organization consists generally of 55 farmers, living within a radius of a few miles, who cooperate to hire an expert tester to keep accurate accounts of the amounts and cost of feed consumed by each cow in the association, the quantity of milk produced by each and its richness in butter fat. These statistics usually reveal the fact that some cows are not producing enough to pay for their keep, while others are highly profitable. Acting on this information the owner of the cows disposes of the least desirable of his animals and makes up his herd exclusively of those that produce a considerable profit.

The membership of the association is placed at 26 so that the tester can make a complete round each month, devoting one work day to each member and that he may keep his records on a monthly basis. It has been found by careful experiments that the averages based on monthly tests do not vary more than 2 per cent from the production, as shown by daily observations. Since the tester is an expert and can make the necessary tests and computations rapidly, and since he can be depended on to make his observations independently of pressure of work on the individual farm, the owners of dairy cows find it cheaper and more satisfactory in many cases to have their testing done through the association than to undertake to do it themselves.

WIT AND WISDOM

The postponed meeting of the Wit and Wisdom Club was held at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Rex last evening, Rev. Rex leader.

The subject of the evening, "The Great Dams of the World," was very finely presented by Mrs. W. A. Rex. She was followed by Rev. W. A. Rex with an interesting talk on the "Keokuk Dam."

Last summer, when Rev. Rex took his vacation, he motored to Kansas City his old home, and on his return trip he visited this dam. Radioptican pictures were shown of this great dam and its wonderful power house, also many places of interest along his trip. Many views of Kansas City and his former church in the city that he helped to build were also shown.

Interspersed through the program were several piano duets by Mildred and Marion Brooks.

Roll Call—Engineering Feats was responded to by most of the members.

At the close of the program refreshments were served. A most interesting evening was reported.

"OUT OF THE OLD HOUSE"

We wish we might add "into the new" but will have to wait awhile. Saturday the work of moving from the old high school building began and draymen were busy taking the seats and desks from the school rooms to the Vendoma hotel, which has been secured for school work and where classes will begin work, Wednesday, Jan. 31.

The 7th and 8th grades will meet in the old building until proper rooms have been secured.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

FREDERICK TEMPLE THROWN FROM AN AUTO

Suffered Severe Cut on the Head

Sunday Frederick Temple, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs L. E. Temple, accompanied Thomas Mead, Jr., to the Presbyterian Sunday-school, and at the close of the session, they wandered away as young boys will, finally stopping at the home of John Garlinghouse for a ride down the toboggan slide. A nearby auto furnished a seat for Frederick while waiting for Thomas.

All at once he was conscious that the car was in motion, and looking about for a good place to jump, he saw another car coming. From that time he has no knowledge of what happened.

Hearing his screams Leon Waldron stopped the car and found the boy lying by the roadside in an unconscious condition. He picked him up and took him to Dr. Hammel's office where Mrs. Hammel took him in charge until the doctor could be located. On the latter's arrivel he found it necessary to take a number of stitches in a gash across he boy's head some four inches long. The skull was also slightly splintered. The boy was one of the bravest, not taking an anesthetic during the operation. His escape from instant death is marvelous.

Our Coffee

HAS MADE US MANY FRIENDS

First of all they were Coffee Customers only. Then one day they decided to try some of our tea.

They liked both, then they became steady Tea and Coffee Customers.

Then they noticed that our Bacon looked pretty good. Tried it. Delighted—and so it goes.

Our eatables aren't good ONLY IN SPOTS. It's our aim to have the stock faultless through and through.

That's a high standard to set. Naturally, once in a while we fall below it.

BUT THAT'S OUR AIM. And in attempting this we get just about as high an average of grocery goodness as any store in this country. You may as well benefit.

THE NEW ROYAL

"The New Royal" opened up to the public Monday afternoon with a good crowd and in the evening with a jam, a crowd packing the lobby and sidewalk through the first show. Willett's Orchestra of Adrian was in attendance and the picture play, "The Return of Eve," was the attraction and was a very interesting picture.

The New Royal presents a very fine appearance since the work has been finished. The extra seating, the inclined floor and the lattice work around the screen are decided improvements, making the theater a most attractive place. We congratulate the owners on the success of their undertaking.

A PRETTY WEDDING

A very interesting account of the wedding of Miss Bessie Temple, daughter of one of our Tecumseh boys, Herbert M. Temple of St. Paul, Minn., appears in the St. Paul Pioneer Press of Sunday, January 21:

Miss Bessie Temple and Charles Betcher of Red Wings were united in marriage, Saturday evening, January 20, 1917 in St. Clements Episcopal church. The bride wore a gown of white duchess satin with over dress of princess lace with court train richly embroidered, and a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bridal bouquet of hyacinths, orchids and lillies of the valley. Little Helen Sickel the flower girl, wore white French net with pink satin girdle and carried a basket of pink rosebuds. Rev. A. E. Knickerbocker of Red Wing assisted by Rev. E. B. Woodruff, rector of St. Clement's church, performed the ceremony. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Betcher left on a wedding trip to New Orleans and other points south and will be home at Red Wing after March 1st.

Mrs. Betcher has visited relatives in Tecumseh and her parents have many friends here where her father was born and spent his early life.

AGE OF NIAGARA FALLS

The exact age of these wonderful falls is important, because they serve as a kind of standard by which all geologic time is measured.

By observing the rate of recession during the last 40 years, and by other experiments, it has been decided that the falls are about 31,000 years old, and the Niagara river 32,000 years of age and that the Huron drainage was turned into the Erie less than 8000 years ago.

According to an authority, the lake epoch began 50,000 or 60,000 years ago, and the falls will last about 5,000 years longer. Then the lake waters will discharge into the Mississippi.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is an excellent medicine for coughs, colds, raw or inflamed throat, hoarseness, tightness and soreness of the chest, croup and whooping cough. It is an absolutely safe remedy, containing only healing ingredients, and free from any harmful drugs.

AVOIDING WORRY.

Worry is an evil that is killing men and women every day. It is asserted that a keen sense of humor will cure any ordinary case of worry. Look at a common housefly through a microscope, and it assumes horrible proportions. Magnify your own troubles, and what huge dimensions they assume! There is nearly always something funny in every serious situation. Try to see it. The best way to overcome worry is to attack it indirectly.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Pimples.

The story of pimples and how not to have them is a short one to relate, but to put into practice and accomplish results is quite another story. It is difficult, first, because people who have pimples want to get rid of them without paying the price of removing the cause. They want to get something for nothing and would rather spend sums of money to have them removed with nasty medicine, if it were possible, than go about it in the only natural and possible way. Another reason why it is difficult for most people to remove pimples is that it demands a change of not a few of their living habits—the eating of candies, meats and heavy foods without drinking sufficient water and taking plenty of exercise. In other words, they would rather eat candy and loll around with pimples than word hard, get sweaty perhaps and keep the skin rubbed clean. Pimples have rightly been called indigestion bumps. They follow the eating of rich, heavy foods and sweets and are an indication of an inactive life plus an indulgent appetite.

His Magnificent Memory.

"Children," squeaked the ancient man, "I can remember just as well as if it was yesterday when I was a boy and beefsteak and potatoes were so cheap that we had 'em at our house most every day and were always permitted to eat all we wanted of 'em. Oh, I tell ye I've got a wonderful—hee, hee—memory!"

Later the children said among themselves: "Truly, Uncle Gulliver has an amazing memory. He can recollect things that could not possibly have happened."—Kansas City Star.

What a Kiss Cost

A Story of Southern Persons Long Ago

By F. A. MITCHEL

My granddaughter Marian was my favorite of all my descendants of her generation. What was the cause of my feeling for her is hard to specify. She was Marian Whitlock, and there was but one Marian Whitlock. It was not that she was a strong character, for she was not. She was not only heedless, but blind to the result of her heedlessness. But she was lovable. Indeed, she was loved through her faults rather than her good qualities. At least I, her grandmother, loved her on that account.

Marian used to tell her grandmother more about what was going on between her and her young men associates than any one else. Why she did this I don't know unless it was because I realized and therefore sympathized with the conditions under which she labored. Candor compels me to admit that she possessed traits which had shown themselves in me when I was her age, and it is more than probable that she inherited them from me. While I endeavored to guide her out of the effects of her indiscretions I never lectured her for having been indiscreet. I realized that indiscretion was a trait born in her and was not likely to be eradicated till she had grown beyond the age when it would lead her into trouble.

Marian used to come to me in a light hearted way with her perplexities, but one day she gave evidence that what she had to tell was of a serious nature.

"Grandma," she said, "I have gone and done it now and no mistake."

"What is it, child?" I asked.

"You know Elliot Walker?"

"Yes."

"Well, Elliot and I were in the music room, I at the piano, he turning over the sheets."

She paused. I gave her time.

"Elliot bent lower and lower over my shoulder. I suppose I should have moved, but I didn't."

"Well?"

"He kissed me."

I refrained from comment on this and waited for the denouement.

"I don't know what it was that prompted me to act as I did. I was certainly not offended. I had expected when I didn't move that he would kiss me and should not have thought much of him if he hadn't. It was not that I was prudish; it was—well, I don't know what it was, unless it was Old Nick got into me. But I arose from the piano, looked daggers at him and, turning, started to leave the room. What was my surprise to see Herbert Kenworthy standing in the door of the music room. Elliot and I had not been aware of his approach, and he had seen the whole performance."

"What did you do next?" I asked anxiously.

"Why, you see, I couldn't very well say that I had encouraged Elliot to kiss me, could I?"

"Go on."

"And I couldn't say that I was not really offended."

"What did you do?"

"Why, I went on out of the room."

"And didn't go back?"

"Yes, after a few minutes."

"And what did you say?"

"Nothing about what had happened. I began to chat with Herbert, while Elliot sat looking very much embarrassed."

"Oh, Marian!"

I was aware that these two young men were rivals for Marian's favor. We were southern persons, and in the south our men are hot blooded. Herbert Kenworthy had seen Elliot Walker give Marian what appeared to be an insult, which she could only resent as a woman. If trouble between the young men did not result then I was no judge of human nature. All this flashed through my brain, and I said to Marian:

"Did your two visitors show any animosity toward each other?"

"None whatever. But, grandma, I have heard since that which leads me to fear"—

"What?"

"I have been told that this morning they were playing billiards together at the club and Elliot charged Herbert with shoving up points that he had not made. Herbert called Elliot a liar, and Elliot struck him."

I did not ask to hear any more. I knew well that the young men would not play billiards together after what had occurred except for a purpose, that purpose being to make it appear that a different cause from the real one had resulted in an animosity which would doubtless lead to a duel, their object being to keep Marian's name from being involved in the affair.

"What have you heard since?" I asked anxiously of Marian.

"Nothing."

I doubted if Marian foresaw what would be the probable result of all this, and I dreaded to tell her. Nevertheless if she did not prevent a meeting between these two young men and one of them killed the other, she being responsible for the act, her life would be blighted.

"Marian," I said, "you must go at once to Herbert Kenworthy and tell him that it was your fault that Elliot kissed you."

"Oh, grandma, I can't!"

"This quarrel has nothing to do with billiards. It is about you. Herbert has constituted himself your champion, understanding that Elliot insulted you."

"I have thought that myself," said Marian, paling.

"A duel will surely follow."

Marian looked at me with a frightened expression that excited my pity, but I knew that it was no time to indulge in anything but action. I impressed upon her the necessity of her preventing any further trouble between her two suitors. During our conversation it came out that she had made a choice between all her suitors, including the two in question. This she revealed to me, though I was the only person she confided it to. She loved Elliot Walker. Thinking she needed my support, I told her that I would go with her to see Herbert Kenworthy. She made no reply for awhile to this proposition. I could see that a struggle was going on within her, but I was ignorant as to just what it was. Presently she rose.

"What are you going to do?" I asked.

"I am going to see Herbert."

"Do you wish me to go with you?"

"No, grandma."

This was the first indication of strength I saw in her, and it was some relief. She left me, and later I heard her pony phaeton on the gravel walk. I waited anxiously for her return. When she came I saw by the expression on her face that she had not succeeded in her object.

"Well?" I said interrogatively.

"I went to Herbert's house," she said, "called him out and we had a conference on the veranda. I told him I had heard that he and Elliot had had an altercation. I inferred that he had seen Elliot kiss me and me resent the act. I begged that he would not constitute himself my defender. He replied that he had not done so, but admitted that he and Elliot had got into a quarrel from words that had passed between them relative to Elliot's act. I then admitted that I had encouraged Elliot to kiss me.

"He looked very much surprised and pained at this. I knew that his contempt had passed from Elliot to me. I told him that since I had exonerated Elliot I should expect him to apologize to Elliot for anything he might have said under a misunderstanding. After some thought he told me that any woman in such a case, to prevent trouble between two of her men friends, would assume the blame. There was no use in my doing so. The affair had gone too far to be smoothed over. I argued with him for some time, but could get nothing out of him. Then I came away."

"You must see Elliot. The one who has given the challenge is the one to offer the olive branch."

"I have seen Elliot. The challenge had come from Herbert, Elliot having struck him. Elliot apologized to me humbly for having kissed me. He admitted that the scene in the billiard room had been concocted to keep my name out of the quarrel. He would gladly on my account put a stop to it, but could not refuse a challenge without being disgraced."

"And as the matter stands the two men will meet tomorrow morning?"

"I suppose so."

The case was a knotty one. The only way I could see out of it was for Marian to choose between the two men. She might tell Herbert that she loved Elliot, but I doubted if this would prevent a meeting that had become a public matter and with which she was not known to be connected. It would probably save Elliot from injury, but this would not be fair to Herbert.

"The only hope I see to prevent this meeting, Marian," I said, putting my arms about her, "is to tell them both that you love Elliot. That would, I think, dispose of the matter. Herbert would withdraw his challenge."

I could feel her shiver in my arms at this alternative, but she said nothing, though later she told me that Elliot had made her no proposal.

The day was now ended, and nothing had been accomplished. I determined to leave Marian free to act for herself till the last minute; then if she did not act I would endeavor to force her to do so. We remained in the same room through the night without disrobing. After 12 o'clock I fell asleep on a lounge. I was aroused at dawn by Marian.

"Come," she said.

Without asking her where we were to go I went with her. I knew. She knew where the meeting would take place, and we proceeded there. Since Elliot had not proposed to her I could not see what she would do. We waited an hour a short distance from the field and finally saw one party come on to it, then the other. The seconds were engaged at the preliminaries when Marian advanced, I following her.

"What will stop this affair?" she asked.

There was no reply from either. Marian asked all to withdraw except the principals.

"I can think of only one way to stop it," she said. "I love one of you gentlemen. Will you both agree to shake hands if I name the one I love?"

At this they were all attention. Then Herbert nodded an assent, and Elliot followed.

"The one who kissed me," said Marian and covered her face with her hands.

Elliot started for her, but I was too quick for him and carried her away.

The duel did not take place. There is a sequel to this story, but it is a long one. Elliot was a long while in gaining Marian's consent to marry him That kiss kept him from another for more than a year.

John J. Shea, former Tammany nan contractor in New York, was convicted in federal court at Toledo. He was charged with defrauding Wilbur L. Rundle, a farmer of Oakland county, Michigan, of $3,000 by a fake wire tapping and horse race betting scheme.

Max Schoeneman, clothier, was arrested at Sault Ste Marie on a charge of statutory offense. The girl complainant in the case is Doris Skidmore, seventeen years old, and pretty. Another case charging him with serving liquor to a minor girl is now pending. Schoeneman is a former police commissioner.

The final tragic chapter was written in the life of Frederick F. Arms, whose family was at one time among the richest in Michigan, when he committed suicide at his home at Grand Rapids. The Arms formerly lived in Muskegon, and were one of the group of millionaire families which the lumbering industry made in the Sawdust City.

Friday night the Sophomores enjoyed a sleigh load party to Clinton. About twenty beautiful boys and girls were on deck for the occasion with Miss Armstrong as chaperon. Upon arriving in the metropolis, the crowd piled out to take in the sights and to avail themselves of the radiators in the Clintonian. Then they started on their homeward trip singing in unison, "We wont get home 'til morning!" Unfortunately they did get home before morning, and after partaking of a delicious hot lunch at Hay's, the party disbanded to their respective homes, "Tired but happy."

P. S. And they lived happy ever afterwards.

The Freshmen English classes have come across many amusing sentences, such as follows:

"The Italians have as a national heritance a love for the beautiful, but many who cross the ocean are very sea sick."

"A victorious general was returning to his nativecity after many hard fought battles with his staff officers."

"Pestilence is liable to result from drinking water in time of flood in a city unless it is boiled."

We have with us several new scholars who make their presence known by crawling down the girls backs. Mr. Davidson, who has volunteered to tutor six of these very apt scholars, reports that they are progressing rapidly—in other words "multam ex anum," that is, they are multiplying.

As the introduction of these students did not quite suit the faculty, a gallant brigade was organized for their extermination! (Alas—alack!) [illegible] and a bottle of corrosive sublimate, covered every crack and crevice with the liquid.

Mr. Cuthbert, upon being asked why he was painting the inside of the clock so vigorously, replied that very often the bugs were found between the "ticks." "See the joke?" Alright, then laugh."

The Freshmen had a sleigh ride out to Percy VanValkenburg's last Thursday night. A very lively time was reported and refreshments were served.

Mr. Goodrich was very kind last Monday and gave the Chemistry class a nice examination. He was not as liberal the next morning, though, when he gave out the "marks."

Leslie Johnson began a very interesting report on "Gulliver's Travels" by saying that he was married and got four hundred pounds.

As the assembly room in our new quarters is not large enough to accommodate all those who wish to study, most of the students will be forced to get their lessons at home.

STEAMER LAURENTIC DIVER OR MINE VICTIM

Only 12 Officers and 109 Men Are Saved.

LONDON, ENG.—The British auxiliary cruiser Laurentic of 14,892 tons gross has been sunk by a submarine or as a result of striking a mine, according to an official statement issued by the British admiralty. Twelve officers and 109 men were saved.

The admiralty statement adds that the vessel went down off the Irish coast last Thursday.

Before being taken over by the British admiralty for auxiliary cruiser the Laurentic was in the Canadian service of the White Star Dominion line. She was the largest vessel in the Canadian trade and a sister ship of the Majestic, which was also requisitioned by the admiralty.

James Alexander Hayward, the eccentric millionaire owner of the former Berrien county seat properties at Berrien Springs, who gained considerable notoriety last fall in Chicago when he drew $50,000 from a Chicago bank and disappeared, is being sued for divorce by Mrs. May M. One pet scheme of the Michigan State Bar association—an amendment to the constitution permitting the counsel for the state to comment on a defendant's failure to testify in his own behalf—has not yet turned up in the legislature, but as legislative committee of the association at its meeting in Lansing before the holidays announced that the proposed amendment would be presented to the solons, it is expected almost any time.

U. S. SOLDIERS STONED BY MOB

Rioting at Juarez by Mexicans Increases in Violence.

MEN JOIN WOMEN IN ATTACKS

Two Non-Commissioned Officers Hurt—Carranza Cavalry Finally Quells Outbreak—One Waverer Shouts "Viva Villa" Too Soon—Pershing Crosses Border Monday.

EL PASO, TEXAS — Rioting in Juarez as a result of American quarantine regulations has been resumed. It was a continuation of the demonstration Sunday, in which hundreds of women took part.

More men than women have taken part. Rioters approaching the middle of the international bridge hurled missiles at United States soldiers on guard. Two noncommissioned officers were injured, one by a flying bottle and the other by a rock.

Mexican cavalry ultimately succeeded in driving the demonstrators away from the bridge. Andres Garcia, inspector general of Carranza consulates, crossed to Juarez to attempt to pacify the mob. There was no street car traffic.

Trouble Starts Over Domestics.

The situation in Juarez developed from a purely local demonstration against the quarantine regulations, led by a number of Mexican domestics employed in El Paso, into a general demonstration Monday against Americans, with an undercurrent of Mexican politics running high. Villa partisans were said to have been active among the mobs at the bridge and the new phase has caused the Carranza officials much concern. Street car service to Mexico was stopped for the day.

Mexican Killed, Is Report.

Government agents here insisted they had received reports from sources they considered reliable that a Mexican who shouted: "Viva Villa! Death to Carranza!" was shot and killed in Juarez. This was denied by Carranza officials in both sides of the river. One report was that the Mexican, who had been drinking Saturday night, awoke to find a mob in front of his home. Thinking Villa had taken the town he was said to have shouted for Villa and was shot down by Carranza soldiers.

Orders Ringleaders Arrested.

Chief of Police Maximo Torres of Juarez announced he had ordered all ringleaders of the quarantine riots at the international bridge arrested, according to government agents here. This order included both men and women, it is said. The chief of police [illegible] responsible for the rioting.

U. S. Troops at Border Next Monday

WASHINGTON — The war department has been notified in dispatches from Major General Funston that the withdrawal of the American punitive expedition in Mexico was progressing satisfactorily and the last troops should cross the border next Monday.

Mexican Women Mob Americans.

EL PASO, TEXAS — Anti-American riots broke out in Juarez, Mexico, across the Rio Grande river. Mobs stormed street cars on which Americans were riding and drove the Americans from the town.

General Bell, in command of the United States troops here, immediately issued an order prohibiting Mexicans from crossing to the American side.

The Mexicans retaliated by barring all traffic across the International bridge. The races at the Juarez track were declared off.

Pershing on Way Home.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Formal announcement that the Pershing expeditionary forces in Mexico had been ordered home and is now in its way back to American soil, was made by the war department. The announcement stated that the northward movement was already under way, bearing out reports from Mexico that Pershing's troops have been retiring for about a week.

Secretary Baker, announcing the recall of Pershing, said: "General Pershing has been ordered to bring his troops out of Mexico. The movement is to be an immediate one and is probably already under way."

DRY AMENDMENT MEANS IT

Iowa Measure Is in No Need of Further Tinkering to Make It Good.

DES MOINES, IOWA — Attorney General H. M. Havner in an opinion holds that the constitutional amendment providing for prohibition is correct and constitutional as worded, and is in need of no further amendment before action is taken by the house of representatives.

The amendment with the resolution submitting it to the people already has passed the senate.

Oconomowoc Youth to Front.

MILWAUKEE, WIS. — To offer his services as an ambulance driver to the Red Cross, Graham Bullen, student in the arts and science department at Marquette university, and member of a wealthy family in Oconomowoc, Wis., son of the late Richard Bullen, a Chicago broker, has gone to France, according to Dean Atkinson of the university.

C. L. Glasgow was elected chairman of the state railroad commission.

The hard coal supply at Lapeer is entirely exhausted. Dealers are asking $15 a ton.

The coal supply in Menominee is sufficient for the city and vicinity for another month.

The Alama Farm Light Plant company of Omaha, Neb., may locate a factory in Hillsdale.

Fire which broke out in the Whitney theater caused damage amounting to $4,000 at Ann Arbor.

The shortage of coal has forced the brick yards located near East Lansing to close temporarily.

Kalamazoo plans to entertain 2,000 Michigan grocers and retail dealers when the state association meets there February 19-22.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR.

Wednesday, Jan. 24.—A German success occurred in the region of Riga, where, in violent fighting, they drove back the Russians for a distance of a mile and a half between the Tirul swamp and the Aa river and east of Kalnzeem. Russians to the number of 1,500 were made prisoner.

A night surprise attack gave the Russians a victory over the Bulgarians, south of the Danube estuary, near Tultcha. Berlin mentions the abandonment of the position. Petrograd says the Bulgarian force, a battalion strong, was destroyed.

Thursday, Jan. 25.—Three terrific battles are in progress on the frozen swamps of the Riga region. Late dispatches from Berlin report an advance for the Germans on both sides of the river Aa.

Earlier in the day Berlin announced that Prince Leopold's troops had captured Russian fortified works along a front of six miles, taking 1,700 prisoners and thirteen machine guns. Further attempts of the Germans to advance on the Riga sector were repulsed, with heavy losses.

French troops launched a successful attack against the German positions between Les Eparges and the Calonne trench, on the right bank of the River Meuse, north of Verdun. Numerous German dead were found by the French in the Teuton trenches and important booty was captured.

An early report favoring the bill will be made. It was understood that as a last resort the wets would urge the passage of the Porter resolution, hoping to defeat its ratification.

FRANKLIN AHEAD AS USUAL

We clip the following from the telegram as being of unusual interest, as Franklin township is certainly up and doing when it is for the betterment of the community.

County School Commissioner George J. Tripp visited the centralized school in Chesterfield township, Fulton county Ohio, Monday, together with four Franklin men who are encouraging the adoption of such a school system in this county. The Franklin township representatives who accompanied Mr. Tripp yesterday were Hoyt Whelan Supervisor Thomas Conlin, former Supervisor Geo. Taylor and Township Clerk John Ruesink. After their visit the Lenawee men returned more favorably impressed than ever with the modern plan of school government. It is said that enough signers have already been secured in Franklin township to have the question submitted to the voters.

OUR SCHOOL BOARD HAS ITS TROUBLES

High School Closed for a Few Days

The high school which opened up Wednesday morning in the Vendoma Hotel proved to be a short session as it was dismissed at the end of the day so that the building might be thorougly cleansed and fumigated.

The hotel has stood idle for a number of years and the school board thot when they had rented the building and that school would be the only occupants but lo and behold it was tenanted Legal proceedings have not been resorted to remove the tenants, for they are taking the law in their own hands, and will kill every one that they can catch

The battle royal is in progress and a preparation is being used that is recommended by the government which it is hoped will get rid of the pests The Anderson building has been rented for the 7th and 8th grades and will be put in readiness for school as soon as the Poultry show moves out.

POULTRY SHOW

A BIG SUCCESS

500 Birds on Exhibition

The first annual Tecumseh Poultry Show is in full swing in the Anderson store, and every available foot of floor space is being used. The Management feel unusually well pleased with the success of their first show. There are over five hundred birds on exhibit, and while many have been shipped in by fancy breeders from different sections of the state, still our own people living in Tecumseh and vicinity, are well represented, which shows that we have very fine poultry breeders in this locality.

As you enter the building, attention is called to exhibits of poultry feed by the Tecumseh Co-Operative Association, poultry remedies by B. J. Pulver and others. On a nearby table stands an attractive basket containing about 140 snow white eggs representing one day's product from the poultry farm of LeClare Whelan of Tipton. From the front of the building and running the full length, are arranged four rows of steel coops, two rows in the center and one row on each side. These coops contain about 500 birds of all varieties and kinds. In the rear of the store is found the pet stock exhibit of rabbits, Belgian hares, Guinea pigs, bantams, etc.

The attendance has been good and people have been taking a keen interest in the show.

S. Scofield of Morenci is judge and is busy judging stock which will be completed some time today. We asked the judge how this show compared with others that he had attended.

His reply was, "Very good. There are at this show birds of unusual class and as good if not better than I have seen at other shows."

The show closes Saturday night and the officers of the association feel very well pleased with the success of their first show.

A special feature of this show will be the lecture this evening at 7:30 o'clock at Grange Hall by Prof. C. H. Burgen of the M. A. C. Prof. Burgen is authority on poultry and poultry feed and will take for his subject, "Successful Poultry Raising."

COMMUNICATIONS

NOTICE

To the citizens of Tecumseh

My dog bit Eva Wood and through some unknown action no one can account for. I wish to state I feel as sorry as any one, I am human.

I am "the dog man," but not a "dog thief." I am bringing up five little girls and trying to bring them up to be worth respecting and to be respectable citizens, if I am "the dog man."

I would have killed the dog but Dr. Hammel ordered the dog tied up ten days and he is the man of authority.

Please do not believe all you hear our high county officer tell in the hotel lobby about me and my dogs Stop and consider where it comes from.

I thank the Tecumseh Herald for getting the full details of all stories correct, before sending them to press.

Yours respectfully,
Floyd Owen.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S THE LAST PERFORMANCE

"Daughter of the Gods," William Fox's Million Dollar Picture Closes a Six Weeks' Engagement at Detroit.

Saturday night marks the last Detroit performance of the world's greatest motion picture, "The Daughter of the Gods" with Annette Kellerman, which has been playing a six weeks engagement at the Washington theatre, Detroit. The engagement which was originally made for two weeks was lengthened to six to take care of the enormous crowds which clamored to see this wonderful spectacle. Capacity houses have been the rule at every performance, both matinee and night, every day in the week including Sundays.

Tecumseh gets the picture beautiful in just three days after Detroit as "The Daughter of the Gods" will be presented at the Bradley Opera House next Wednesday and Thursday, February 7 and 8, with a matinee Thursday afternoon at 2:15 The picture that is creating a furore throughout the entire country, now having phenomenal runs in New York, Chicago and many other big cities.

Dazzling the eye, astounding the mind, stirring the heart and overshadowing anything previously conceived or executed by master-minds of moving pictures. A generation in advance of all other film achievements. Gorgeous and glittering fairyland, wondrously appealing and fascinating blending of the Arabian Nights and 'Never, Never Land' for the children. Completely absorbing and amazing the imagination of the grown-ups

A complete symphony orchestra of 20 players is carried by the company They also carry their own machines, booths operators, screens and in fact carry everything used in the production complete. The fact is they don't even use the piano in the orchestra pit The seat sale for "The Daughter of the Gods" opens at Hay's Bakery Monday morning at 8 o'clock and it is a safe thing to say that the wise ones will buy early.

In offering "The Daughter of the Gods" to the people of Tecumseh, the local management wishes to guarantee the patrons that they will see one of the greatest and finest entertainments ever presented on any stage, not only in Tecumseh but on any stage Critics everywhere back up this statement "The Daughter of the Gods" is the only "Million Dollar picture in existance"

BIRTHDAY SUPPER

The Westminster Guild of the Presbyterian church served a "Birthday Supper" in the church parlors Wednesday evening. Departing from the usual cut and dried affair, they arranged a very novel scheme by providing twelve tables representing each month in the year

Each person was supposed to pay a penny for each year of their age with a minimum charge of 15c and a maximum charge of 85c

The tables presented a very pretty appearance, the decorations being very unique and attractive.

The January table had for a centerpiece a bank of sparkling snow (batting) around a frozen lake (mirror) with shining candelabra and glassware to represent ice.

February—valentine decorations, a large red heart suspended over the table with strands of hearts from the chandelier and from the center of the table to the corners. The waiters at this table wore necklaces of hearts.

March—the shamrock held sway, a beautiful pot of the growing plant in the center of the table with large and small shamrocks scattered around Strings of green pipes edged the table

April—On this table violets were the predominating decoration.

The May table had as a centerpiece a May pole which dolls were twining with pink and blue ribbons.

June, the month of brides and roses, bore a large bunch in the center with strands of roses from the light above, and two miniature brides hidden in the flowers.

July—the National Holiday was fitly represented, Old Glory being in evidence, also a small cannon.

August, the month of vacations and recreations, had for a centerpiece a lake with real bathers resting on the sandy beach.

September was beautiful with autumn leaves.

The October table bore Hallowe'en decorations of black cats, etc., and the waiters wore Hallowe'en caps.

For November, Thanksgiving Day was represented with its turkey and other good things to eat.

A real Christmas tree with Santa Claus was December's decorations.

A two course supper was served at which the ladies cleared about $40 The patronesses, Mrs. E H Halladay, Mrs. Chas Kemp and Mrs J. J. Orr, received their guests and ushered them to their birthday tables The committee having the affair in charge and to whose hard work and management the Guild owe the success of the affair are Miss Genevieve Halladay, Mrs. W. A. Rex and Mrs Robt Stuckey.

BERT PRICE OUT ON THE WAR PATH

No matter how careful the driver may be, be driving a railroad engine, a horse or an automobile, he is apt to have a fun a-way of some kind. Bert Price is no exception but is considered one of the most fortunate of auto drivers.

However, when going to Clinton the first of the week with a passenger, the steering gear of his machine became unruly, and the auto went in its own sweet way, trying to climb a telephone pole, the pole broke off with the force of the impact, rushing on madly, the car struck another pole, becoming entangled in the wires from the power house, and these crossing the telephone wires, several phones were burned out. Also one long distance line put out of commission. The car was badly demor but fortunately no one was hurt.

Millions Of DOllars Have Been Deposited In This Bank.

Never Has A Depositor Lost A Single Cent.

During the more than sixty years in which this bank has been accepting money for deposit millions of dollars have been entrusted to its care; and during this long and honorable career, not a single depositor has lost a single penny in it or through it.

In over half a century of continuous banking—through prosperous periods, wars and panics, never has a depositor, asking for his money, had to wait.

It is with this record behind us that we urge all who have not already deposited their savings, in whole or in part, with this strong, old savings bank, to join the hundreds who have and ask us for a savings book or certificate of deposit. We pay 3 per cent.

All deposits made by the fifth of February draw interest from the first.

5,000,000 Corns Lifted Right Off!

Try 2 Drops of Magic "Gets-It."

There's a wonderful difference between getting rid of a corn now and the way they used to try to get rid of it only four or five years ago. "Gets-It" has revolutionized corn history. It's the only corn remedy

"See? Just 2 Drops of 'Gets-It.' Now Tomorrow I'll Just Peel That Corn Right Off—and It's Gone!"

today that acts on the new principle, not only of shriveling up the corn, but of loosening the corn off—so loose that you can lift it right off with your fingers. Put 2 drops of "Gets-It" on that corn or callus tonight. That's all. The corn is doomed sure as sunrise. No pain, or trouble, or soreness. You do away once and for all with toe-bundling bandages, toe-eating salves and irresponsible what-nots. Try it—get surprised and lose a corn.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

NATION IS ON GUARD AGAINST PLOTTERS

Sentinels Protect Government Mints and Offices.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Machinery of national, state and local governments sprang into sudden activity to take precautions against any acts of German sympathizers threatening damage to the country from without or within. Preparations for national defense by army, navy and the industries which support them showed a quick response to the stimulation of the break with Germany.

The White House grounds have been closed to visitors and extra police stationed at all gates. Admission to the state, war and navy building, where thousands of important public documents and records are kept, is now by official pass only.

MRS. CONROY IS ACQUITTED

Society Woman Who Married Worker Was Charged With Murdering Him.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 5.—Mrs. Mary Conroy, charged with the murder on November 20 of her husband, Edward Conroy, was acquitted.

Mrs. Conroy, a society woman, who married a workingman, pleaded self-defense. The prosecution charged her with shooting her husband during a quarrel over money which he gave her to buy shoes with and claimed she squandered it.

A Bridge Party in Japan.

It wasn't long after we landed before we saw the Japanese woman, the type that old Japan creates. She and some others were having a bridge party. Sounds inviting, but it wasn't. About twenty of them were driving piles for a new bridge. The sun was scorching, the timbers enormous and the man overseer was abusing them. For weren't they only women? Without education and with old Japan's idea of women crushing them down, they deemed themselves pretty fortunate to have even such work and the princely sum of 10 cents a day.

No, it isn't enough for old Japan that the women should have a baby every year. They must work, work like men and animals. In Nikko we could see from a distance a long line of bowed figures climbing the steep bank of the river Daiya, and on coming nearer we saw that they were old, old women, wrinkled and gray, carrying barrels—not baskets, but barrels of stone from the river bed to the road. Such is the reverence for age in Japan.—Jean Price in World Outlook.

Alaska.

Alaska is an outlying possession. Seward bought it of Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000. He and it became a national joke for that generation, and except for "Seward's icebox" it attracted but little attention. Having more than half a million square miles in area, it is more than ten times larger than any state east of the Mississippi and contains mountain systems, valleys and mighty rivers. Switzerland could be lost around the base of Mount McKinley. It is only since Klondike days that Alaska has at all been taken seriously, and even from that date the development has come slowly. But Alaska has only been scratched. Alaska is the biggest prize in the Pacific ocean. Its material possibilities are illimitable, and we are permitting it to stand utterly unprotected when with only a little care on our part it could be made impregnable.—Century.

New York's Great Bridges.

The five giant spans of steel, which, like gargantuan fingers, clutch the two sides of East river, binding New York and Brooklyn together, cost America's metropolis half as much as the Panama canal cost the federal government. Three of them, says the National Geographic Magazine, are suspended from cables the wires of which, if placed end to end, would more than twice girdle the earth. If placed side by side these five great structures would provide a roadway as wide as the Washington monument is high, and if placed end to end they would make a great bridge over six miles long.

Across the Brooklyn bridge alone 125,000 surface cars travel every twenty-four hours, with other vehicular traffic in proportion.

When Hawaii Was a Republic.

Hawaii was proclaimed a republic July 4, 1894. More than a year before Queen Liliuokalani had been deposed by a committee of public safety because of her attempts, it was claimed, to secure more absolute power. A provisional government was set up, which lasted until the islands were proclaimed a republic. Sanford B. Dole, former head of the provisional government, became president. Unsuccessful attempts had been made to conclude a treaty of annexation with the United States. The islands were finally annexed July 7, 1898, as a war measure, the United States being then at war with Spain. They were organized a territory June 14, 1900. Ex-President Dole was appointed governor by President McKinley.

An Odd Bequest.

The following is one of the oddest bequests ever recorded in a last testament. It appeared in the will of a Bristol mariner proved in 1795: The old gentleman ordered his executors to "pay out of the first moneys collected, to my beloved wife, if living, 1 shilling, which I have given as a token of my love, that she may buy hazelnuts, as I know that she is better pleased with cracking them than she is with mending the holes in her stockings."

ALL CREEDS JOIN TO VISIT MILLION HOMES

Protestants, Catholics and Jews Go in Pairs.

New York, Feb. 5.—Sunday the world saw something it never saw before. Protestants, Catholics and Jews united in an effort to visit every one of the million or more homes in the city and talk religion.

The visitors went forth in pairs, a Protestant and a Catholic, or a Jew and a Protestant, or a Catholic and a Jew. They left invitations, printed in eight languages, asking attendance at whatever church, synagogue or Sunday school is preferred.

The visitors also asked the religious belief or preference or those they talked with. Thus a religious census of the city was taken.

Heading the movement were Cardinal Farley, Bishop David H. Greer, Bishop Luther B. Wilson, Rabbi de S. Pool, Bishop Frederick Burgess, Bishop Charles E. McDonnell, Bishop M. W. Leibert, Bishop P. J. Hayes and many other prominent ecclesiastics.

GERMANS BURN INTERNED SHIP

Gunboat Geier Is Set on Fire at Honolulu.

LINER CREWS UNDER GUARD

Preconcerted Attempt Is Made at Many Ports by German Interned Sailors to Destroy or Disable Ships. Engines Damaged in Nearly Every Instance.

Honolulu, Feb. 5.—The interned German gunboat Geier is burning in the harbor here.

The boat was set on fire by the crew, according to local authorities.

The Geier, of 1,604 tons, was interned here shortly after the war began.

It was built at Wilhelmshaven in 1894.

Orders Crews Guarded.

Philadelphia, Feb. 5.—Upon instructions from Washington, W. H. Berry, collector of the port, ordered the officers and crews of the German liners Prinz Oskar and Rhaetia and the Austrian merchantman Franconia confined to their vessels.

The guard about the ships was materially increased after the order became effective.

The three crews aggregate about 500 men.

Manila Destruction Attempt.

Washington, Feb. 5.—German crews on some of the war-bound ships laid up in Philippine harbors have attempted to destroy their machinery, and the authorities have taken appropriate steps.

There are twenty-three ships in Philippine ports, seventeen of them at Manila.

Guards have been placed on the vessels. The Germans have discharged Filipinos in the crews.

Cripple Ship Engines.

New York, Feb. 5.—The crews of the German ships tied up at Hoboken are reported to have put their engines out of commission.

A German sailor on the Wilhelm II. asserted, as he was abandoning the vessels with others of the crew, that the engine on his own and the other ships had been damaged beyond repair.

It was understood that both the German ships in Hoboken and those in New York, numbering more than a score, were to be seized by the custom-house authorities.

Crews at Boston Held.

Boston, Feb. 5.—The crews of five German steamers and one Austrian in this port were ordered confined to their vessels, in orders received by local customs officials from the treasury department at Washington.

Far Fields Are Always Green.

Nearly every fellow is in hopes that some day he will be able to quit the kind of work he is doing. If it is hard work, he wants to do something easy, and if it is easy he wants a position that isn't so confining. If he has a job where he works in an office part of the time and on the street part of the time he wants to get into something where he won't always have to be running in and out.

The clerk in a store thinks he would like a place where he wouldn't have to work regular hours, and the man whose time belongs to himself thinks he would like to be a clerk. "When you are through with the day's work," he says to the clerk, "you're through, but I have always got something to worry me."

Husband thinks that doing the housework and talking to the neighbor is a snap, and wife feels that she would be perfectly happy if she could go out and work like a man does.

Almost everybody is dissatisfied with his job and is determined that his son shall not do that kind of work. Even the fellow who draws an enormous salary isn't contented—he feels he ought to be doing something else.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

How a Beaver Can Work.

A young beaver in Regent's park gardens, London, was once placed at work upon a tree twelve feet long and two feet six inches thick just as the town clocks sounded the hour of noon. The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground. That done, he attacked the wood. He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he ate his supper of bread and carrots and paddled about in his pond until half past 5 o'clock. Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work, and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground he portioned it out mentally and again began to gnaw. He worked at intervals all night, cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter. The work done, he took a bath.

Constable and His Picture.

Constable, the eminent British painter, once sat on the hanging committee of the British Royal academy when a small landscape was brought up for judgment and pronounced "awfully bad" by everybody but himself. He rose and made a short and startling speech. "That picture was painted by me. I had a notion that some of you didn't like my work, and this is pretty convincing proof. I am very much obliged to you." When his colleagues recovered from their stupefaction the head carpenter was bidden to bring back the picture. But Constable would not have it. "Out it goes!" he said grimly.

PHILADELPHIA IS REPORTED SUNK

President Wilson Seeks to Line Up Neutrals.

MORAL FORCE IS SOUGHT

Bold Stroke Made to Combat German Sea Warfare—Congress Ready to Act—Earlier Developments — Passports to Bernstorff—Roosevelt Volunteers—Interned Liners Seized.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 5.—That the American liner Philadelphia has been sunk with the loss of 200 lives is the report given out here. The dispatch has been passed by the censors' office which refuses to permit the passage of further details. The Philadelphia was well within the war zone and not far from the English coast at the time she is reported to have been sunk. While she had sailed too late to take precautions outlined in the German declaration even if it had been intended to comply with them, she carried plain identification marks, the name "Philadelphia of New York" being painted in huge white letters which covered either side of the vessel.

London, Feb. 5.—The Norwegian steamship Ymir, of 11,233 tons, has been sunk by a submarine, according to announcement by Lloyds. Part of the crew was saved.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Besides breaking off diplomatic relations with Germany, President Wilson has made a bold stroke to range the moral force of all other neutral countries along with that of the United States in the interest of peace.

The President has suggested to all the other neutrals that they break off diplomatic relations with Germany as the United States has done, and has instructed all American diplomats in those countries to report immediately how the suggestion is received.

The opinion in diplomatic quarters here is that European neutrals, at the very doorstep of Germany, threatened by her military power, will hesitate to take such a step. The effect of the suggestion in other countries is being eagerly awaited.

Preparations are continued to defend the country in case of hostilities. Armed guards have been stationed about the treasury building and similar guard have been ordered placed at the mints and assay offices in other cities.

Congress Ready to Act.

Aroused to patriotic support of the President, congress is preparing to rush through any legislation necessary to safeguard the country. Chairman Simmons of the senate finance committee, summoned to the White House, told the President congress would act promptly to provide war revenue as soon as it became necessary. Mr. Wilson explained to him that nothing had occurred so far to require additional revenue.

Earlier Developments.

Earlier news of the United States break with Germany summarized:

President made formal announcement to the country and to the world at joint session of congress of his action in breaking off diplomatic relations with Germany and warned the kaiser that ruthless sacrifice of American lives and rights means war.

Similar action is waiting for Austria when she notifies this government that she joins in the campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare.

Passports were handed to Count von Bernstorff; Ambassador Gerard, with all his staff, and all American consuls were ordered out of Germany. All German consuls in the United States will withdraw.

American diplomatic interests in Berlin have been turned over to Spain; German diplomatic interests in the United States have been taken over by Switzerland. Foreign diplomatic interests which the United States had in charge in Germany have been turned over to various neutrals.

When the information came to Count von Bernstorff his eyes moistened and he said to a correspondent: "I'm so sorry. However, I expected it. There was nothing else left for the United States to do. I wonder how I am to get home."

The following interned German vessels have been seized by the United States: Kronprinz Wilhelm, Prinz Eitel Friedrich; Kronprinzessin Cecilie, Savoia, Grunewald, Sachsenwald, Prinz Sigismund, Appam (German prize).

The following German and Austrian vessels are reported to have been damaged to prevent their use by the United States if they are seized: Rhein, Neckar, George Washington, Himalaya.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt offered the services of himself and his four sons to the government in case of war. He also asked permission to organize a division for a volunteer army.

Seventeen bills, mainly aimed to curb activities of disloyal Americans or German sympathizers, were rushed through by the senate subcommittee at the request of President Wilson.

Secretary Daniels asked the house to pass a bill authorizing him to commandeer private establishments having contracts for navy work.

The United States steamer Housatonic was sunk by a German submarine near the Scilly islands, a dispatch from London announces. All the officers and crew were saved by a British armed steader. The rumor was current that the steamer was sent down without warning.

Four Hamburg-American line steamships, which have been in Cristobal harbor at Panama, were seized by the canal zone authorities. Night harbor traffic at Cristobal has been stopped.

According to a report at the Philadelphia navy yard, an attempt was made to sink the torpedo boat Jacob Jones. The chief machinist's mate was arrested and placed in irons, it was said.

HOUSATONIC WARNED AND CREW IS LANDED

British Patrol Called to Pick Up U. S. Sailors.

London, Feb. 5.—The crew of the American steamship Housatonic has been landed at Penzance, England. The Housatonic was warned by the German submarine which sank her, according to John G. Stephens, American consul at Plymouth.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The possibility that the sinking of the American steamer Housatonic will become a serious factor in the crisis with Germany apparently was eliminated by evidence that the attacking submarine acted within international law. American Consul Stephens at Plymouth reported that warning was given and provision made for safety of the crew.

IDAHO JAP BILL IS DOOMED

Senate, It Is Reported, Will Vote Against Anti-Alien Measure.

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 5.—Two hours' discussion of the anti-alien bill at an informal session of the senate resulted in an apparent understanding that the measure, if brought out of committee, would be defeated by almost unanimous vote.

Governor Alexander, appearing before the senate, presented the message from Secretary Lansing, asking that passage be delayed until the state department could investigate the bill.

Tool Shop of the Eastern Forwarding Company Burned.

Waterton's Climb.

The steeplejack's ability to keep his head and feet while working on a "top" which is a ledge three feet wide between abysses 500 feet deep is a gift. Like the poet, the steeplejack is born, not made. Charles Waterton, the naturalist, had the gift and would have adorned the profession—the only one into which men do not drift.

When on a visit to Rome, Waterton determined to rival the feats of the Italian climbers who yearly scaled the dome of St. Peter's and the pinnacles of the castle of St. Angelo, to illuminate their summits on the feast of St. Peter. Eighty men used to climb the dome on two successive nights, and the boldest completed the spectacle by crowning the cross with a waving torch of fire. Each night's show was said, on the average, to cost a man's life. Waterton scaled the dome by daylight and left his glove upon the vane.—Los Angeles Times.

Helping the Clock.

"Aha!" said the head clerk. "I'm glad to notice that you're arriving punctually now, Mr. Slocombe."

"Yes, sir. I've bought a parrot."

"A parrot? What on earth for? I told you to get an alarm clock."

"Yes; I did. But after a day or two I got used to it, and it didn't wake me. So I got the parrot. And now when I go to bed I fix the alarm clock and put the parrot's cage on top of it. When the alarm goes off it startles the parrot, and what that bird says would wake up anybody."—London Fun.

Telephone Number 36

Saturday noon the word was flashed over the wire that President Wilson had severed diplomatic relations with Germany. Tecumseh people, while expecting that such a move was inevitable, were stunned by the suddenness of the message and everywhere it was the absorbing topic of conversation.

At 2 o'clock Saturday the President went before Congress and delivered his speech which announced the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany. This was his answer to Germany's recent note in which it warns American shipping to keep away from hostile waters and announces its intention of waging unrestricted submarine warfare against all shipping which would aid her enemies.

The time for notes and parley is past. The president has kept his word and has taken the course he promised Germany he would take in his note of April 18th, 1916. He further announced that if Germany did sink American boats and lives were sacrificed by their naval commanders in heedless contravention of the just and reasonable understandings of international law and the obvious dictates of humanity, then he would take the liberty of going before Congress and ask the authority be given him to use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on the high seas, and states, "I can do nothing less. I take it for granted that all neutral governments will take the same course."

His course was prompt and courageous and the American people are behind him to a man. God forbid that we should be forced into war, but if it should be necessary for us to take up arms, our people will respond and will meet this crisis as they have met every other crisis that has confronted us in the history of our nation. The Stars and Stripes will not trail in the dust but will wave grandly aloft. American property and lives will be protected if it takes every ounce of American blood to do it.

We must not forget the dangers lurking on our Mexican border, must not leave our back door open while we close our front door.

If war comes we will need more men, more boats and without doubt the President and the various departments at Washington have taken stock and are putting the wheels in motion to provide us with the necessary protection.

Beyond the submarine warfare that Germany has intimated that she would wage against us, we cannot see how she is going to do us much if any damage. She cannot spare troops to send over nor has she the means of getting them over if she wished to. On the other hand, at present we haven't troops to send abroad to fight her. We scarcely have enough troops to even spank Mexico. In our opinion, we are safe today against German invasion.

Let us hope that in some way this move on the part of our government will hasten the day of peace, and in the words of our President. "God grant that we may not be challenged to defend them by acts of willful injustice on the part of the government of Germany."

Where are our flags that float so proudly over our public buildings and homes on our national holidays? Let's get them out and let them float to the breeze. If ever a call of pariotism is needed it is now. Get out your flags and show that Tecumseh has a town full of red blooded Americans.

FREE CLINICS

For Tuberculosis or Other Diseases.

The State Board of Health Tuberculosis Survey will be held in Lenawee county during the week beginning February 19. Special efforts will be made to secure the co-operation of the churches, of the employers of labor, and of various local organizations. During the week before the free public examinations are to be held State Board of Health nurses will come here to make all the necessary preparations for the free examinations.

The pastors in the various towns in the country will be asked by the State Health workers to place the subject before their congregations, to call attention to the dates and places of the public examinations, and to impress upon their congregations the advisability of taking advantage of this opportunity for a physical examination.

Similarly employers of labor throughout the country will be requested to let those of their employees who are run down or who need a physical examination for any reason go to the free clinics. The State Board of Health is trying, in all these county health campaigns, to get into close touch with all persons whose work is indoors and who consequently are more likely to be physically run down, then those who work in the open air.

The State Health nurses morever will get into touch with all the local physicians they can reach and with all persons of influence in the various communities in the county in an effort to secure their aid. The main purpose of this work is to get as many physically run down persons in each community as possible to submit to an examination.

"I cannot make it to plain," said Dr. William DeKleine, director of the survey, "thet these examinations are not exclusively for people who have tuberculosis or who fear they have it. We are anxious to examine all who are run down. More than have of those we have examined in other counties had no trace of the disease, and it is worth a great deal to such people to have this fact established by actual test."

AMERICA'S LAST HERO

By Lamonte Austin, May, 1898

Heroes have come, and heroes have gone
For many a long century past;
But of America's brave heroes
Commander Dewey is the last.

As soon as war was declared,
Dewey was sent with his fleet
To the coast of the Phillippine Islands,
The Spanish Squadron to meet.

Dewey sailed up to the bay;
The Spanish vessels were there alright,
But he turned around and sailed back
Just as if he were afraid to fight.

At night the Spaniards thought he was afraid of them,
So they went to sweet repose
And what was their surprise in the morning,
To find Dewey right under their nose;

And when the battle began,
Dewey did his very best;
The sailors worked their hardest
And the gunners did the rest.

The Spanish boats were completely filled
With balls that our sharp shooters sent,
Many of the soldiers were killed,
And their ships to the bottom went.

And Dewey's name will always be written
On a page of History's book,
As America's great Naval Commander
Who, the Spanish Foundations shook.

And Dewey will be remembered
Long after his dying day;
His name will be on the lips of the working man,
And on the lips of the boy at play.

Though we are young we can be Patriots;
There is one thing we surely can do;
When it comes to praising our heros
We can all raise the Red, White and Blue.

Lamonte Austin

Lamonte Austin when fourteen years of age, one of Miss Wimple's pupils in the eighth grade wrote the poem the day he heard the news of Dewey's success. Miss Wimple found it in his desk after he went out of the grade. She has read it to all the eight grades since.

POSTMASTER GENERAL BURLESON

The railway mail clerks are having quite a struggle with Postmaster General Burleson who has not only shown indifferent concern for his capable and efficient railway mail clerks, who have to work all kinds of hours, in the night and in the day and who must eat at irregular times, but he has actually reduced their pay. This is the most shameful act that the U. S. government has ever perpetuated on its employes. While every big organization in the country is increasing the pay of its help in order to enable them to meet the high cost of living it has remained for Postmaster-General Burleson to move in the opposite direction and reduce their salaries in many instances thereby treating the railway mail clerk, particularly but little better than a slave. It is believed that congress will overrule Mr. Burleson in this matter, and restore the salaries that were reduced and give them reasonable increase besides. The railway mail clerks are subjected to greater hardships than any others in being forced to eat their meals at all sorts of irregular hours and to respond to the "call of Uncle Sam" at any hour in the day or night.

"A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS"

In bringing "A Daughter of the Gods" the million dollar picture beautiful with Annette Kellerman, to Tecumseh, theatre goers are guaranteed the best treat ever presented here. This wonderful production just closed a six weeks run at the Washington theatre, Detroit, last Saturday night with a record of capacity business at every matinee and night performance. We are getting this same magnificent production and orchestra right here in Tecumseh within three days after Detroit, which is some record for a town the size of this, and you are not asked to pay an exorbitant price either. At Detroit the main floor was $1.50 here you see the same wonderful pictures, hear the same magnificent orchestra and the best seats only cost you a $1.00. No person will ever begrudge the dollar after seeing this magnificent spectacle. It is the best, most wonderful entertainment you ever saw for a dollar and you can see it for even less than that as the gallery is only 50 cents and children 25c. Think of it the same magnificent entertainment exactly as seen in Detroit and all of the larger cities and at cheaper prices.

The Detroit Journal of January 29th had the following to say regarding "The Daughter of the Gods."

A six weeks' run for a motion picture in this gay village is quite an achievement, but Annette Kellermann's million-dollar film vehicle started to make it an even half dozen at the Washington theater Sunday afternoon. This will be the last week, too, positively, according to the management, and inasmuch as the attraction for next week is being heralded the announcement sounds genuine enough. The final showing of "A Daughter of the Gods," then, will be made Saturday evening. In taking a last glimpse at the wonderful film two things impress themselves on the memory: First, the extraordinary beauty of the natural backgrounds of the story and the way the fairy-tale element is skillfully intertwined, and then the personal feats of Miss Kellermann. Not only does she perform her usual diving stunts, and in the most enchanting surroundings, but she undergoes some dangers battling with the waves that really take the breath away. On the whole the elements of excitement and beauty are very well balanced in "A Daughter of the Gods" and its small wonder that the picture has lasted six weeks. The big orchestra's rendition of the musical accompaniment is no small part of the entertainment, either.

"A Daughter of the Gods" is at the Bradley Opera House, this week Wednesday and Thursday, February 7-8 with a matinee Thursday at 2:15. Seat are now selling at Hay's Bakery (Phone 99) for all performances.

THRILLS OF FACTS—NOT FANCY OR FICTION.

The most thrilling and most extraordinary pictures of fact—not a fancy or fiction—ever known in the history of motion photography will be presented by Lyman H. Howe at the Bradley Opera House on Tuesday, February 13th when he will unfold the amazing film record of Sir Douglas Mawson's Explorations and practical discovery of the world's seventh continent—Antarctica. From the standpoint of photographic art alone these pictures are unsurpassed and with regard to the greatest of them, inspiring heroism of the intrepid explorers, hardships endured, barriers surmounted that seem utterly hopeless, and queer and amusing forms of animal and bird life, one feels safe in saying they may never be equalled. It is a visualization of triumph and tragedy, humor and pathos, interwoven so swiftly yet so truly natural that every inch of the film grips spectators with intense interest. The sruggle at first—through raging seas, then through crunching ice-bound passages, the arrival on the desolate shores, the terrific force of blizzards, the struggles and privations of that fateful 1000 mile sledge party of three, headed by Sir Douglas and from which he alone survived only as if by miracle, are all events that cannot possibly be conceived without seeing this reproduction.

Although this presentation represents a tremendous expenditure Mr. Howe will not yield to the popular tendency to raise prices. The same prices will prevail as have always been in force for his exhibition, but because the demand for seats, here as in other cities, will probably far exceed the capacity, patrons are urged to book their seats as early as possible to insure their witnessing the greatest feature ever presented.

Some of the noblest scenery in America will also be shown during a ride through Yosemite National Park. It abounds with memorable views of jagged peaks, incomparable vistas of nature and rivers strolling majestically from dizzy heights. Then, too, a rich measure of merriment and humor are provided by the quaint antics and rollicking humor of entirely new and original animated cartoons.

WIT AND WISDOM

The Wit and Wisdom Club met with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kemp last evening owing to the inclemency of the weather there was not a large attendance.

Mrs. Kemp was leader for the evening and the following program was given with "Islands" as the subject.

Roll call, followed with various islands mentioned. Mrs. F. S. Turner and daughter Gertrude gave a piano duet, and Gertrude a piano solo. At the close of the program refreshments were served.

Miss Ruth Curry attended the Teachers' Institute in Adrian today.

FIRST ANNUAL TECUMSEH POULTRY SHOW

CLOSED SATURDAY NIGHT

Largest Exhibition of Poultry Ever Shown in Lenawee County.

A Financial Success; Bigger show will be Given Next Year.

The First Annual Tecumseh Poultry Show closed Saturday night and the officers all express themselves as more than pleased with the success of their first show and announce that a bigger and better show is assured for next year. Over 500 birds were exhibited this year and they expect to have 1000 birds next year.

The birds shown here last week were far above the average and it is claimed by poultry men to be the best exhibit ever shown in Lenawee county. Tecumseh has long been recognized as a big market for poultry and eggs and it is only fitting that a show such as the one just closed should be held here.

The officers who were instrumental in making it a big success are Dr C. A. Waldron, president; C. F. Patterson, vice president; H. A. Tribolet, secretary, and L. P. Williamson, treasurer. A good deal of credit is also due to the business men of Tecumseh who contributed liberally to its support and made it financially a success before a ticket was sold.

The attendance during the week was good and everyone expressed themselves as being pleased with the exhibits shown.

An interesting feature connected with the show was the lecture given Friday evening by Prof. C. H. Burgen of the Michigan Agricultural College, Lansing, on "Successful Poultry Raising." Owing to the cold stormy weather only a few attended this lecture at Grange Hall, but those who attended felt amply repaid for their efforts. We understand that Professor Burgen will return to Tecumseh on a later date when it is hoped that conditions will be more favorable for a large attendance.

The lucky number drawing the Heesen feed cooker is 279 and as yet the party holding this number has not presented it. If the number is not presented to the secretary by Monday next another number will be drawn. Better look at your ticket, you may be the winner.

C. Scofield of Morenci acted as judge and the competitive system of judging was used.

In talking with a representative of a poultry journal who was in attendance at the show, he made this statement, "This is one of the best shows that I have attended and the prizes offered are better than at most shows."

The prize winners are as follows:

UNCLE SAM AS A PAY-MASTER

Quite a contest is raging in Congress, over the salaries which Uncle Sam pays to the Government clerks. The salaries which they are now drawing were fixed more than thirty years ago, when one dollar would buy ten or twelve pounds of bacon, or four pounds of good butter, and seven or eight pounds of good beef steak. Today the government clerk is drawing a very small salary with which to meet his needs. Each dollar will only buy today, four pounds of bacon, or two pounds of butter or about three pounds of beef steak so congress is having quite a struggle over this matter, and it is believed that ten percent increase will be given the unskilled help, and about five percent increase to those who are receiving $1000 per annum or more. Even this increase while it will help some will come very near leaving the government clerk what is now being called a "government pauper."

Uncle Sam can certainly afford to pay his employee a decent living salary and the above increase should not only go through but should be doubled to meet the enormously increased cost of living.

THE FARMERS' UNION

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kennedy very pleasantly entertained the Farmers Union at their home on East Chicago street Saturday evening. NEW YORK CENTRAL PUTS EMBARGO ON FREIGHT

Jackson Branch Effected

Freight Agent A. B. McLachlin has received a telegram from Division Superintendent Riefel of Detroit which notified him of an embargo which the New York Central Road has placed on all freight hauled over the Jackson branch. The embargo is termed a temporary embargo and covers all carloads of freight except perishable goods and live stock.

The reason given for placing it is that the company may have an opportunity of clearing the yards at congested points such as Toledo, Jackson, Lenawee Junction and other places. Agent McLachlin thinks that the embargo will be lifted in about a week or ten days.

WORK BOOMING

It means business nowadays at the Presbyterian church. A force of the brothers, a squad for each day, are busy doing the necessary work on the repairs that have been thought advisable, and each day the sisters are on hand with a dinner and supper to help the cause along.

As many hands make light work, the church will soon present quite a different appearance and will be much more convenient and satisfactory.

We understand that Chas. Kemp is boss carpenter and Rev. Rex chore boy, general assistant and chief manager.

Several farmer we know of are very much regretting they have not high priced crops to sell, some of these same farmers last year depended upon their neighbors for farm machinery, the result is their crops were not taken care of as they should of been.

A Timely Suggestion.

For several years you will receive high prices. Buy all the necessary farm machinery NOW it will be a question of not getting it later AT ANY PRICE. Every day we are receiving advices of advance we are not allowed to buy only in limited quantities, first come first served. Be sure you are going to have the necessary farm machinery so you will not be hampered in times of being badly rushed.

As Mrs. Rose Burrow was going for some coal Sunday morning she slipped and fell, striking the back of her head with great force. Her condition was so serious that a doctor was called at once, who rendered the necessary aid. She has suffered quite severely from the hurt.

I DO a big day's work without kicking, because I'm properly nourished. Mrs. Provider knows that I like the best foods on the market and she's found a store where they treat her order and my pocketbook with courtesy.

HANDICAPPED

This is the Case with Many Tecumseh People.

Toomany Tecumseh citizens are handicapped with bad backs. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief but cannot reach the cause if the kidneys are weak. To eliminate the pains and aches of kidney backache you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys—thousands testify to their merit. Can you doubt Tecumseh evidence?

Mrs. W. Service, E. Logan St., Tecumseh, says: "My kidneys were out of order and I had weakness and soreness across my back. I felt run down and tired out and could hardly keep going. I had frequent headaches, too, and my kidneys acted irregularly. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Wrights & Son's Drug Store, and they helped right away. They strengthened my back and put my kidneys in good order."

Gamest Fighters.

Sparrows are proverbially pugnacious. Sometimes a tree will be a sparrow battleground, and for ten minutes it will be as lively as a dog fight.

Probably the finest fighter in the world, quadruped or biped, is the gamecock. He is a match for anything his size in the world if he gets a fair field and no favor. He is as quick as a flash of lightning, and his spurs are terrible weapons, quite as effective as a pair of bayonets, and used much more scientifically and forcefully.—London Telegraph.

John Adams' Inauguration.

John Adams, the second president, saw more persons weeping at his inauguration than he had ever seen at any funeral and said of it:

"Whether it was because of the loss of a beloved president or the accession of an unpopular one, I cannot say."

The Great Expunger.

In 1834, after an exciting debate of several weeks, congress passed a resolution censuring President Andrew Jackson for removing the public deposits from the old National bank. The resolution as passed by congress declared "that the president in the late executive proceedings in relation to the public revenue has assumed upon himself authority and power not conferred by the constitution and laws. but in derogation of both." The action of congress made Jackson and his friends very angry, and Senator Thomas Benton of Missouri gave notice that he would bring forward every year a resolution to expunge the resolution of censure. After a struggle of three years Benton's resolution was finally passed, and black lines were drawn around the resolution of censure, with the inscription. "Expunged by the order of the senate this 16th day of January, 1837." Senator Benton was nicknamed "the great expunger." His service to Jackson on this matter was considered the more remarkable because many years before he and Jackson had a pistol fight in a hotel at Nashville, in which Jackson was wounded and Benton was pitched headlong downstairs.

Never.

"Never" is a word which is wrongly defined in the dictionary.

In that book we gather the understanding that "never" means not at all, forevermore.

But—

Each day in our broad land young women vow that they will never forgive young men.

Men lift their right hands to high heaven and swear that they will never take another drink.

Husbands promise never to forget to write every day.

Wives promise never to make another extravagant and foolish purchase.

Candidates aver that they will never run for office again.

Women say they will never speak to some one any more.

In all these cases "never" means any length of time from one hour to four days.—Life.

Louis' Compliment to Conde.

One need not overlook the enormous shortcomings of Louis XIV. as a man and as a king to admit that in some important respects he "tried to do his duty." He was a hard working sovereign both in the sphere of administration and in that social sphere which was to his mind no less important. So courteous that he never passed the poorest woman about the palace without lifting his hat, he carried polite consideration to the level of a fine art In the way of courteous speech there are few things nobler than his remark to the great Conde as the old hero was slowly ascending the great marble staircase at Versailles. Conde apologized for being so long in mounting the steps, at the top of which the king stood waiting. "Ah, cousin," Louis replied, "one moves slowly when one is laden with laurels."

Little Surprises.

"Mister, here's them five tons of coal you ordered this morning."

"No, sir, this isn't the real, genuine olive oil. That's the reason we sell it so cheap."

"You don't need to waste any sympathy on me, old sog. I am satisfied with my job, my boss and my wages."

"Gentlemen, the conductor is asking us to move forward in the car. Come on; there's plenty of room."

"Young man, we find that we have not been paying you enough, so we'll increase your salary $10 a week, beginning today."—Portland Express.

How Easter Is Reckoned.

The Christian festival of Easter corresponds to the Pascha or Passover of the Jewish faith. Easter day (from which the rest of religious movable feasts are recorded) is invariably the first Sunday succeeding the fourteenth day of the calendar moon which (fourteenth day) falls on or next after March 21. If the fourteenth day should be Sunday, Easter day would be the Sunday following.

Air and Hunger.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Typhoid Fever.

A noted English sanitarian has said that every time one dies from typhoid fever some one should be hanged. Aside from this view and in the light of modern medical science, typhoid deaths are now admittedly the result of sanitary blunders or criminal carelessness. The existence of typhoid fever bears the stigma of disgrace for two reasons—first, because we know more about its prevention and its filthy source than most any other disease and, second, because its presence betrays filth, either as to our food and drink or as to our personal habits. Ignorance is no longer a cloak under which to hide the disgrace of typhoid fever. Keep your home and surroundings absolutely clean, keep yourself and your clothing absolutely clean, keep your food absolutely clean, and you will have no typhoid fever.

A Farmer's Son

His Father and Mother Stood by Him With Parental Affection

By GREGORY MOORE

They say that doctors and clergymen see more of humanity as it is than any other class of men, but I question if the endless panorama of incidents typifying the different phases of human life is witnessed by any class that every day passes before bankers. Sometimes whole stories are enacted before us spread over a term of years. I am the repository of one such story that I watched from its beginning to its climax.

One afternoon a weather beaten old farmer with silky white hair scattered over his head came to my desk and, pulling out a wallet, asked for a draft on Denver for $200 in favor of Thomas Williams. He counted out the money, and then, having nothing to do while the draft was being prepared, began to tell me the beginning of this story.

"I'm sendin' the money," he said, "to my boy out in Colorado. He went out there a year ago, takin' some money with him that I give him, but he hasn't had much luck, and it's all gone. First he got sick; then when he got well he went prospectin' and struck somepin that looked good, but some other fellers jumped his claim, whatever that means, and took it all away from him.

"Then Tom got sick ag'in and went to a horsepittle and stayed there three months. Now he's got out of the horsepittle and lookin' about for somepin. I'm sendin' this money to give him a chance. Tom's his mother's pet, and she lays awake nights worryin' about him. I'm mighty fond of the boy myself somehow.

"When he got old enough to work I wanted him to help me on the farm. He tried it for awhile, but I see purty quick he didn't take to it. He was too smart to be contented to follow a plow same 's his father, who didn't never get no eddication. So I says to him one day: 'Tommy, reckon you'd better go to the city and work that a-way. This don't suit you.' He was mighty well pleased at that. It almost broke ma's heart to part with him, but she knowed it was better for him and let him go.

"Tom didn't like it in town so well as he thought he would. Leastaways he didn't stay long in the place he went into. They must 'a thought a heap of him, though, for they raised his salary twice, so he wrote me. But he got into a fight with one of the head clerks and got himself discharged. He said the head clerk accused him o' stealin' some money.

"Tom was allus an ambitious little chap, and after leavin' his place he concluded he'd go west and try and do somepin big, for ma and me agin [illegible] too old to work. So we scraped [illegible] $500 and give it to him, and he"—

At this moment a clerk laid the farmer's draft on my desk, and the first chapter of his story was finished, for he began to count over his soiled and torn bills, now and again wetting his thumb on his lip as he turned them up. Then, leaving them to me and carefully folding his draft, he put it in his wallet, crammed the wallet down into the bottom of his pocket and with a "Goodby, Mr. Cashier," left the bank.

The second chapter of the story is very short. There is hardly enough in it to make a chapter, but there is a good deal beneath the few words required to tell it. A girl of eighteen came to the bank, laid down $24, nearly all in silver coin, and asked for a draft to cover the amount.

"To whom will you have it made payable?" I asked.

"Tom Williams," in a soft voice, almost a whisper.

I ordered the draft made out, and the girl stood waiting. Unlike the farmer, she didn't tell all I would have liked to know, so I asked:

"Is Tom Williams your brother?"

"No," she replied, looking down on the floor.

I had not liked the indications as to Tom's character as they appeared in his father's account of him, and now that money was going to him from his sweetheart I began to despise him. I handed the girl the draft and had a good opportunity to study her, for she never once looked up at me. She went out with it hugged up against her heart, as though she loved it because she had saved it for Tom.

My next visitor in behalf of Tom was his mother. She stood by my desk emptying on it from a carpetbag a lot of bills and silver and copper coins. Not knowing who she was, I asked what I should do with the money, and she said, "Send it to Tom." By this time I was not likely to forget Tom and asked if she wished a draft for Thomas Williams. She said she did. I turned her funds over to a clerk to count, and he reported that they amounted to $643.47. I ordered the draft to be made out, placed a chair before the old lady and said, with a view to my enlightenment:

"Mr. Williams pretty busy nowadays?"

"No, pa ain't busy. He's sick. I wish we had our boy here to help us. He's out in Colorado perspectin'. He says he's struck a mine or a-goin' to strike a mine or somepin and wants some money for grubstakin' or somepin like that. We're sendin' him all we kin jest now, but hope to send him some more bime by. We had some money saved up for old age, but we've been a-drawin' on it for Tom, and this is all there is left."

When she went out with her draft I found myself boiling with indignation at this worthless scamp who was sucking the lifeblood out of his old father and mother—even his sweetheart.

There was a visit from the sweetheart after this to ask for a draft of $18.50, which convinced me that Tom had accepted the last amount she had sent him. Then one day the old farmer came in pale and trembling, evidently just out of a sickbed, with the check of a mortgage company for $1,000. He asked for a draft in exchange for it payable to this vampire of a son. We bankers make it a rule to mind our own business, but I had reached a point where I could no longer refrain from warning this poor old man.

"So you have mortgaged your farm to send money to your son?" I said.

"Yes: Tom's in powerful need of money. The mine he thought was goin' to turn out so fine petered out. He says it closed up as he went down instead of openin'."

"And you lost all the money you sent him for the development?"

"Yes, we lost it," replied the old man, with a tremulous voice.

"Aren't you afraid you'll lose this too?"

"I dunno. Tom's got another mine. He says he's sure o' this."

"Of course it's no business of mine, but I don't like to see you, an old man, mortgaging your farm to send money to a son who should be giving you money instead of you giving it to him. Suppose you can't pay the interest on the mortgage when it is due. You will lose your farm."

The old man stood wiping his face with a bandanna handkerchief, the picture of misery.

"I know what yer mean," he said, "but ma she won't keep back anything the boy wants. She never did. I always told her she'd spoil him."

"I'm afraid she has spoiled him. You should know that your son is not wasting your money at gambling or something like that and telling you that he's on the verge of making a fortune in a mine before risking any more money on him."

"That's what I tell ma."

At this moment the draft was laid before me, but instead of handing it to him I said:

"Hadn't you better think this over?"

He stood, his eyes fixed on vacancy, slowly swaying or tottering, and I knew there was a great contest going on in his mind. His love for his boy conquered.

"I'm 'bliged to you, Mr. Cashier, and mebbe you're right, but I allus believed in my Tom, and I can't go back on him now."

I handed him the draft, and he scuffled slowly out of the bank.

The old man must have borrowed all he could on his farm, considering the transaction as a sale, for he failed to pay the first interest that fell due on the mortgage. I knew this, because I saw in a newspaper a legal notice of foreclosure proceedings on his farm.

"Well," I sighed, laying down the paper, "the old man has given his home to his reprobate son. He has nothing more to give. I shall not suffer again at seeing him come into the bank to do what I can't prevent his doing."

On the street the same day I met the young girl who I was sure was Tom's sweetheart. I stopped her and asked:

"Is Farmer Williams turned out of house and home?"

"Not yet, sir."

"But he will be?"

"I suppose so."

"Has his son sent him anything to help him?"

"No, sir. He wrote to say that he was awful sorry to see the farm go, but he could not help it."

"H'm! Do you think a son who will treat his father and mother like that would treat a wife any better?"

Tears came into her eyes. I was ashamed at giving her this useless pain. I walked on.

About a month after this a strapping young fellow with a fine, manly face came into the bank and said he wished to open an account. I assented, and he made a deposit of $49,506.

"Will you please leave your signature in this book?" I said. He took up a pen and wrote:

"Thomas Williams."

"You Tom Williams?" I exclaimed.

"Yes. What do you know about me?"

"Son of Farmer Williams?"

"Yes."

"Sold your mine?"

"Yes; I've sold a mine in Colorado, or two-thirds of it. This money I'm leaving with you is the first cash payment. There are two others of $50,000 each."

"Has your father's farm gone to the mortgagee?"

"No; I'm in time for that. I was afraid I wouldn't be, though. Anyway, I'd have bought it back. If it hadn't been for the money father sent me I couldn't have carried the deal through. I expected the farm to go for the mine."

"And the young girl to whom we gave drafts payable to your order?"

He colored and said: "It's in with the rest, but she and I'll be one anyway. I shall transfer two-thirds of this deposit to father. I took him and mother in for thirds."

I went to see the old farmer and his wife and found them jubilant. "I told you I had confidence in my boy," the farmer said. "He was always straight."

I attended Tom Williams' wedding and kissed the bride. I couldn't help it Plants That Give Heat.

We do not, as a rule, think of plants as giving out heat, yet at certain times some flowers show an astonishing rise of temperature. Most remarkable in this respect are certain kinds of Arum. Just at the opening of the flower in these cases there is a great liberation of heat. This is due to the fact that the respiration, or breathing, is at such times very vigorous. Some very interesting experiments have been carried out in connection with these Arums by means of placing a thermometer just inside the spathe. One of the most remarkable cases was that of a species growing on the Mediterranean coast and known as Arum Italicum. The temperature of the air was 60 degrees at the time of the experiment. That inside the spathe was 110 degrees. At that time the blossoms, which when expanded are practically scentless, gave out a fragrance suggestive of wine. It is said that plants of this type are particularly common in Mexico.—St. Nicholas.

Prefects In France.

Mayors are appointed in France in much the same way as in England, but the prefect is a permanent government official, with infinitely greater power and of much more importance. He is the supreme head of a department—of which there are eighty-six—and it is his duty to see that the laws passed in Paris are carried out properly in every commune of his department. He has control over the police and even over the military should their services be required in an industrial or political dispute. He sees that the taxes are collected and every public improvement scheme is submitted to him in order that he may decide by whom the cost should be borne. The post of prefect is well paid and often leads to higher things. For instance, M. Paul Cambon held three prefectures before he was given a diplomatic post.—London Spectator.

Straits Tin.

More than two-thirds of the world's supply of tin is mined in the Malay peninsula. Straits tin, as it is known in the trade, is of exceptionally good quality. Much of the tin is taken to the smelters at Singapore and after refinement is shipped direct to the United Kingdom or to this country in slabs approximately 99.9 per cent pure.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Junior Class Party

Luster Best entertained the Juniors at the home of Geo. D. Meads two miles north of town, January 26th. They met at the schoolhouse at 7 o'clock when Mr. Goodrich passed gum to those who could not wait for refreshments.

"Pat" Murphy donated the noble steeds for the occasion. About 30 climbed in and settled down under the faithful guardianship of the teachers, and they made a brilliant crowd as they were well armed with flashlights.

The company arrived at 8:30 and spent the evening in playing games and jokes on the teachers and pupils. Refreshments were served and at a reasonable(?) hour they started on their homeward journey.

"It aint the funds or ornament,
Or funds that they can pay,
But the close co-operation,
That makes them win the day—
It aint the individual,
Or the army as a whole,
But the everlasting teamwork
Of every bloomin' soul."
—Rudyard Kipling.

The seventh and eighth grades will hold forth in the Anderson store where the poultry show has been. The next thing will be "hen lice."

The Seniors declare that they have discovered a sure method of obtaining a holiday—Just announce that you will have a class party or meeting and you will soon learn that there will be no school the next day.

Notwithstanding the extremely cold weather our new school quarters have been warm and comfortable.

Though none of our students are wearing iron crosses or other such emblems of bravery, "Cuffy" came to German class Tuesday decorated with one carnation and several handsful of pencil sharpenings. We wonder what act of bravery he did to be thus decorated.

Miss Mary Miller entertained her friend "Fido" Tuesday afternoon.

The teachers all went to Adrian Wednesday to attend teacher's institute so the pupils rejoiced over another holiday.

Miss Gladys Bowen gave an illustrated lecture on "head dress" to the English IV class Monday. A large audience present but a small collection was taken up.

The Seniors have decided to hold class meetings every two weeks from now until Commencement, in order to have all the business properly attended to in plenty of time. A meeting was held at Faye VanValkenburg's Tuesday evening and several matters of importance were disposed of.

The Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors have all enjoyed a sleigh ride but the Seniors seem doomed, having set three dates and not gone yet. They declare that next Monday night will find them at Rice's if they have to walk.

We are sorry to say that Edna Taylor is sick but hope to see her back again soon.

Professor VanTyne of the U. of M. visited school Wednesday morning with his daughter Evelyn. The English IV class was delighted with his talk on Professor Long, the author of their text book, and only wished that he had talked longer.

Misses Lillian Kennedy and Muza Rice spent Wednesday in Adrian. Ask them what they did and saw.

We are beginning to believe that the European war is reaching the United States if the indications shown in German class are any sign. We were all glad when the bell rang for we feared that Miss Kloffenstein and "Professor" Lowry would be injured if the debate continued much longer

In Caesar class we are told that "the enemy fleed."

"Then add 'em," exclaimed the t youth in Geometry.

"Don't forget Em," piped a shrill voice from the back of the room.

One of our teachers yesterday morning, after explaining the principles of a good memory, ended with "I really think that if you students would try to cultivate these principles, you could get your lessons in twice the time! ! * —"

Miss Miller favored the German I class with a semester exam. Wednesday morning.

In English III class, while the pupils were studying "The Vision of Sir Launfal," Miss Rood unconsciously told her class that she was not a farmer when she mentioned "the crowing of the rooster and the heifer."

Cold dog was served to the German I class Monday, but as Miss Miller is not overly fond of this species, she gave it a hot dressing and sent it away untouched.

IMMIGRATION BILL PASSES OVER VETO

Senate Follows House and Measure Becomes Law.

WASHINGTON — The senate by a vote of 61 to 19 repassed the immigration bill over the veto of the President, despite the warning from the state department that the Asiatic exclusion section might result in disturbing amicable relations with Japan. The measure, containing the literacy test fought over for twenty years and vetoed by three presidents, now becomes a law.

Previous to the vote, Senator Lodge of the foreign relations committee declared the bill in no way affected the Japanese agreement regarding immigration from that country.

Thirty-four Democrats voted to overcome the veto, and but eleven voted against. Twenty-eight Republicans voted with the majority while eight voted to uphold the President.

Will Turn Over Plant.

DAVENPORT, IOWA—R. W. Parks, general manager of the Bettendorf car shops stated his company was ready to turn over its whole organization and plant to making government munitions at any minute the government required. "We have refused war orders for the allies," said Mr. Parks, "but stand ready to make anything we can for our own government."

Iowa Backs Up President.

DES MOINES, IOWA — Governor W. L. Harding sent a message to President Wilson advising him that it is "the universal sentiment of our people that all the resources of the commonwealth of Iowa be put back of you in the defense of the honor of our country."

It is a known scientific fact that the hottest region on earth is along the Persian gulf.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR.

Thursday, Feb. 1.—The next step of in the U. S. in the reopened submarine threats of Germany is not revealed by the administration, but the extreme gravity of the situation is such that there is but one belief in neutral and belligerent circles—Teutonic and entente—and that is that a rupture with Germany is unavoidable. Holland and other neutral nations are placed in the gravest situation they have confronted since the war began. Indications point to neutrals awaiting action by the United States.

Berlin advices are that Germany is determined on submarine warfare without restriction regardless of the attitude of neutrals.

On the various fronts of Europe activity consisted largely of trench raiding on the west front, in which the French were gainers.

Friday, Feb. 2.—President Wilson held a conference with the cabinet and then with senators over the U-boat crisis. The unanimous sentiment at both meetings was that the time for note writing had passed. Rupture of relations with Germany was believed certain. The President is said to be awaiting the first overt sea act.

Count von Bernstorff has an amplication of the note from Berlin. It places in his hands the facilitating of U. S. ships passing the blockade zones under the German sea order.

Paris reports a German attack in Lorraine repulsed. Petrograd reports an attack by Germans in white in the northern war area and their repulse.

Saturday, Feb. 3.—President Wilson in a message before a joint session of congress announced the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany and also told the lawmakers that should Germany viola[illegible] pledges to observe the principles [illegible] international law and the law of humanity he would appear again before them asking for a declaration of war. Count Von Bernstorff was given his passports and Ambassador Gerard at Berlin was recalled. Steps to safeguard government navy yards, mints, public offices and shipping from plotters within the country were promptly taken.

The U. S. steamer Housatonic was sunk by a submarine off Sicilly and rumors were that it was without warning.

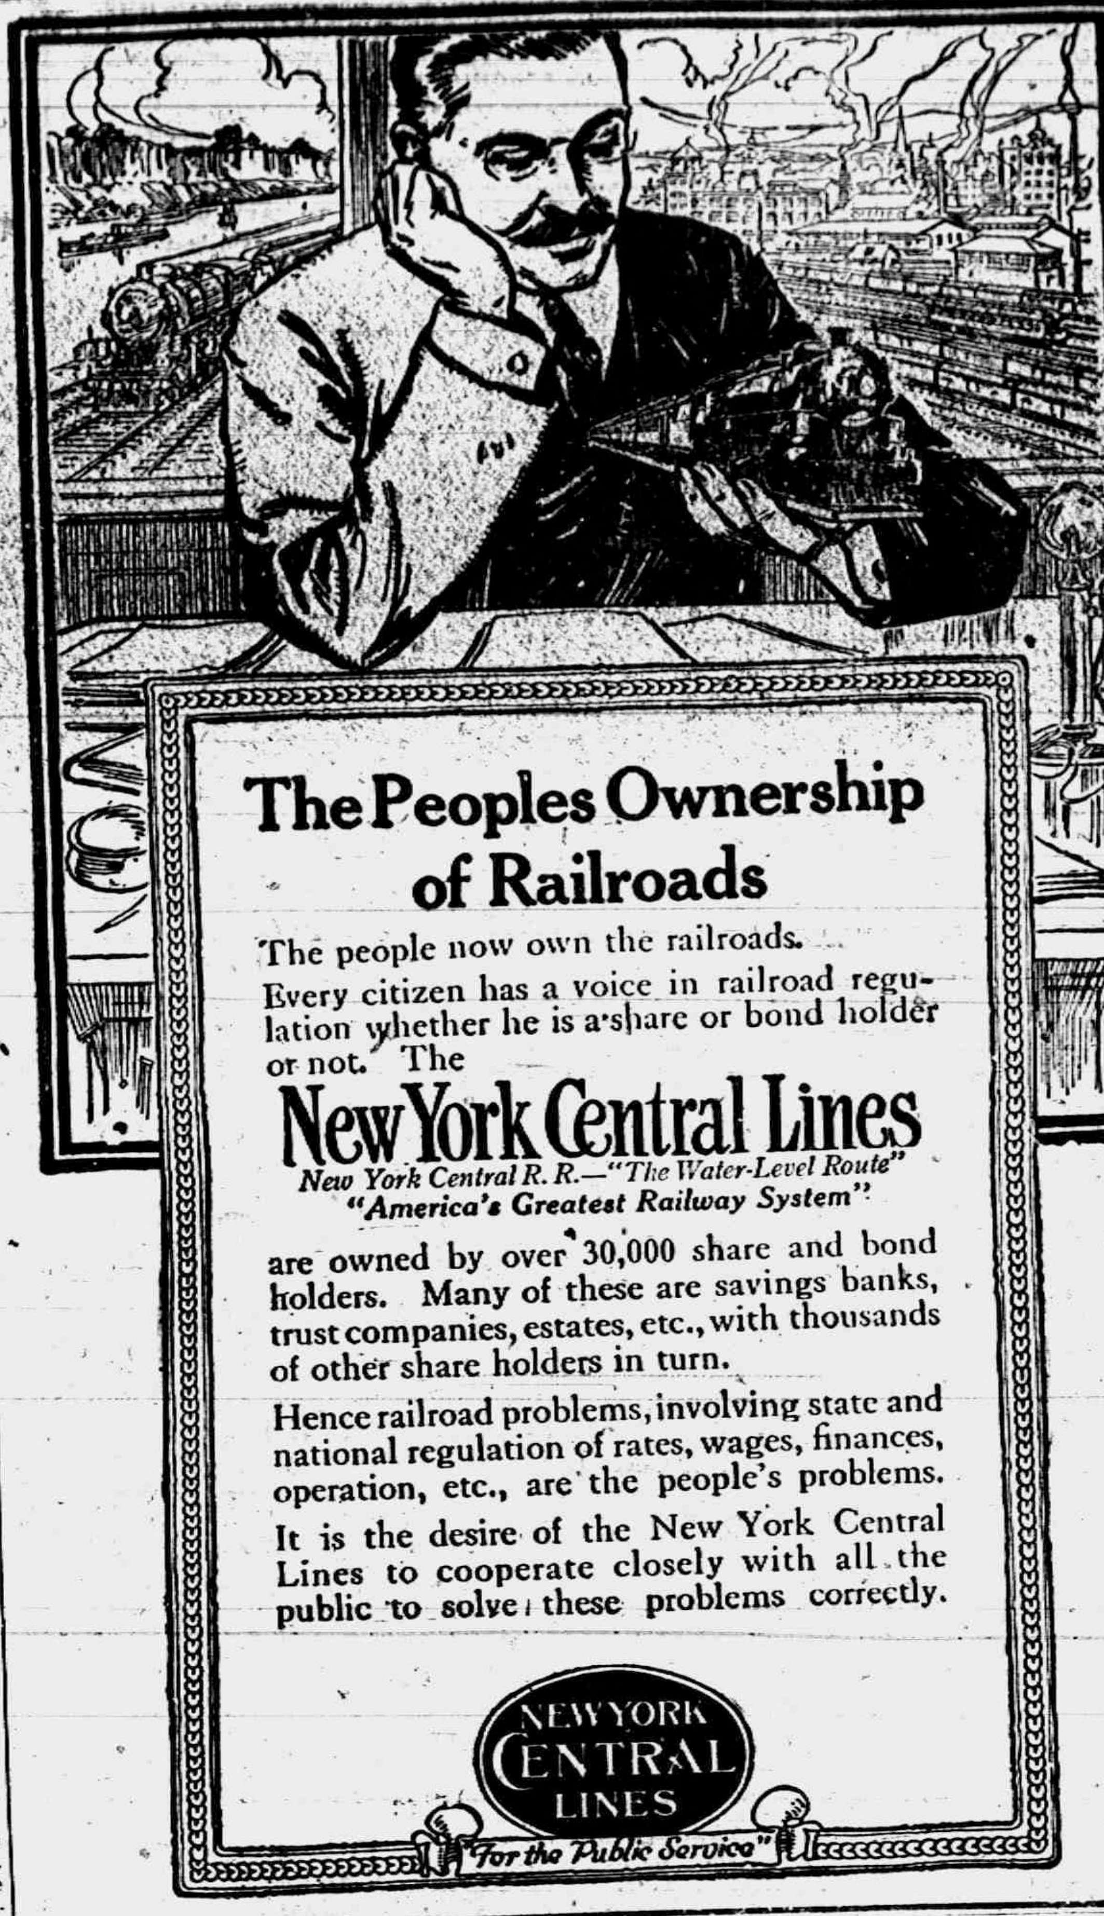
Sunday, Feb. 4.—Continuing their offensive in the Riga region, the Germans have launched repeated attacks in the last thirty-six hours, all without success, according to the latest Russian statement.

The German statement mentions no Teuton attacks in the Riga region, but records the failure of several Russian attacks against German positions on the River Aa.

The British attacked the German positions north of the Ancre river. The German official report says the British succeeded in entering advanced trenches near the bank of the river. Attacks north of Beaucourt failed.

Taxation Revision Urged.

DES MOINES, IOWA — In a special message to the legislature Governor Harding suggests the appointment of a special committee to revise the scheme of taxation and thinks it advisable that adjournment be taken for two months while the committee works out the plan.



The Peoples Ownership of Railroads

The people now own the railroads.

Every citizen has a voice in railroad regulation whether he is a share or bond holder or not. The

New York Central Lines
New York Central R. R.—"The Water-Level Route"

are owned by over 30,000 share and bond holders. Many of these are savings banks, trust companies, estates, etc., with thousands of other share holders in turn.

Hence railroad problems, involving state and national regulation of rates, wages, finances, operation, etc., are the people's problems.

It is the desire of the New York Central Lines to cooperate closely with all the public to solve these problems correctly.

Death by Poison.

In Greece poison was the favorite method of capital punishment and of suicide. The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

Will you see me? It will take very little time. I don't want to argue. I simply want to tell you about this great national farm weekly, make you my offer, and let you decide for yourself.

But, before I show you The Country Gentleman, here's something to think about: It's a modern, up-and-doing paper for the whole farm family. Its articles are written by farmers, farm women and farm experts. They tell how to make more money out of farming—how a farmer's wife can do her work more easily—how the family can get more pleasure out of farm life. It keeps you looking ahead.

I truly believe that you will want The Country Gentleman. It's your kind of a paper. I'll show it to you.

Lyman H. Howe Shows Perils of Polar Exploration In the Antarctic

Sir Douglas Mawson and Party Starting on Sledging Journey

Antarctic Penguins are Nature's own Comedians

THE MOST NOTABLE FILM SPECTACLE EVER EXHIBITED

Thrilling—Gripping—Tense—these nor any other words in the dictionary could possibly describe the original films of Sir Douglas Mawson's Expedition into the innermost recesses of the Antartic regions, which Lyman H. Howe will present at the Bradley Opera House next Tuesday, February 13th. Never has any camera recorded any scenes more wonderful than these. Here nature, animate and inanimate, as found in the newly discovered contenent is depicted in her most weird and elemental moods. It is a visualization of triumph and tragedy amid scenes and conditions so unlike any to be found in any other quarter of the globe, that no one could conceive them without witnessing this film. It is indeed something to marvel at. So successfully do they convey the actuality and atmosphere of the Antarctic; so realistic are they and yet so fascinating that hundreds of patrons have attended the exhibition time and again to catch all it conveys to the mind. Despite the strange impressions of awe inspired at the immensity of the snow deserts, ice barriers, icebergs, crevasses, terrific blizzards and privations and hardships endured by the intrepid explorers, spectators cannot help feeling a sense of pride in the heroism, so nearly sublime, of this wonderful human achievement. Although Mr. Howe will not raise the price of admission his feature in itself is really beyond price.

Still anoher primeval wilderess of nature—but of an entirely different kind—will be shown in the majestic beauy of Yosemite National Park. It is robed in a serenity that is strangely refreshing. Scenes of a most thrilling character of the last hill climb over Giant's Despair, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., will also be presented. The intrepid drivers are shown speeding their cars around the most dangerous curves entirely regardless of life and limb. Besides a wealth of humor will be freely interspersed throughout the program by means of entirely new animated cartoons more amusing than Howe has ever presented.

Another big is "Niagra Falls in Summer and Winter" a wonder picture revealing nature's handiwork of Niagara Falls from many viewpoints. Seats will be on sale at Hay's Bakery (Phone 99) commencing Monday morning at 8 o'clock. "Travel with Howe" and you will enjoy one of the best evenings of the year seeing more in one evening from an easy theatre seats than you could in years of travel.

The Herald $1.00.

NATION'S LITANY

Inspired by the Words of Abraham Lincoln.

After the eyes that looked, the lips that spake
Here, from the shadows of impending, death,
Those words of solemn breath,
What voice may fitly break
The silence, doubly hallowed, by him?
We can but bow the head, with eyes grown dim,
And, as a nation's litany, repeat
The phrase his martyrdom had made complete,
Noble as then, but now more sadly sweet
"Let us, the living, rather dedicate
Ourselves to the unfinished work which they
Thus far advanced so nobly on its way,
And, save the perilled state!
Let us, upon this field, where they, the brave,
Their last full measure of devotion gave
Highly resolve they have not died in vain!—
That under God, the nation's later birth
Of freedom, and the people's gain
Of their own sovereignty, shall never wane
And perish from the circle of the earth!
From such a perfect text, shall song aspire
To light her faded fire,
And into wandering music turn,
Its virtue, simple, sorrowful and stern?
His voice all elegies anticipated;
For, whatsoe'er the strain,
We hear that one refrain
We consecrate ourselves to them, the consecrated."

The Tecumseh Co-Operaive Association informs us that they opened a car of shelled corn Thursday morning at 7 o'clock which was billed to them as 2,000 bushels. At 12:30 o'clock every bushel had been shoveled out of the car and 43 farmers drew it away. Some had driven 12 miles after corn and went home empty, as five men waited at the car till all were gone. Don't this lead the 1000 bushels of Grats' item!

Inactive Kidneys Cause Disease

"I shall not soon forget the benefits I derived from the use of Foley Kidney Pills."—Al. A. [illegible], Forest Grove, Oregon. [illegible]

Sold everywhere in Tecumseh adv

HANDICAPPED

This is the Case with Many Tecumseh People.

Too many Tecumseh citizens are handicapped with bad backs. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief but cannot reach the cause if the kidneys are weak. To eliminate the pains and aches of kidney backache you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys—thousands testify to their merit. Can you doubt Tecumseh evidence?

Mrs. W. Service, E. Logan St., Tecumseh, says: "My kidneys were out of order and I had weakness and soreness across my back. I felt run down and tired out and could hardly keep going. I had frequent headaches, too, and my kidneys acted irregularly. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Wrights & Son's Drug Store, and they helped right away. They strengthened my back and put my kidneys in good order."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Service had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv

NAVAL AUTHORITIES SEIZE GERMAN SHIPS

Seventeen Are Taken Over In Manila Bay.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES — The naval authorities seized the seventeen German merchant vessels anchored in Manila Bay. All the German crews were removed.

Naval guards were left on the vessels.

Boats were sent to the German merchantmen, who were boarded one at a time. The American crews took off the Germans, who were landed in the business district, which was almost deserted at that hour.

Squads of American police met the Germans. The municipal authorities will care for the Germans who are without resources. The others will go free. American police are guarding the German consulate.

A dispatch from Manila Sunday said guards had been placed on the vessels. In addition to the seventeen merchantmen at Manila there are three German vessels at Cebu and three at Zamboanga.

Use "Gets-It," Lift Corn Right Off

Shrivels, Loosens—and It's Gone!

"Just like taking the lid off—that's how easy you can lift a corn off your toe after it has been treated with the wonderful discovery, 'Gets-It.'" Hunt the wide world over and you'll find nothing so magic, simple and easy as "Gets-It." You folks who have wrapped your toes in bandages to look like bundles, who have used salves that turned your toes raw and sore, and used plasters that would shift from their place and never "get" the corn, and who have dug and picked at your corns with knives and scissors and perhaps made them bleed—just quit these old and painful ways and try "Gets-It" just once. You put 2 or 3 drops on, and it dries at once. There's nothing to stick. You can put your shoe and stocking right on again. The pain is all gone. Then the corn dies a painless, shriveling death, it loosens from your toe, and off it comes. "Gets-It" is the biggest selling corn remedy in the world today. There's none other as good.

"O-o-!"
End Corn and Stop Pain Quickly With "Gets-It"

"Gets-It" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Tecumseh and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by B. J. Pulver.

GERMAN CHIEFS MAY MODIFY U-BOAT WAR

Conference Called by Kaiser to Placate Neutrals.

London, Feb. 12.—An important conference at headquarters has been called by Emperor William, presumably to discuss the submarine question, says the Exchange Telegraph company's Amsterdam correspondent.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, and high army and navy officials will attend. It is reported, adds the correspondent, that the possibility of negotiations with neutrals for modification of the terms of the recent German memorandum will be discussed.

DEUTSCHLAND TAKEN, CLAIM

Nicholas Murray Butler Says British Have Caught 200 U-Boats.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, declared in an interview that the submarine Deutschland had been captured by the British. He said he had knowledge the Deutschland is one of the eighty-five German submarines in one port and that the British have captured not less than 200 U-boats.

Relative to the Deutschland, Butler added that the Deutschland now lying at Bremen is another submarine with that name painted on it to support the German story that the big commerce carrier never started on a third trip.

KILLS SELF ON BIRTHDAY

Hunting Party Which Boy Gave Results in Tragedy.

Milwaukee, Feb. 12.—A bullet through his heart which caused almost instant death, ended the birthday celebration of Sheridan Hall, fifteen year old son of Bert Hall, an official of the Milwaukee Electric railway and Light company.

Young Hall gave a birthday party for a number of boy friends at his parents' summer home at Lake Beulah, Wis. Upon reaching the lake early in the morning, the party secured a twenty-two caliber rifle and started on the trail of rabbits. Hall, carrying the loaded gun, brushed it against a tree, and it went off.

CHINA SIDES WITH AMERICA

Threatens to Sever Relations With Germany Over U-Boats.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Switzerland, China and Greece have augmented the ranks of neutrals in making vigorous [illegible]ed submarine warfare. China's note to the German minister threatens to sever diplomatic relations unless its rights are respected. The communication of Greece is a reply to President Wilson's note and explains that she is not in a position to contemplate concerted action for the protection of the national shipping.

EDITORS PLEDGE LOYALTY

Press Representatives of Indiana Unanimously Support President.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 12.—Casting aside party lines, members of the Indiana Republican Editorial association, at a banquet, pledged undivided devotion to American nation in the face of the crisis in foreign relations, and unswerving loyalty to President Wilson.

Frank B. Willis, former governor of Ohio, was a speaker.

RAINEY NAMES BAKING HEADS IN FOOD PROBE

Illinoisan Is Stirred Over "10-Cent Bread" Move.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The double barrelled investigation of the high cost of living by the federal trade commission and the department of agriculture, as ordered by President Wilson, received its first suggestion when Henry T. Rainey, representative from Illinois, prepared a letter to the commission and to Secretary Houston offering to aid in the bread end of the inquiry.

"It is the duty, I believe, of every citizen to aid in this investigation," said Mr. Rainey, "and for that reason I am suggesting to the two departments that they call the following men to testify as to what they know about a concerted effort to put up the price of bread. The men are: Paul Schulze, millionaire baker of Chicago; S. F. McDonald, of Memphis, Honorable National Master Bakers association; J. M. Bell, of Chicago, secretary of that organization; John Lind, of Minneapolis, attorney for the wheat millers; the editor of 'The Modern Miller' of St. Louis.

"I suggest calling these men because at the convention of the master bakers in Salt Lake City last August Mr. McDonald announced 'A nationwide move would be inaugurated at once both by advertising and publicity to educate the public to a ten cent loaf.'"

Magnets in Needle Factories.

In factories where needles are made the grindstones throw off great quantities of minute steel particles, although the dust is too fine to be perceptible to the eye. Breathing the dust shows no immediate effect, but gradually sets up irritation, usually ending in pulmonary consumption, and formerly almost all the workmen died before the age of forty. Ineffective attempts were made to screen the air by gauze or linen guards for nose and mouth. At length the use of the magnet was suggested, and now masks of magnetized steel wire are worn by workmen and effectually remove the metal dust before the air is breathed. —London Telegraph.

DISMISSING TROOPS TO BOOST RESERVES

Muster Out Order Will Hasten Army Enlargement.

EL PASO, TEX., Feb. 12.

All guardsmen, officers and men absent from their units, will report to the nearest post for muster out of the service, according to an order from the southern department. The only construction to be placed on such action in the minds of militiamen here, is that the homeward movement of troops and their placement on the reserve list is to be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Among the officers of Michigan troops who are affected by the order are Lieutenant Colonel Edward G. Heckel, of the Thirty-third; Lieutenant Frank A. Lawrence, of the machine gun company; Lieutenant William Spring, Company I, and Lieutenant Merritt Wilson, Company L. They now are in Michigan on leave of absence. In addition, enlisted men on furlough probably will report by telegraph to the central department at Chicago and ordered to Fort Wayne for muster.

Transportation for the movement of all troops in the last order is being gathered and all are expected to be out of the district by February 25. A new order for other units to leave is expected about March 1.

OPPOSE NEW RAILROAD RATE

Muskegon Manufacturers Against Lower Tariff for Grand Rapids.

GRAND RAPIDS, Feb. 12.

Railroads named defendants in the basic rate case, which is being heard by Examiner Wilbur Laroe, of the interstate commerce commission, offered evidence to combat a combined attack for lower rates by Grand Rapids, Lansing, Saginaw and northern Michigan business men.

Lansing now is on a ninety-five per cent rate basis and asks for a reduction which will place the capital city on an equitable footing with Detroit.

Muskegon manufacturers opened fire on Grand Rapids, insisting that the thirty-one year old equality of rate governing freight from both cities in the eastern trunk line district be continued. Muskegon witnesses, examined by Attorney Harris E. Galpin, insisted that Muskegon is not seeking a reduction, but merely wishes that Grand Rapids industries be given no advantage in a readjustment.

CAPITAL HEARS NO PEACE MOVE

Reported Proposal by Kaiser Is Discredited.

MANTOLA SINKING REPORTED

Consul Frost Officially Tells of Torpedoing Passenger Steamer—U. S. to Stand on Its Statement Regarding Ruthless Submarine War—Peace Rumor "German Propaganda."

Washington, Feb. 12.—Waiting for Germany's next move in her submarine campaign against the shipping of the world, President Wilson and his advisers settled down to scan the dispatches from Europe.

News from the war zone and of the safe departure of Ambassador Gerard on his homeward journey were the prime considerations and both came slowly. There was no official confirmation of Germany's reported sensational peace move and influential officials said they expected none.

An official report of the sinking of the British steamer Mantola in the submarine zone was the only affirmative official news received.

There was a lull in the rush of wartime activity in Washington. The routine emergency preparations at the war and navy department continued, but there was no undue excitement apparent. Secretaries Baker and Daniels did not visit their offices during the day.

Counselor Polk of the state department, went over the department dispatches, but said the Mantola report from Consul Frost was the only matter of importance received.

Peace Move Discredited.

While officials declined to discuss the reported German proposal to discuss means of preventing hostilities between the two countries for publication, it was apparent the report was not credited. Officials said that no intimation of such a move had come through any official channels, and that none was expected.

It was made clear that the United States will stand upon its statement that the United States cannot recognize the ruthless German submarine warfare, and that no outside issues can be discussed between the two countries while that warfare is effective.

A source close to the state department said the source of the report was utterly unknown and that the circulation of the report was a matter which the department viewed with some apprehension. In some circles the report was described as "German propaganda."

DEATH CALLS JUDGE GIBBONS

Noted Chicago Jurist Was on Bench Twenty-four Years.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Judge John Gibbons of the circuit court, one of the most distinguished and best known of Chicago jurists, died of pneumonia at the Presbyterian hospital.

Judge Gibbons was born in County Donegal, Ireland. He graduated from Notre Dame university, and he was admitted to the bar at Keokuk, Ia., February 7, 1870, and two years later was appointed city attorney. He held this office until 1876, when he was elected to the legislature of Iowa. He came to Chicago in 1880. In 1893 he was chosen to fill a vacancy on the circuit court bench, and he was reelected in 1897, 1903, 1909 and 1915.

Milwaukee Will Wait Until Existing Tangle Ends.

Milwaukee, Feb. 12.—A bazaar which was to be held here in May for the benefit of the German and Austrian war sufferers was indefinitely postponed at a meeting of the bazaar directors.

A resolution adopted declared that the bazaar would be postponed until "such a time as amicable relations between our country and Germany have been re-established."

TRANSPORTS FOR SHIPPING

U. S. Board Would Have Them Used to Relieve Congestion.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The United States shipping board appealed to President Wilson to permit the war department to permit the army transports to be used to relieving congestion in ocean freight traffic.

The board would charter the vessels and place them in the Gulf and Pacific trade, where congestion particularly is felt.

No Sentiment For Jack.

Not every one is imbued with sentiment, as this story teaches: Fred Jane, the writer on naval subjects, used to tell of an old gentleman, an enthusiastic member of the Navy league, who visited Portsmouth and looked at Nelson's Victory, lying in the harbor. A bluejacket passed. The old gentleman seized him and pointed to the Victory.

"D'you know what that ship means, my man?" he exclaimed.

"Rather," replied the bluejacket. "It's the old tub they hold courts martial in."

U. S. CONSUL CORROBORATES

Dr. E. M. Rice, Surgeon of Mantola, Torpedoed and American Citizen, Tells of Reckless Disregard of Life by U-Boat Commander—Shells Answer S. O. S.

Washington, Feb. 12.—One American, Earl M. Rice, ship's surgeon, of 628 Salmon street, Portland, Oregon, was on board the British India liner Mantola, which was torpedoed 185 miles southwest of Fastnet, Ireland, on Feb. 8. Consul Frost at Queenstown cabled the state department that the steamship was torpedoed without warning. The Mantola was of 8,500 tons.

London, Feb. 12.—Earl M. Rice of Portland, Ore., ship's surgeon of the Mantola and the only American on board here, was among the survivors of the torpedoed steamship who arrived in London. He gave the following account of the sinking:

"The first we knew was the sound of a violent explosion, which shook the ship from end to end at 1:40 p. m. on Thursday. The sea was fairly rough but the ship maintained an even keel and excellent order was preserved. Captain Chavas immediately ordered the boats launched.

"Seven lascars were killed by the explosion. The remainder of those on board were unhurt. Everybody got safely into the boats with the exception of the captain, the chief engineer and the wireless operator, who were to follow us later.

Answer S. O. S. With Shells.

"Nobody had yet seen the submarine and everybody in the boats was peering in the haze in a vain effort to catch a glimpse of the tell-tale periscope. An hour and a half after the torpedoing the engineer and wireless man got the wireless working and began sending out S. O. S. calls, giving details of the position.

"The reply came almost instantly, but from an unexpected quarter. The submarine, which evidently was lying off in the haze two miles or so away, picked up the wireless and began shelling the Mantola from 4,000 yards distance, meanwhile approaching at full speed so that the range rapidly decreased.

"Some of the shells were loaded with shrapnel, which burst about the Montola and around the lifeboats. The [illegible] tola, but the sailors now put all their muscles into the oars to increase their distance from the submarine's target. Nobody was hurt by the shells, although everybody was badly frightened.

47 Shells Fired by Diver.

"By this time the submarine was plainly visible to everybody, her guns emitting angry little flashes as they sent their missiles toward the Mantola. A cool-headed passenger on my boat took out a pocket note book and carefully marked down a cross every time the submarine fired. His record shows that forty-seven shells were fired.

"The submarine was within 200 or 300 yards of the Mantola when an unidentified vessel began to loom up on the hazy horizon. The submarine's commander decided that discretion was the better part of valor, closed his hatches quickly, submerged and disappeared, to the unspeakable relief of us all. The new arrival proved to be a British sloop, which gradually picked up the survivors.

"We were in our boats about six hours. The Mantola sank in the evening."

Eleven Men Perish.

Lloyds reported the loss of two other vessels. The Italian bark Luigina, 1,700 tons, ran aground. The captain and ten men perished. Five men were rescued. The other vessel lost was the steamship Sallagh, 3,811 tons, believed to be a vessel of that name owned by Elder, Dempster & Co., Liverpool.

St. Paul, Feb. 12.—Captain Joseph Burger, veteran of the battle of Missionary Ridge in the civil war, offered to Governor Burnquest a regiment of 1,000 German-Americans between eighteen and twenty-five for service against Germany.

Artificial Eyes.

The earliest notice of artificial eyes occurs in a very rare work by the French surgeon Ambroise Pare, entitled "La Methode Curative des Playes et Fractures de la Teste Humaine." Paris, 1561. Pare gives a description and figures of artificial eyes to be worn in cases where the eyeball has given way and all the humors have escaped. They are to be segments of a hollow sphere, made of gold, coated with enamel painted in natural colors. With the exception of the gold they are exactly like the artificial eyes that are in use at the present time, which are made wholly of glass.—London Spectator.

USE YOUR THINK-TANK!

When there's a bit of cold wave Willy Pussyfoot shudders and says; "I'm glawd m'caw's put away. O-o-o it's cold, b,gad!"

But cold waves do not last long now. Winter is thinning out; and even while staying with us, it produces many of the finest out door motoring days of the entire year, with temperatures just snappy enough to make red blood tingle, give a chap an appetite and makes the whole world look rosy!

Don't be a Willie Pussyfoot! Buy your Spring Car at once and use it. We can make a few immediate deliveries. Take quick advantage of the opportunity.

A few weeks from now, when the Spring car rush looms up—you may be one of those who will have to wait—who failed to take our February advise, who kept putting it off. Last fall we ran way shy of our needs—so great was the demand. Spring 1917 will push us even harder.

Looking out for the future. We have been getting in all the cars we could. Early. Think it over if you buy your car NOW instead of two months later—the cost at 6% bank interest for the 60 days wouldn't total enough to keep a canary bird that long in seed and cuttlefish! And you'll have your car—no future disappointment. Remember—You cannot ride on a promise—also Spring is only just around the corner! Won't it pay to buy now? And when you do your thinking use that part of your think-tank that's filled with broad, business-like common sense!

THE BUDLONG PAPERS

They Contained Valuable Documents

By ETHEL HOLMES

Mary Hartwell was twenty years old when her mother died. Her father had died [illegible] years before, leaving a business [illegible]. It had not been [illegible] and Mrs. Hartwell had not [illegible] from it since her husband's death, though she had been paid from time to time small sums to keep her from absolute want.

After her mother's death Mary proposed to accept the situation of a woman [illegible] for her living and [illegible] out the remnants of former times. She and her mother had remained in their home. Now Mary proposed to leave it, and the first thing to be done in preparation was to [illegible] belongings that had accumulated for years.

Mary went to the attic and looked about her at the confusion and profusion of miscellaneous articles. There were discarded furniture, pictures, empty picture frames, rugs, fenders and irons—indeed, every conceivable article. There were boxes and trunks, some empty, some half filled, some full. The sight was discouraging, but Mary resolutely went to work to separate the whole into groups to be disposed of in different ways.

In one of the boxes she found some old bedding, consisting of blankets and pillows. She removed them and was thinking that she had emptied the box when, feeling in the bottom, her hand touched a bundle wrapped in paper. Taking it out, she shook off the dust and revealed written on the wrapper, "Budlong Papers."

She had never heard of any one by the name of Budlong, nor had she seen a handwriting like that in which the indorsement was written. She unwrapped the cover and revealed a number of yellow papers. She opened and glanced at several of them, which turned out to be receipted bills. There was also that part of checkbooks which comprised the stubs of checks, a lot of accounts current and some legal documents.

Mary concluded that the papers pertained to the affairs of some one by the name of Budlong and that their value had long since passed away. Rewrapping them, she tossed the bundle on to a pile of papers meant for burning.

That night before going to sleep she fell to thinking of these papers. They reminded her of the ongoing of all things. There had been some one of the name of Budlong whose existence and daily doings were represented by these accumulating records. Budlong, whoever he was, doubtless in due time passed away, the evidences of his existence were transferred from a desk in use and finally found a resting place in the bottom of a box in a garret and covered with wornout bedclothing. Truly a tombstone is not the only reminder of one who has lived and moved, earned and spent money on the face of the earth.

The next day Mary turned over the contents of the garret to a dealer in secondhand furniture and carried the old papers down to the furnace for burning. She was about to throw the Budlong papers into the roaring flames when she paused. Somehow she had not the heart to incinerate the remains of the individual's busy existence. Laying the bundle aside, she threw in the other papers, then took it upstairs and put it on a shelf in a closet among articles the disposition of which she had not decided upon.

Mary had a second cousin, Horace Drummond, who had manifested a fancy for her. [illegible] he had sounded her on the possibility of their joining the [illegible] of their lives and fighting the battle of life together. But father in order to secure the whole instead of half the profit on a very valuable purchase the firm had made.

Horace Drummond, having a father to support, was certainly not in a position to marry. He did not know, however, what a deprivation his being unable to do so was to Mary. He was not only acceptable to her personally, but she did not take kindly to living a single life and earning her daily bread. Horace was willing to accept the responsibilities that would accrue to him, but Mary gave him to understand that so long as his father was an incumbrance on him it would be unwise for him to take a wife.

Mary, who had been well educated, secured a position as a teacher and settled down to the work of instructing children. Horace visited her occasionally. When two persons desire to marry and are prevented by obstacles in most cases either the obstacles are removed or they marry in spite of them. Naturally both Mary and Horace looked forward to a day when they would be able to marry with a fair prospect of providing the necessaries required, but the prospect was not encouraging.

One evening Horace called on Mary and seemed very much aggrieved. He said that the transaction on account of which his father had been unjustly disgraced was turning out to be immensely profitable. Mr. Drummond was entitled to one-half of the proceeds, but there was no prospect of his ever being vindicated, to say nothing of reaping his legitimate profits.

"Just think," said Horace ruefully, "had it not been for the rascality of old Haskins you and I could now be married and living in clover."

"What was the nature of the transaction?" Mary asked.

"It was a patent right. The patent was offered to the firm of Drummond & Haskins by the inventor. My father approved of it, but Haskins declared that he would never put money into a patent right. Father was informed by the inventor that another party had agreed to furnish the money needed for introduction and development. Haskins was away at the time. Father assumed the responsibility of buying the right for the firm. When Haskins returned he claimed that father had used the firm's money for his own individual purposes, which was embezzlement. Father had taken the preliminary steps in his own name, but had made the contract in the name of the firm in duplicate, one copy for the firm, the other for the inventor. Haskins got hold of the preliminary agreement and the contract. He withheld the latter and produced the former, which alone laid father liable criminally."

"What became of the contract drawn for the inventor?" asked Mary.

"He died while the trouble was first breached. Father asked his widow for it, but she fell under the influence of Haskins or probably was offered an inducement to withhold it. Father's lawyer got out a search warrant to look for it, but the woman must have been warned, because all her husband's papers had been removed from the house."

"It seems to me," said Mary thoughtfully, "that my father had something to do with that matter."

"Your father and mine being cousins and very fond of each other, it is quite likely. Father has told me that your father learned where the papers had been hidden and got possession of them, but he did so illegally and was obliged to hide them to avoid being prosecuted criminally. It was intended that when he could do so in safety they would be produced. But when the time came they were not in the hiding place where he had put them. He believed that some one in Mrs. Budlong's interest had stolen them."

"Budlong!" said Mary. "I have seen or heard that name somewhere."

"Possibly you heard your father mention it when talking of this matter."

During the rest of Horace's visit Mary could not get the name Budlong out of her head. She went to bed that night trying to remember when and where she had known it. So intent on it was she that she remained awake till she heard the deep tones of a town clock strike the hour of midnight; then suddenly she remembered the Budlong papers.

Throwing off the covers, she jumped out of bed.

Mary had packed a trunk of odds and ends that she did not care to part with and had carried them away with her when she left her home. Having now but one room, this trunk and the one used for her clothing were kept in it. Lighting a lamp, she opened the trunk first named and, getting out the bundle of papers, opened it and spread the contents on the table. By 1 o'clock she had opened and read many papers. A few minutes after 1 she opened one which proved to be a contract for the sale of certain patent rights to the firm of Haskins & Drummond.

Mary went back to bed, but not to sleep. She could hardly wait for day to come, so eager was she to carry the news to Horace that she had found the missing contract.

The next morning Horace Drummond was awakened by a maid, who informed him that Miss Hartwell was below and wished to see him on a very important matter. He arose, made a hasty toilet and went down to the living room. There stood Mary with beaming eyes holding out to him a paper. As soon as he had read enough of it to realize what it was he sprang forward, clasped her in his arms and covered her face with kisses.

It was some time before Horace could bring himself to a condition of quiet to listen to the story of the Budlong papers. Indeed, he only received at the time a meager account, so eager was he to carry the news to his father.

How the papers came to be in the box in the garret, whether Mr. Hartwell placed them there and forgot having done so or whether some member of his family, having come upon them, tossed them into the box, not knowing what they were, was never explained.

Haskins was prosecuted by Drum-

ELSIE JANIS
Morosco–Bosworth

ELSIE JANIS, AUTHOR AND STAR, IN BOSWORTH PLAY OF THREE LOVES

This week Wednesday, February 14, we are offering one of the finest Paramount offerings so far presented in Tecumseh. Vivacious Elsie Janis in a play of her own writing entitled "Twas Ever Thus." The story opens with the stone age, when a lithe, bare limbed girl, in a panther skin, is wooed in the fashion of those days. The film shows how the early lover gained his ends, and then carries the audience up to 1865; when in graceful ringlets and fetching poke bonnet; silk shawl and flounced crinoline, pretty Prudence Allen, of Boston ventures down into battle torn Dixie to nurse her wounded brother. A pretty romance follows and the sedate lovers of the Civil War period finally win out over all obstacles in an interesting series of events bringing the story to a fitting close and introducing the third episode presenting a startling love story of present day life.

The producers, in staging this play, which was also written by Elsie Janis, were called upon to secure an unusual variety of scenes and in this respect have gone to particular pains to give the subject the desired backgrounds. A striking contrast is offered when the films turn the cave-man period, when animal skins were used both for furnishings and clothing to the over-dressed Civil War age, with its imposing Southern homes and quaint interiors, and then up to present metropolitan settings, with their development of city life.

Everyone will be presented with a free copy of the new Photoplay Magazine, Wednesday evening. As the number is limited come early and assure yourself of a copy.

SONS OF VETERANS

Intersting Meeting Held Monday Evening at G. A. R. Hall

An interesting meeting of the Sons of Veterans was held at G. A. R. hall Monday evening with a large attendance of Veterans and friends.

After the regular meeting of the order a special Lincoln program was given, with James McKinney chairman. The first number was a selection by George Sanford of Clinton who played some difficult pieces on the mouth organ imitating a child crying, a circle saw buzzing through knots of wood, a street grind organ, ets. and demonstrating his ability to play by the nose as well as by the mouth, playing two mouth organs at the same time in one of his numbers.

Dr. Hammel was the first speaker and gave an interesting talk on his border experiences. The Dr. was an officer on the medical corp and stationed with Troop K, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Regulars, known as the famous Black Horse Cavalry.

The doctor's remarks were very good and he answered many questions put to him on the Mexican situation, one of them being, that in his opinion the National Guard as now organized is a failure.

Henry Sweet followed and read Lincoln's famous Gettysburg speech.

"Lincoln's Life" was the subject assigned to John D. Shull who told in a very interesting way of his personal knowledge of Lincoln, having seen and heard him in a speech delivered at Harrisburg, Pa., about three weeks before his inauguration and then again on the battlefield before Richmond, Va., some three weeks before his assassination.

John Furse next responded, making a few remarks and reciting two short poems.

Dr. Hartzog was called on but on account of the lateness of the hour, did not give his speech on Washington.

Brothers Fred Bragg, P. C. of the Adrian Camp, G. M. Camburn and Hamilton all of Adrian, were guests of the Camp and made brief remarks. After the program a lunch con was served.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION

The Democratic County Convention met in Adrian Saturday, Feb. 10th, and was called for the purpose of naming delegates to the State Convention to be held in Grand Rapids this week.

The convention was called to order by County Chairman John W Koehn who called Henry Bourns to the chair. Ben Beasley was chosen secretary.

The meeting pledged their support to President Wilson and Congress and sent a wire to the President Wilson to that effect.

The convention went on record as favoring peace with all nations but urged against such peace as would compel the surrendering of national honor and individual rights. They favored the selection of a progressive farmer as a member of the State Board of Agriculture. They recommended that the progressives be given a place in the state convention and on the coming state ticket.

The County Committee remains the same as last year. The following delegates were named for the State Convention: J. W. Helme, M. L. Gillen, W. F. King, H. C. Lentz, Frank Schiebel, Geo. Nuss, J. W. Koehn, Edson Porter, Edw. Frensdorf, Frank Judson, H. J. Bourns, Frank Waite, Norman Pierce, Wm. Riley, Geo. Smith, W. H. Moore, Ben Beasley, Otto Wagner, Oscar Yentler, Milburn Keyser, L. C. Hayden, E. C. Brown, John Binns, A. B. Graham

DR. HAMMEL COMES BACK FROM THE FRONT

Not like the Indian warrior with his belt full of scalps but in a more modern way, with the skins of his victims, among whom he counts a mountain lion or panther, a prairie wolf, two wild goats, a fox and several rattle snakes.

He also has a Philippino bowie knife used by one of the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands, and given him by a regular army officer.

The mountain lion is a fine specimen which the doctor discovered in a Cottonwood tree and shot. This was in the Big Ben District within 20 feet of the Rio Grande river. The animal measured 8 inches from tip of his tail to the end of his nose and weighed 210 pounds as he fell. He was a handsome animal with brown back and white belly. The doctor had the skin mounted and made into a rug, and counts it among his most valised possessions.

CONFERENCE MEETING

On Friday afternoon and evening of this week, there will be an "Echo Conference" of the great Area Conference just held in Detroit, at the Methodist Church. Speakers will be present from Detroit and everything pertaining to church work be discussed: Social Service, Evangelism, Missionary work, etc.

The afternoon session will open at 2 o'clock and the evening service at 7 o'clock. The public are invited to be present at these meetings. Supper will be served after the afternoon session and all those wishing to remain are requested to contribute to the supper. The neighboring churches of Tipton, Clinton, Ridgeway and other points have been invited to attend this meeting.

GRANGE MEETING

An all day meeting of the Grange was held in their hall Saturday with a pot luck dinner at noon. In the afternoon a short program of recitations and music was given by the juniors of the crowd which proved very intertaining. Dr Hammell then took the floor and gave a fine talk on The "Mexican Situation" which was listened too with the closest attention. As one party remarked in our hearing, he told just the things that I wanted most to know."

Dr Hammel is an easy speaker and his talk was given in an off handed way that was very gratifying to his hearers. A business meeting followed the program.

FIRE NEAR HOLLOWAY

Fire was discovered about ten o'clock this morning in the peak of the new barn on Ira Wilson's farm 4½ miles southeast of town, two barns, the granery and carriage house were totally destroyed. A large crowd was soon on the ground and saved one barn, the stock, most of the tools and some feed. The house being some 7 or 8 rods away was not endangered. The cause of the fire is unknown. We understand that Mr. Wilson carried some insurance.

New York receives weekly from 125 to 175 carloads of chickens, averaging 20,000 pounds to the car.

CHATHAM CONCERT CO.

The Chatham Concert Co gave an entertainment at the M E church Friday night, with a fair audience in attendance. The personale of the company was Myretta Chatham, reader; Adelaide Rynders, violinist, E Rozina Aussiker, soprano; and a Metsger pianist.

Their work was well received and they responded liberally to encores.

Miss Aussiker sang several difficult selections, her voice showing fine quality and range.

Miss Rynders displayed much talent as a violinist.

Miss Chatham as reader recited several pieces which delighted the audience. Mr Metsger presided at the piano in a very able manner, his numbers being very difficult and well rendered.

The entertainment was one of the best we have had in Tecumseh in a long time and should have received more liberal patronage.

The last number on the program was exceptionally fine, and was composed by Miss Chatham, "The Perfect Song" was the theme, introducing, "The Song of the Soul" and "National Songs of Different Nations," "The French Marsailles," "The Irish," "Wearing of the Green," "The German" "Die Wacht Am Rhein" and our own, "Star Spangled Banner." This was unusually well received by the audience.

BIRTHDAY PARTIES

Honoring the birthday of her daughter Leora and her husband William Service, Mrs Wm Service invited Leora's teacher Miss Cardwell and a number of her schoolmates for Friday afternoon. A dainty supper was served at five o'clock, a beautiful birthday cake being the center of attraction. Miss Leora received a number of pretty gifts from her young friends.

At six o'clock Mrs Service served a three course dinner, covers being laid for ten, honoring her husbands birthday which occurred Saturday the 10th. Mr Service also received several gifts. The evening was spent in social visiting and a most enjoyable time was the verdict of those who were present.

Those who enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs Service were John B. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Service, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Graff, Mrs. Will Martin, Mr Grieve, Jack Smith and Miss Florine Bennett.

VALENTINE PARTY

The young ladies of Tecumseh will give a Valentine dancing party at Witherell's hall Thursday evening. An orchestra from Toledo will furnish the music. Grand march promptly at 8:30.

BERT HAUSE HEARD FROM

Bert Temple of St. Paul Minn., sends us the folowing, thinking that Bert Hause's old friends may be surprised as well as pleased to know of his ability as a poet:

My! But that's a good big letter, for January third,
Can you think of any old friends
from whom we haven't heard?
Why! that's a wedding invitation, from some one in St Paul Says wife, with eager glances,
while trying to recall
Whom amongst our friends weren't married,
But neither could surmise, while taking
Time to open it in lessening the surprise.
And there before our faces was written, a request
For us to see the marriage of an only daughter Bess.
Now wa'n't that nice of Herbert and Mrs. Temple, too,
To send that invitation to friends like me and you.
Guess Bert must still remember
'bout the skating on the creek
And how we climbed those lumber piles aplaying hide and seek,
And all those social parties, the Owl Club used to give.
Seems a pity, that our children have forgotten how to live.
Now drop that reminiscencing and let your thoughts abide
On something more acceptable, as a present for the bride.
It seems to me, says wifey, they'l expect a gift or two
In keeping with a friendship of a life-long friend like you.
If you choose a set of silver, which seems to suit you best,
The pattern may not harmonize in keeping with the chest,
And all the handsome pieces she's doubly sure to get.
So, let us think of something, that'll make a better ft.
How about an easy rocker, or a brand new kitchen range
Things that help to make it home like and never do look strange.
Oh, daddy, you're old fashioned,
for, if you did but know
Their home is down the river some fifty miles or so.
If you feel like sending something,
on receipt of that there card,
To save a wrong impression of an old friend's true regard,
Why! send a friendly verse or two
I'm thinking that'd be fine
And trust to modern customs, for the sake of Auld Lang Syne.
As a present to the bride just say that you are most delighted
In knowing that she is to be so happily united,
It may be she has long forgot, the man who used to tease her,
But tell her you're a friend of Dad's.
I'll Betcher that will please her.
Dr. E. B. Hause.

"THE HELPERS"

Mrs F. D. Rector's Sunday-school class of the Presbyterian church demonstrated the reason of their name, "The Helpers." Friday evening by gathering at the church and serving a splendid supper to the men of the Friday's crew who were working on the improvements to the building That the culinary art of the ladies was appretiated was evident by the rapidity with which the viands disappeared

After supper the ladies went to the home of Mrs R. B. Gillespie for their annual meeting and elected the following officers.

President—Mrs. Chas. Kemp
Vice President—Mrs A. W. Mills
Secretary—Miss Alice Wimple
Treasurer—Mrs Nellie Clarkson

For several years the class have assisted Rev Hurd and family, now of Mt Hope in the Thumb district, and have decided to do so another year—so again they prove their right to the name "The Helpers."

SHE CHANGED HER MIND

But She Had a Good Reason For Doing So

By RUTH GRAHAM

The full September moon shone down upon a little cabin on the dry prairies of western Kansas, lighting up the faces of a young man and woman who were slowly walking up and down the open space before the door.

"I was so happy, Rachel," the man said, glancing at the strong, beautiful face of his companion, "when I heard your school up in the Wyoming mountains was closed and you were coming home. I thought you were coming to stay this time. I hope so, for, Rachel, I've loved you a long time."

Dan Southard leaned toward the girl to study the effect of his avowal on her.

But Rachel Winton betrayed no emotion.

She merely turned her dark eyes from the man's eager face and looked off across the moonlit prairie.

"I've been working and waiting, Rachel," he continued, his voice husky with feeling, "until I had something to offer you. I was sure you wouldn't give up teaching for just anything—you're not that kind.

"But I've loved you ever since two years ago, when we all came out to these prairies together in our covered wagons. I remember, after we were here, how bravely you worked to help your parents get started off comfortably before you went with your uncle to Wyoming to teach that ranch school."

"Dan," she exclaimed almost sternly, "I haven't ceased to remember our old house, which father lost on that security debt, the house we were forced to leave when we came here! Mother and I were not very brave, for we shed tears most of the way, though no one knew it. We came because it was the only thing to do, but this pioneer life is a hard, hard one.

"In my heart I am at war with it and always have been. It takes away youth and kills all high and noble ambitions. See how mother has aged during the two years we have lived here. It makes me bitter. That's why I go back to teach. I'm going to make enough to take them away from this life."

"But, Rachel," he pleaded, "you shall never work as your mother has had to. I promise it." Then, suddenly, with a catch in his voice, "Say, girlie, there's no truth in the report about your caring for that rich Wyoming ranchman?"

"Mr. Miles has been very kind to me," she answered without pretending not to understand. "He has offered to let father and mother have the lovely home he owns in Denver if I'll marry him. It would be an ideal place for them to end their days in."

"My God, girlie! I couldn't stand it to see you the wife of another!" the young man cried, his strong frame shaken with emotion.

"You mustn't care so much, Dan," she returned, tender pity for his suffering making her tones kind. "Get a better girl to share your home—one who will love you enough to make the best of this hard life."

"Never, never, Rachel!" he answered, with passion. "I love only you. If you could but read my heart and see how much, you would surely care just a little for me. Your ranchman, rich as he is, will never love you as I do, Rachel! Never!"

"I couldn't love any man well enough to give up all I enjoy and settle down to this isolated life, this continual treadmill of drudgery," she retorted, turning away; then in a milder tone, "Forget me, Dan."

Forget her! That he would never do—he never could. There was a time—it was when they lived in their covered wagons and camped at night by the trail; yes, and even after they were settled here—that he had thought she cared for him.

Those had been the happiest days in Southard's life. He had never dreamed that she hated those free, rolling prairies so intensely.

Blind to this, he had been toiling on his new claim to get things in good shape before asking her to marry him.

Bitterly now he felt that it was all labor lost, for without Rachel Winton nothing was worth while.

After gazing at the girl a moment in silent reproach Southard walked over to his tethered horse, mounted and rode away.

The moon climbed higher as Rachel stood looking after the vanishing horseman.

"Poor Dan!" she murmured. "He is so strong and good. Father and mother love him like a son, but I just can't, can't!" And the tears gathered in her eyes.

"I was intended for something better. If I wasn't, why should I dislike the rough, crude ways of pioneer life so terribly?"

With this question on her lips Rachel Winton entered the cabin, where her parents were already asleep, and sought her couch.

For a long time she lay awake, her mind, much against her will, busy comparing young Southard and Mr. Miles.

Dan's clear cut but somewhat boyish face lost nothing by comparison with that of the bearded, middle aged ranchman who had been wooing her persistently for the past year.

Life with one meant the unceasing drudgery of the prairie farm; with the other, wealth to enable her to live wherever she might choose herself and also give her parents a comfortable home.

But which of the men held the key to her heart?

Really she could not tell, but she grew drowsy making herself believe she would be able in any event to compel her mind with its power of judging wisely to control her heart.

Toward midnight she was aroused by a strange pungent smell pervading her little room. Her breathing was not quite free. What could it mean?

She lay for a minute dazed, yet with what sense she could command, trying to discover the cause of the odor that was gaining in strength and stifling power.

Suddenly a great crimson light illumined the small window. With a quick movement Rachel sprang from bed, and as she did so there came to her ears the rapid beat of a horse's hoofs on the prairie road.

Then she heard Dan's voice burdened with awful import:

"Rachel!" he called. "Mr. Winton! [illegible] on fire!"

"Father! Mother!" the girl called, running to their bed. "Get up! Do you hear? There is a big fire. Yes, Dan," she called from the window as she helped her mother to dress.

"There's not a minute to lose," Southard called back. "The fire is sweeping this way as fast as a strong wind can bring it."

There had been no rain for three weeks, and everything was as dry as tinder.

The Wintons understood the terrible danger impending.

Not only the cabin, but stock, crops, even they themselves, were at the mercy of those leaping flames.

"Bring the blankets, quick!" shouted Southard. Obeying him instantly, Rachel dragged every blanket out of the house.

Dan had ridden his horse to the little spring in the hollow and was rapidly filling every pail he had been able to find about the place.

Acting under his directions, the girl mounted her father's pony, and she and Dan carried water for Mr. and Mrs. Winton to wet the blankets, this being their only means of fighting the fire.

How they worked and fought! It seemed as if the whole world was arrayed against them, and all the while the moon looked down, cold and uncaring, while the fire swept fiercely onward until it caught in a row of dry cornstalks that reached nearly to the cabin. Here the battle must be fought with renewed energy.

The smoke of the burning grass and grain assailed their nostrils, scorched their throats and blinded their eyes, but with hands torn and blistered they toiled on.

When the old couple fell back overcome Dan and Rachel took their places with the heavy wet blankets and worked side by side. Inch by inch they beat back the angry flames.

Even in that terrible situation the girl felt a singular strength and coolness in working by Southard's side. She felt that the enemy must yield to such grand and compelling superiority.

When the fire attacked them from another vulnerable point it was Dan's exhaustless energy that saved the day.

By sacrificing a patch of ripe grain, through a prompt back fire, the foe was met and made to recoil in wrathful flames upon itself.

After a time the great body of the fire swept away northward, having consumed everything of the Wintons' except cabin and stock.

With a thankfulness in their hearts for the preservation of these, the old couple entered the house and threw themselves upon the floor.

Then Southard and Rachel came back with weary, lagging feet from their last successful onslaught.

"Everything's safe now, Rachel," he said huskily, starting toward his horse.

"Dan," she questioned, a queer choking in her throat, "you are not going now?"

He stopped and looked at her. She had never appeared more beautiful to him than now, with the marks of that great fire battle upon her face and tattered dress.

"All we have left we owe to you, Dan," she went on, noting his scorched face, bleeding hands and burned clothing.

Then she placed her blackened hand on his shoulder. How he trembled under that touch!

"I don't feel as if I could bear to have you leave us, Dan." There was a tender pleading in her tones.

"The danger's over, Rachel," he reassured her, "and I must ride all the way to Westfield before daybreak."

"Why to Westfield?" she asked.

Without a word he pointed across the blackened prairie toward his claim. Only a mass of smoking ruins marked the place where his house and stable had been. She understood.

"You left all you had to come to us, Dan," she said, with a sob. "Now you have nothing left. Without your help everything here, even our lives, would have been sacrificed. Oh, Dan, the light of that fire has given me a sight of my own heart! I see that the true life for me is right here, and if you'll let me I'll help you make another home."

"Rachel!" he cried. "You can't mean it! Do you really love me?"

"I have loved you all the time, my knight of the prairies," she answered as his strong arms gathered her to his breast.

A time came when the home was rebuilt and all the other property restored. The pair lived a new and a different life.

"A Thief of Health."

"The man who coughs or sneezes in your presence without covering his mouth with a handkerchief is a thief," the bulletin of the St. Louis health department says.

"He is a thief of health and comfort," continues the bulletin. "Of course he does not know it, and he does not mean to injure his friends and companions, but he does that very thing every time he coughs or sneezes without protecting his mouth and nose with his handkerchief.

"Watch the people who are afflicted and take note of how few persons use a handkerchief when sneezing or coughing. They scatter grip germs in offices, workshops, stores, and within twenty-four to forty-eight hours thousands of persons are infected. Nobody seems to think it worth while to use a handkerchief."

Conclusive.

On one occasion Herr Steinitz, the famous chess master, was discussing political economy with a distinguished professor in England, and the Malthusian theory came up. After the usual arguments the veteran chess player thus wound up the controversy:

"It's all nonsense what they say. You tell me a poor man has no right to have a large family. You say his doing so is not honest, is a positive injury to his country and to humanity. I tell you you are wrong, and I'll prove it. My father was a poor man—a very poor man. My father was an honest man—a very honest man. Well, he had thirteen children, and I, Wilhelm Steinitz, the chess champion of the world, I am the thirteenth!"

ENVY.

Do not let envy blind you. We might enjoy to their utmost many things that we now spoil by the selfish craze for possession. Why should the velvet lawn and strip of woodland cease to be a pleasure and become a source of jealousy and heartache because they are our neighbor's? —Aben.

MOTHER TELLS HOW VINOL

Made Her Delicate Boy Strong

New York City.—"My little boy was in a very weak, delicate condition as a result of gastritis and the measles and there seemed no hope of saving his life. The doctor prescribed cod liver oil, but he could not take it. I decided to try Vinol—and with splendid results. It seemed to agree with him so that now he is a strong healthy boy."—Mrs. THOMAS FITZGERALD, 1090 Park Ave., N. Y. City.

Five Minutes Before Train Time

Robert Moore tells his experience in catching the 7:03:—

"Get up, get up!" shouted my mother one morning when I expected to go to Detroit, I soon was out of bed and vainly trying to get dressed. I found my collar button down under the couch where it had been knocked by the dog. My shirt I found tucked away under the bath tub and "Gee, where could I find a button hook?" As I ran into the living room, looking for this article I glanced at the clock and founr I only had five minutes till the train arrived.

When I found this little thing and was about to put on my shoes I noticed I had on one blue sock and one black one. I pulled he black one off with a jerk and pulled on the blue one which had crawled into the farthest corner possible and, grabbing my coat and hat, I was off for the train.

Coming onto Main street, I noticed the train standing at the crossing. I rushed on like a scared Arab, traveling at the highest speed possible. The train commenced to move and I saw I could not possibly catch it there, so I "hiked" to the other station. Arriving there I was about to get on when my feet struck a patch of ice and my head became acquainted with the board platform.

I finally succeeded in picking myself up and a sorry figure I was. I found my best clothes had become closely acquainted with some wet snow and it was not anxious to sever its acquaintance at once. I alos found my super-dreadnaughts (shoes) had tried to steam away in a neighboring puddle but had become mired. As I stood there watching the train disappear I said to myself that I didn't want to go to Detroit anyway.

Miss Miller: "And what was the result of Germany?"

Elizabeth Comfort: "Why it—went-all-to—thunder!"

Looks like modern history, eh?

It has been currently reported that Luther Burbank has at last succeeded in producing a quilless porcupine—It has also been stated that he is now engaged in an effort to extract hops from the grasshoppers.

Nobody Home!

Leigh McLain is now forced to wear the followipg notice:

INMATE OF ASYLUM
Is without keeper—Beware.

Mr. Meads entertained his English class with an interesting(?) description of a football game. He states that the game is "degarding."

Miss Helen Miller visited her sister Miss Mary Miller Monday and Tuesday.

Wanted—Will someone please donate a new watch (set 10 minutes ahead of time) to Morris Palman so that he may get to English class before 9:30.

We have Leslie Johnson's opinion of college for he told of when Goldsmith "escaped" from college.

"Cuffy" must be intimately acquainted with the Gray for he mentioned his "dad" like an old friend.

Miss Miller and Miss Armstrong are fond of sprinting and as they are quite renowned they gave us an exhibition Friday afternoon in trying to catch the 3 o'clock train. However they needed assistants and assistance.

The German II class had their picture taken Wednesday. But Mr. Reed refuses to have his taken.

The Senior English class planned a sleigh ride party out to Muza Rice's for Monday night, but again they were doomed to disappointment on account of the chilly weather. They expect to have it the fourth of July or on Miss Rood's birthday.

The Sophomore history class are having some time trying to get the French, English and German kings straightened out.

English IV has inspired one of the Seniors and we expect in a few years one of the most popular plays vill be a sequel to "She Stoops to Conquer," namely, "Someone Pushed Her Over," by Ralph Dudley Cuthbert Esq.

Harold Lowry is out of school this week with a carbuncle on his temple. We wonder now who gave him that.

Miss Muza Rice has acquired a new position—that of shoveling coal for Mr. Saul. She says that she is practicing up in case she will have to some day. We wonder.

Chemistry teacher: "What's a nitrate?"

Bright pupil: "The rate between [illegible] p. m. and [illegible] a. m."

Very few valentines were seen Wednesday. Evidently our pupils consider themselves "too old" for such things.

There are many furrowed brows this week for Mr. Reed is making out the list of Seniors and they are all waiting patiently(?)

If Noah had only had our militia! Miss Rood: "What would the governor do in case of flood?"

Pupil: Call out the militia."

The physics class, because they have no dark room for light experiments, met Monday night for an experiment on the determination of the candle power of various lights. Mr. Davidson's lantern tested three candle power.

The chemistry class enjoyed several interesting reports on "Chemical Control Tuesday.

After a two hour German test "Joey" was too exhausted to appear in class the next day.

Leussaus "Deutchland" is the new book of the German I class.

The agriculture class are judging and testing seed corn.

The music class expect to finish their course in "Harmony" this week after which they will take up "Melody Writing" and later "History of Music."

The Latin I class had a test Thursday.

TUBERCULAR SURVEY

Perhaps the one thing that more than anything else will restrain people from coming to the free tuberculosis examinations that the state board of health will conduct in Lenawee county during the week beginning Feb. 19th will be fear to face the facts about their physical condition. There is in many people an unreasonable fear of tuberculosis which Dr. William DeKliene, director of the survey, asserts, is responsible for a great deal of real harm. Many a man who feels himself run down is afraid to be examined for fear that his suspicions that he may have tuberculosis may prove to be correct.

"Fear should not hold anyone back," said Dr. DeKliene. "A person who is run down and who is told he has tuberculosis should be glad he has learned the real state of things in time. If he takes the examination early enough he has nine chances out of ten of getting well. Personally I would rather have tuberculosis than many another disease that is lightly regarded, provided I knew it in time. In fact more people get well from tugerculosis than from almost any other important disease.

"But the point must be borne in mind that the disease must be attended to early. And that is what the state board of health is trying to do in these county campaigns, to help people to attend to it early. I hope for that reason that all persons who are physically run down will come to the free examinations when they are held here."

Figures gathered from the county records show that the death rate in this county from tuberculosis is about as high in proportion to population as in most of the other counties in the state. It simply proves once more, what is well known to tuberculosis workers, that there is no community that is free from the disease and that much hard work has to be done here as well as everywhere else, if the death rate is to be cut down in Michigan as the state board of health hopes to cut it down. There is much opportunity in this county for constructive work along health lines, the state health workers assert.

BELIEVE 13 DEAD IN MINNEAPOLIS BLAZE

Kenwood Hotel Is Destroyed in Midnight Fire.

MINNEAPOLIS — At least thirteen persons were known to be missing and were believed to have lost their lives in the spectacular fire which destroyed the Kenwood hotel, Twelfth street and Hennepin avenue shortly after midnight, according to police estimates.

In addition to the known missing there are eleven others unaccounted for who may be in the ruins, according to E. D. Stalker, proprietor of the place. One person is known to be dead. Mrs. Lucille Squire suffered a fractured skull when she leaped from a third-story window. She died shortly afterward at the city hospital.

Many of the seventy-six guests were transients, and the actual death list probably will never be known.

In a decision issuing a mandamus against the Wayne county board of supervisors, ordering them to reconvene and take the figures of the state tax commission as a basis for tax-levying, the supreme court read into Michigan law a little more recognition of the state tax commission as the real assessing power of the state.

GERMANY STILL HOLDS YANKEES

72 Treated as Hostages for Teuton Crews in U. S.

ALL CLEAR AS MUD TO KAISER

Original Reason Given for Holding Americans Was "Lying Reports of Allied Press"—Reassured by Wilson, but Americans Still Held—Gerard Threatened War With Germany When Held Prisoner.

WASHINGTON — Some anxiety was apparent here as to the fate of the seventy-two American citizens taken to Germany as prisoners on the captured British ship Yarrowdale. It was reported that these Americans were held by Germany pending assurances that the United States proposed to abide by the treaty of 1828 guaranteeing the property rights of the citizens and subjects of both countries in time of war. This action, it was stated, resulted from reports that the United States had violated the rights of Germans in this country. It was stated that in reply to the request of the United States for the release of the Yarrowdale prisoners, Germany had asked in a note now en route as to the status of the treaty of 1828. The President has made clear informally his determination to adhere to the principle of the treaty in the cases referred to in the note.

Germany Delays All Americans.

BERNE — The German government intends to delay departure of Americans now in Berlin in order to have such citizens in hand for retaliatory measures in case America declares war and interns German citizens in the United States.

Permission for Americans eventually to depart was only obtained by the strong stand of American Ambassador Gerard.

Hold 72 Americans as Hostages.

BERLIN, GER.—Foreign Secretary Zimmermann informed the press that he had requested the Swiss government to make inquiry in Washington regarding the status of the crews of interned German ships in American ports.

Pending an answer, the seventy-two Americans taken by the German raider and brought in by the Yarrowdale, whose release has been agreed to, are being held in Germany, the foreign secretary stated.

The release of the Yarrowdale prisoners was agreed to with Ambassador Gerard on the eve of the break in relations, but the possibility of the German crews being interned in the United States prompted the admiralty to rescind the orders liberating the Americans held with the rest of the Yarrowdale prisoners.

Clear as Mud to Kaiser.

This action of Germany is taken despite the statement that the holding of Americans was caused by erroneous statements by entente news bureaus, and that the President's note subsequently reassuring Germany on this point was a sensational surprise to the foreign office and cleared the matter up

Gerard Threatened War.

BERNE, SWITZERLAND — From neutral soil it is possible to reveal the pressure which the German government brought powerfully to bear on the American ambassador to force from him the signing of a treaty which would practically guarantee the safety of German ships in American waters. Gerard persistently refused. He declined even to communicate such proposals to Washington unless he was granted freedom of confidential communication.

An ultimatum, demanding the signing of the treaty, practically was given Gerard, it being backed up with the threat to hold American correspondents as hostages if such action was not taken.

Gerard, it is reliably reported, told the German official who brought this threat that if Americans were forced to remain in Germany, America would regard such action as a cause for war.

Then the American newspaper correspondents ascertained that they were likely to be held as hostages in Germany for America's guaranteeing of the German ships' safety. They were finally granted permission to leave with Gerard on the special train, but received their passports only four hours before the time set for the departure.

When the correspondents went to Gerard and told him what they had heard, he replied: "I told Count Montgelas that I'd sit there until kingdom come and not leave until all Americans were permitted free exit."

After this the German officials granted pasports to those desiring to leave with Gerard.

Wilson Cancels All Dates.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson will avoid public gatherings of all kinds for the present. He will make no speeches and attend no large social, or business meetings. He cancelled an engagement to speak before the Park View Citizens' association here.

China Breaks With Germany.

LONDON, ENG.—China has broken off diplomatic relations with Germany, it was authoritatively reported here.

GIRL BLOCKS GRAYSON RAISE

Miss Dubose, 17, Said to Have Lobbied for Her Father.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The fight of a seventeen year old girl has probably killed the chance of senate confirmation of the nomination of Dr. Cary T. Grayson, President Wilson's physician, to be a near admiral.

The girl is Miss Dubose, daughter of Captain Dubose of the navy medical corps, whom Grayson would jump in his long-distance promotion. It developed that she had been to every senator with the plea that her father ought to have the place; that his record is untarnished in forty-one years' service, and in that service he had been in actual war and in every corner where the navy goes.

Appeals for Cannon for Liners.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine, made formal application to the navy department for guns to arm the passenger liners of the American line. The possibility that the navy might supply guns indirectly through loan or sale to shipowners has received some consideration but a preference for direct action by the department in placing the guns aboard is indicated by the shipowners.

USE YOUR THINK-TANK!

When there's a bit of cold wave Willy Pussyfoot shudders and says; "I'm glawd m'caw's put away. O-o-o it's cold, b,gad!"

But cold waves do not last long now. Winter is thinning out; and even while staying with us, it produces many of the finest out door motoring days of the entire year, with temperatures just snappy enough to make red blood tingle, give a chap an appetite and makes the whole world look rosy!

Don't be a Willie Pussyfoot! Buy your Spring Car at once and use it. We can make a few immediate deliveries. Take quick advantage of the opportunity.

A few weeks from now, when the Spring car rush looms up—you may be one of those who will have to wait—who failed to take our February advise, who kept putting it off. Last fall we ran way shy of our needs—so great was the demand. Spring 1917 will push us even harder.

Looking out for the future. We have been getting in all the cars we could. Early. Think it over if you buy your car NOW instead of two months later—the cost at 6% bank interest for the 60 days wouldn't total enough to keep a canary bird that long in seed and cuttlefish! And you'll have your car—no future disappointment. Remember—You cannot ride on a promise—also Spring is only just around the corner! Won't it pay to buy now? And when you do your thinking use that part of your think-tank that's filled with broad, business-like common sense

WILSON REJECTS KAISER'S PARLEY

Unrestricted U-Boat War Must First Be Abandoned.

REPLY REBUFFS GERMANY

Teutonic Nation Offered to Protect American Shipping if London Blockade Be Not Interfered With—Sussex Pledge Must Be Adhered to, President Insists.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States has replied to Germany's proposal of a discussion of the submarine situation by declining to enter informal negotiations while the proclamation of unrestricted warfare remains in effect and until Germany restores the pledge given in the Sussex case.

The state department made public Germany's proposal submitted in a memorandum by Dr. Paul Ritter, the Swiss minister, and also the government's reply.

Germany proposes to negotiate for the safety of American shipping provided the "commercial blockade" of England is not interfered with.

Statement Given Out by United States.

The state department gave out a statement as follows:

"In view of the appearance in the newspapers of Feb. 11 of a report that Germany was initiating negotiations with the United States in regard to submarine warfare, the state department makes the following statement:

"A suggestion was made orally to the department of state late Saturday afternoon by the minister of Switzerland that the German government is willing to negotiate with the United States, provided that the commercial blockade against England would not be interfered with.

"At the request of the secretary of state this suggestion was made in writing and presented to him by the Swiss minister Sunday night. The communication is as follows:

"'Memorandum:

"'The Swiss government has been requested by the German government to say that the latter is now, as before, willing to negotiate, formally or informally with the United States, provided that the commercial blockade against England will not be broken thereby.

"'(Signed.) P. RITTER.'"

Must Restore Sussex Pledge.

"This memorandum was given immediate consideration and the following reply was dispatches:

"'My Dear Mr. Minister:

"'I am requested by the President to say to you, in acknowledging the memorandum which you were kind enough to send to me on the 11th instant, that the government of the United States would gladly discuss with the German government any questions it might propose for discussion were it to withdraw its proclamation of the 31st of January, in which, suddenly and without previous intimation of any kind, it canceled the assurances which it had given this government on the 4th of last May: but that it does not feel that it can enter into any discussion with the German government concerning the policy of submarine warfare against neutrals which it is now pursuing unless and until the German government renews its assurances of the 4th of May and acts upon the assurance.'

"No other interchange on this subject has taken place between this government and any other government or person."

VALENTINE PARTY

A very pleasant occasion was that of the Valentine party held in Witherell's hall Thursday evening, 35 couple participating.

The hall was beautifully decorated, the valentine scheme being followed out. From the ceiling were hung strands of green from which large red hearts pierced with darts were suspended. A frieze of hearts, darts and red crepe paper decorated the wall about the hall. Many pedestal lamps with large red shades were arranged about the room and above the doors were clustered bunches of holly. Easy chairs and divans furnished resting places between dances.

The reception room also presented a very pleasing appearance, crepe paper being used with other decorations. The ladies' orchestra from Toledo assisted by Will Coller furnished the music.

Dancing was prolonged until a late hour, and the young ladies Valentine party was pronounced a great success.

Among the out-of town guests were Miss Beatrice Egan of Adrian, Miss Waters of Manchester and Mr. Frasier of Ann Arbor.

MISS WIMPLE SURPRISED

Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 the 8th grade surprised their teacher Miss Alice Wimple in the school room adjoining the Webster Anderson store. About thirty of the pupils were in attendance The party was a genuine Valentine affair as valentines were in evidence everywhere Games were played and a merry time was enjoyed The young ladies served a fine supper to the company. The only unpleasantness was the smoke from the next door furnace where they were using soft coal in place of the hard coal that they could not get.

LYMAN H. HOWE'S SHOW

The Lyman Howe picture show, "The Polar Exploration" was given at the Opera House, Tuesday evening to a good sized audience and was certainly a very interesting entertainment.

The picture was so unlike anything ever shown here, that it held one spellbound by its strangeness. It was certainly marvelous and past our comprehension, that such scenery was to be found, the wonderful snow deserts, icy walls and fearful blizzards and the venturesome party that made it possible by their work to make this wonderful film we can only wonder how they accomplished it. Interspersed through the evening were pictures of more common things that eased the strain which had held the audience so closely.

The show was interesting in every way and one felt well repaid for going.

MISS MINGAY COMPLIMENTED

Miss Nellie Mingay who has been teaching languages and the public speaking class of the Flint high school for the last few years has resigned her position which takes effect Friday and will go to her home in Tecumseh. The evening was spent in sewing for the bride-elect and lunch was served. Miss Amy Davis entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner Sunday evening in honor of Miss Mingay. Other pre-nuptial functions will be given this week for Miss Mingay.

The above was clipped from the Flint Daily Journal of February 13, 1917 and will be of interest to Miss Mingay's many friends in Tecumseh.

A THOROUGH TEST

Ones to Convince the Most Skeptical Tecumseh Reader

The test of time is the test that counts.

Doan's Kidney Pills have made their reputation by effective action.

The following case is typical.

Tecumseh residents should be convinced.

The testimony is confirmed—the proof complete.

Testimony like this cannot be ignored.

Mrs. Alice Burrough, W. Pottawatamie street, Tecumseh, says: "I sometimes ached all over and had such tired feelings that my energy seemed all gone. My kidneys didn't act regularly and at times my back ached. I knew of others who had been helped by using Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got some at Wright & Son's Drug Store. In a few weeks I felt much better and finally I was free from the aches and pains. I was benefited in every way." (Statement given in December, 1908.)

Again praises Doan's On July 27, 1916, Mrs. Burrough said: "I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, for they are a good medicine. They cured me of kidney trouble." 50c at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

ASKS U. S. GUNS

One of American Liners Periled by Submarines.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR.

Thursday, Feb. 8.—Ten more ships were torpedoed by submarines in the day closed. An American, George Washington on the Turino, was killed. The ship was sunk without warning.

The U. S. government is hurrying work on defenses. Heavy guns have been rushed to New York harbor, and Chesapeake bay is being patrolled. Mobile Bay has been mined. Germans in the employ of the U. S. coast service are being discharged.

British forces on the Somme have gained on a front of three miles an average depth of three-quarters of a mile. The latest successes were the capture of the highest point of Sailly-Saillisel Hill and all the village of Grandcourt.

Friday, Feb. 9.—Pending developments in the crisis over the U-boat campaign the government is rushing measures to put the United States on a war basis as much as if war were already declared. The navy department urged the recruiting of 25,000 men for naval purposes. The war department acted to call 50,000 officers for an army reserve of 500,000 men for emergency.

The national council of defense began organizing the flood of offers of manufacturers and others in commercial life for a unified and effective weapon.

The toll of boats in the U-boat warfare went down to six with a tonnage of 10,425. Of these only two ships were British while four were neutrals.

In the Somme region the British gained in two attacks, pushing the Germans back from ridges beyond Grandcourt.

Saturday, Feb. 10.—Germany is reported to have addressed to the United States a communication suggesting that the two governments discuss ways and means of preventing actual war between them. Germany is understood to have made it clear that although diplomatic relations have been broken, she greatly desires that peace be maintained.

Reports from Vienna received at The Hague and transmitted by the exchange Telegraph company say the Austro-Hungarian government is negotiating with American Ambassador Penfield over the question of allowing Americans to travel unhindered in the Mediterranean.

Reports from all battlefronts indicate general lassitude in hostilities.

Sunday, Feb. 11.—Over three-quarters of a mile of trenches north of Beaumont-Hamel, on the southern slope on the ridge behind which lies Serre, was taken by the British in the development of their offensive north of the Ancre.

Further British gains are also reported from Mesopotamia. New positions were occupied on a front of over 6,000 yards—more than three miles—after driving back the enemy for a distance of from half to three-quarters of a mile.

On the Isonzo front, in the region of Goritz, the Austrians made desperate attacks on the Latin positions, entering the trenches at several points and capturing over 650 men and 15 officers.

Sunday was marked by an extraordinary drop in the effectiveness of Germany's submarine warfare. Only three ships were sunk, with a tonnage total of little more than 5,000. This is about half the daily average in ships for January.

SEA BATTLE IS INDICATED

Wreckage Off Brazil Indicates Destruction of Some Vessel.

PERNAMBUCO, BRAZIL — During the last few days a considerable amount of wreckage has been washed ashore on the coast near the mouth of the Parnahyba.

The wreckage includes wireless apparatus, a tin box containing a small quantity of cylinders filled with an explosive substance, planks and cans of provisions.

Believe Mercier a Prisoner.

ROME — Vatican circles have been virtually without news of Cardinal Mercier for some time and beginning to have the impression that the prelate is being forcibly isolated by the German authorities in Belgium to an extent that might be real captivity.

U. S. NAVY GUNS ON LINERS

Administration Has Arrived at a Determination.

WASHINGTON — The pressing question of guarding the lives of American citizens who go down to the sea in ships has become the center of administration concern. With American ocean traffic practically suspended, the President and his advisers recognized the necessity for immediate action, and the state department and the navy department laid before the President all of the data on the question.

It is stated authoritatively that the position of the United States has been clearly reaffirmed and that the decision on the question of arming American ships was a matter of a short time. The means of accomplishing the result is the real problem to be dealt with and the President is expected to take decisive action promptly.

It is well for a man to respect his own vocation, whatever it is, and to think himself bound to uphold it and to claim for it the respect it deserves.—Charles Dickens.

5,000,000 Corns Lifted Right Off!

Try 2 Drops of Magic "Gets-It."

There's a wonderful difference between getting rid of a corn now and the way they used to try to get rid of it only four or five years ago. "Gets-It" has revolutionized corn history. It's the only corn remedy

"See! Just 2 Drops of 'Gets-It.' Now Tomorrow I'll Just Peel That Corn Right Off—and It's Gone!"

today that acts on the new principle, not only of shriveling up the corn, but of loosening the corn off—so loose that you can lift it right off with your fingers. Put 2 drops of "Gets-It" on that corn or callus tonight. That's all! The corn is doomed sure as sunrise. No pain, or trouble, or soreness. You do away once and for all with toe-bundling bandages, toe-eating salves and irresponsible what-nots. Try it—get surprised and lose a corn. PRESIDENT WILL BE GIVEN POWER

Plans to Be Told to Congress Soon.

WILL AVOID EXTRA SESSION

National Lawmakers Will Place in His Hands Authority, Funds and Machinery for Dealing With Submarine Blockade Before Session Ends March 4.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Atlantic fleet has sailed from Guantanamo under sealed orders, it is reliably reported. Furthermore every other available craft in harbors has been sent to sea and a vast coast patrol is now in progress.

As fast as the navy yards along the Atlantic seaboard can fit out the reserve ships for active duty, they are being sent to take their place beside the war vessels already at sea.

The present mysterious manoeuvres of the Atlantic fleet were arranged at a series of conferences during the week in the office of Rear Admiral Benson, chief of operations. The conferences were held to prepare for any contingencies that may arise in the near future.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Congressional leaders planned to back President Wilson at his request all power, authority and financial support of the United States in any move he may deem necessary to meet the German crisis.

Legislation will be framed along lines suggested by him during the coming week, giving him authority to use the armed forces of the nation to protect American rights on the sea. It will be rushed through the house and senate before the Sixty-fourth congress dies on March 4, two weeks from Sunday.

With authority to use the nation's warmaking machinery will go a great emergency budget, to provide the financial fuel the machinery will need.

Wilson to Direct.

Details of the legislation will be worked out by congressional administration leaders with the President and his advisers.

The house and senate leaders are prepared to have President Wilson appear before a joint session within the next two days and outline his demands.

There is considerable concern among members of both houses as to what form the President's request for authority will take. This, they declare will have much to do with the time congress will need for consideration. For this reason the leaders believe the President should make clear his demands as soon as he can.

Don't Want Extra Session.

The President made it clear he desires to avoid an extra session of congress. He therefore believes congress should vest him with complete authority to meet any situation that may arise after March 4.

Reluctance of congress to pass blanket legislation, delegating authority it considers its own prerogative may cause some opposition to this course.

Therefore administration leaders believe with only two weeks of the session remaining, the President should state his emergency program at once.

NAVY YARDS PERILED BY MYSTERIOUS FIRE

Blaze Breaks Out at Washington Despite Precautions.

Washington, Feb. 19.—A mysterious fire in the Washington navy yard called out all the fire fighting apparatus in the eastern end of the city, including the fire and police boats and police reserves.

Extraordinary precautions had been taken to guard the yard from fires, bombs and other outrages.

The shops had been closed since Saturday. Until evidence is forthcoming of a plot to destroy the yard, with its valuable naval construction blue prints, officials are attributing the fire to spontaneous combustion. The blaze was discovered among oil and paints in a one-story building near the wharves by a sentry marine. It was extinguished with slight damage.

ITALIAN STEAMER IS SUNK

Total Tonnage About 14,000—Three Victims British — Worcestershire Was Steamer of 7,175 Tons—Sinking Without Warning—Fate of One Crew Is Not Known.

London, Feb. 19.—Lloyds shipping agency announced the sinking of three British steamships of a total tonnage of 12,008 and first information was given out in Berlin of the sinking of the Italian steamship Bisagno of 2,251 tons in the Atlantic ocean Jan. 12.

Two members of the crew of the Valdes, one of the ships sunk, were killed, and nine are missing, the captain and other members of the crew having been landed. The Valdes was torpedoed and sunk without warning, according to the announcement. The fate of the crews of the other vessels was not given.

The biggest prize of the day's reports was the Worcestershire of 7,175 tons gross. The activities of submarines covered in the reports bring the total tonnage lost since Feb. 1 up to 253,543.

With three exceptions they are bound to the submarine war zone. The three others to regions where the German raider Vineta has been active.

Of the twelve, two are Americans, two other neutrals, and six British, one French and one Japanese. Three are passenger carrying liners armed for defense—the Laconia, Roma and Verdi.

HORRORS OF WAR.

As They Were Depicted by a Minister in Cromwell's Time.

That war has horrors and is to be avoided like a pestilence is no new discovery. Modern war is probably worse than any that preceded it, but from the beginning thoughtful, observing mankind has protested against the suffering and wastefulness caused by battle.

Here, for instance, is Rev. William Hooke, a New Haven minister, who later became a chaplain to Oliver Cromwell, writing in 1640 about war. The death dealing instrument of that day might now seem almost harmless by comparison with the implements used in these advanced times, but the New Haven man was keenly alive to the saddening aspect of their use.

"Warre," he writes, "is the conflict of enemies enraged with bloody revenge. The instruments are clashing swords, rattling spears, skull dividing Halberds, murthering pieces and thundering Cannons, from whose mouths proceed the fire and smell and smoke and terror, death, as it were, of the very bottomless pit."

The preacher's description of battle has all the vigor of early pulpit rhetoric. "Here ride some dead men swaggering in their deepe saddles," he pictures; "there fall others alive upon their dead horses; death sends a message to those from the mouths of the muskets; these it talks to face to face and stabs them in the fifth rib."

War becomes more terrible as man's ingenuity brings forth new instruments of torture.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"DRINK STORM" VICTIMS.

New Study of Why Some Men Go on Periodic Debauches.

There has recently been organized in Hartford, Conn., a foundation for a new line of research work relating to the alcoholic question. This research will have for its object the explanation of "drink storms," which attack men who are not regular drinkers, but suddenly plunge into a debauch and use liquor to excess for a limited period, after which they resume their usual condition of temperate living.

This subject is treated by Dr. T. D. Crothers of Hartford, Conn., in the New York Medical Record. He says: "What condition of body and mind furnishes the soil, plants the seed and favors the growth in inebriety and alcoholism is yet to be studied. What laws of growth, heredity, culture, surroundings, nutrition and mental impression favor the development of the drink evil are questions for the future.

"Why the degeneration from the use of alcohol is in one instance slow, concealed and breaking out only after a lifetime in various diseases; in another rapid, positive and most emphatic, and in a third concentrated on the brain and nervous system or on the organs of nutrition, and so on through a long list of questions as to why and how this or that particular phase of disease breaks out, are questions for future study.

"This is the new scientific field where exact study is called for, groupings of facts and studies of their meanings, to show the causes of alcohol addiction."

X-RAY TRACES ILLS TO DECAYED TEETH

Hospital Expert Finds Ailments Result from Dental Troubles.

ANN ARBOR, Feb. 19.

"Watch your teeth!" is the warning given by Dr. James G. Van Zwaluyenburg, clinical professor of Roentgenology at the University hospital.

Dr. Van, as he is known to his colleagues, has charge of all work in X-ray the sixth sense of medicine.

Dr. Van warns against neglecting the teeth because he has so often found them responsible for headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia and a number of other ailments. He can tell whether a dentist has done a good or poor job the minute the X-ray plate is developed; if the dentist is to blame, there is the damning evidence in black and white.

When children swallow pennies or when seamstresses gulp down a mouthful of pins, Dr. Van shows the doctor where to poke. In the course of three years he has found nearly 100 foreign substances in human bodies, including pins, needles, washers, money and bullets. He has one slide showing a bullet lodged in the brain of a man who is still enjoying good health; another of an open safety pin in the chest of a child, which was afterwards removed by an operation.

BERLIN ADMITS GAIN BY BRITISH IN WEST

Germans Say They Abandoned Advanced Crater Points.

London, Feb. 19.—Official admission is made by the German war office that the British gained in their recent attacks on both sides of the River Ancre.

"We abandoned to the enemy our most advanced crater positions," says the Berlin report, which, however, is silent on the British claim that the line was penetrated to a depth of 1,000 yards.

No British report of further operations has been received.

Berlin, Feb. 19.—British troops continued their attacks against the German positions on both banks of the River Ancre and the battle surged to and fro all day.

After taking 130 prisoners and capturing five machine guns, say the official statement issued by the German army headquarters, the Teutons abandoned their advanced crater positions north of the river.

British attempts to enter German trenches northwest of Armentieres, southwest of Lille, northwest of La Bassee canal and near Ransart, were repulsed by the Germans after hand-to-hand fighting.

EDISON WORKS ON SECRET

Mysterious Moves of Inventor Cause Rumor of War Machine.

Orange, N. J., Feb. 19.—Thomas A. Edison, in a special laboratory, is working in conjunction with United States government experts. Their labors are being prosecuted far into the night, but what they are working on is a secret. A guard patrols the grounds at all times. Mr. Edison is chairman of the naval consulting board.

A short distance from the main Edison plant is a big corrugated iron building with the window glass coated and the windows barred. On good authority it was learned that Mr. Edison has in the building a sixteen-foot working model of a submarine which, it is said, was the basis of Henry Ford's statement that he could build 1,000 one-man submarines a day if he was called on to do so.

BLOCKADE STARVES GREEKS

Poor Living on Herbs and Grass Says Official Report.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Greek legation in a statement issued here says famine is resulting from the entente blockade of the coast of Greece and the poor classes are living on herbs and grass. It also is declared that, despite compliance with the ultimatum of the allies, there has been no relaxation of the blockade measures.

The statement says: "Ten deaths from starvation have been reported from the province of Jannina, one at Laurium, ten in Acarnania, two in the province of Preveza, one in Eubia and one in Messina. The poor classes have begun to live on herbs and grass. The epidemics of entritis and dysentery are rapidly spreading in the country."

Paris, Feb. 19.—A French assault on a German trench in the Lepretre wood, on the left bank of the river Moselle, near Ponta Moussen, resulted in the destruction of its fortifications, according to the war office statement. Patrol clashes at different points on the front were the only other actions recorded.

New Idea In Battleships.

Training Children.

A common fault among children is that of self excuse. If reproved for idleness, untidiness or other childish failings the excuse is often ready. This is a bad habit, which if not checked is apt to degenerate into untruthfulness, and the lie becomes as easy as the excuse.

U. S. CRUISER DIXIE ENTERS HAVANA PORT

Cuban Gunboats Escape Coup by Rebels.

Havana, Feb. 19.—The scout cruiser Dixie entered Havana harbor. The city is quiet.

The Dixie comes from Guantanamo.

Hawley, president of the Cuban-American Sugar company, arrived on the Swedish freighter Juerto Padre from Chaparra. He will begin an investigation of the revolutionary conditions as they affect the sugar industry on the island.

The Cuban gunboats Baire and Yara, which escaped from Santiago, in control of the revolutionists, toward Guantanamo, arrived at Havanna.

RUSH TO BECOME CITIZENS

Teutons Seeking Naturalization Papers Swamp U. S. Facilities.

Washington, Feb. 19.—During the two weeks since the diplomatic break with Germany foreigners living in the United States, notably Germans and Austrians, have flocked to the courts to become American citizens in such numbers that, labor department officials say, the total could not even be estimated.

An idea of the unprecedented rush for naturalization papers is afforded by the fact that in one day alone more than 50,000 certifications of naturalization were issued.

GUARDSMEN ORDERED HOME

All Will Have Left Border by March 7, Is Plan.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Coincident with the reopening of the American embassy in Mexico the big army of national guardsmen that was concentrated on the border on account of bandit activities will be in process of dissolution.

Orders were issued by the war department directing General Funston to begin the immediate demobilization of all the guard units remaining in border camps, and it is expected that the last troop train will be on its way north by March 7.

MOTION PICTURE NOVELTY.

Statues That Are Made to Dance, Act, Jump and Fight.

The motion picture folk have hit upon a novelty called "animated sculpture," which means that they take statues and make them move. The feat isn't as hard as it seems, although the work required is much greater than drawing hundreds of pictures with pen and ink for a movie cartoon.

The figures are first modeled in clay, then changed to different poses and photographed one by one. The photos are thrown on the screen without a break, so that they jump about as if they were real. The effect is startlingly realistic and highly amusing. In one of the films only recently completed there are no less than nine figures, all of them moving about as if they were flesh and blood. The rather jerky action serves only to enhance the amusing result.

To appreciate the amount of work required in making these new films it must be remembered that each time one of the sculptured figures moves a new pose must be made. This means, in other words, that the camera must stop until the sculptor goes over each plastic figure and molds it into the correct position before he can photograph it. There are sixteen different poses to a foot of film. Hence for the ordinary reel of 1,000 feet there are 16,000 separate poses for each figure. Imagine the work required when three or more figures have to be made for each scene! —Popular Science Monthly.

THE "OPEN DOOR."

What Is Meant by the Term In International Politics.

The "open door" is in international politics the principle of equal treatment in trade with oriental countries for all trading nations as opposed to the policy of effective monopoly in favor of any one nation.

The phrase came into popular use toward the end of the nineteenth century, when various European nations were trying to establish "spheres of influence" in China.

The United States was opposed to the granting to any nation of exclusive trading privileges in these "spheres of influence," and in 1899 John Hay, secretary of state, addressed a circular note to the interested powers, asking them to pledge themselves not to interfere with any treaty port or with any vested interest within their respective spheres of influence, to engage that discriminating customs and port duties should not be levied in such spheres and that within any nation's sphere of influence no higher railroad charges should be imposed upon subjects of other nations than upon subjects of the nations having such spheres.

The pledges asked were given in their entirety by France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy and Japan. Russia reserved the right to levy discriminatory duties.—New York Times.

Trap Shooting.

Home trap shooting has become almost as popular as shooting at gun clubs, and people living in the country find it a splendid way of entertaining their friends. They select an open field for their shooting grounds, and the equipment consists simply of a hand trap and a barrel of targets. The guests are invited to bring their guns and ammunition and spend an afternoon in the country. And, oh, the fun they do have!

Aside from the fascinations of trap shooting, one must consider the great benefit of the sport to women and young girls. As a strengthener of muscles and a steadier of nerves it can hardly be surpassed. It also causes women to lose all signs of timidity and makes them fully competent to take care of themselves in all circumstances.—Exchange.

SHIPS DISABLED BY ORDER OF GERMANY

Captain of Kronprinzessen Cecelia Makes Admission.

Boston, Feb. 19.—The North German-Lloyd passenger liner Kronprinzessin Cecilia, while in the custody of a United States marshal under a libel order from the federal court, was deliberately disabled at the directions of her German commander.

Captain Charles A. Polack so testified in the United States district court, and added that he, in turn, had taken his orders from the German government. The damage to the vessel was done on the night of Jan. 31, three days before diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany were broken off.

Under examination by counsel for the libellants, Captain Polack said that on that day he had received orders to render his vessel unseaworthy from an unnamed official of the German embassy at Washington.

Claiming that to reveal the name of the German agent who gave him the order would subject him to the death penalty when he returned to Germany, Captain Polack was excused from such revelation.

Seattle, Feb. 19.—Captain Franzhelfer, the Austrian commander of the Hamburg-American freighter Saxonia, interned at Eagle Harbor, has confessed to Seattle federal authorities that he destroyed certain parts and otherwise put the machinery of the vessel out of commission in compliance with specific orders given him by Dr. Emil Ohrt, German consul general at Seattle. The latter is now with Ambassador Bernstorff.

CALL IT GERMAN SUBMARINE

Affidavits of Lyman M. Law Survivors Tell of Piracy.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Ambassador Page at Rome has obtained affidavits from the officers and crew of the American schooner Lyman M. Law, recently sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean.

A brief summary of the affidavits, submitted to the state department, said the survivors were of the opinion that the submarine was German. Previous dispatches had said it was an Austrian vessel without flag. Before the Law was sunk, the dispatch said, about $1,400 worth of stores were taken off the Law by the submarine's crew.

Washing Windows.

A spoonful of kerosene added to a kettle of very hot water will make windows, looking glasses and picture glasses bright and clear. Use a small, clean cloth, wring it dry and rub it over the glass after wiping down the framework with an old oiled cloth. Then proceed to the next window and treat it similarly on both sides. After that go back to the first one and wipe it dry with a large, clean cloth. No real polishing is required, and the windows or glass will look clear and shiny.

Successful Trapping.

Whenever I catch an animal that leaves a natural odor in the vicinity I am almost sure to get another in the same place. An animal will come a long distance to investigate a scent of its own kind. One should be very careful not to leave any [illegible] kind when killing a trapped animal since this will frighten away another fur bearer who has come to find the cause of the scent.

Few trappers stop to think how keenly sensitive is the nose of a game or fur bearing animal. Just suppose that you could smell as many things as you can see. Cover carefully every human odor on the trap line and you have half caught your animal. Then use some good scent to tickle his sensitive nose and you will win.

One of the best single drugs that can be used to allure a fur bearer is oil of anise. Oil of lavender, asafetida, rhodium and peppermint are often used together in manufactured baits. I think the most dependable scent bait that I have used is fish oil.—F. E. Brimmer in Orange Judd Farmer.

"You Always Pay."

"You always pay, you know," said a forger who was captured recently after years of liberty as a fugitive from justice.

Sure you do. Whether you violate man's law or nature's law, which is another name for God's law, you always have to pay, and the full price, too. Some pay, as this man did, in dodging and slinking through the world like a hunted beast, his mind worried, his face gradually taking on a furtive look, knowing always that somewhere ahead lay the steel jawed trap all set and ready.

Some pay with broken health, others with broken hearts; some surrender friends and love, some give all in life worth living for; some cast their conscience to be gnawed by the wolves of remorse, some not only pay their own share in full, but shift part of the burden to their children and their children's children, even to the third and fourth generation, for the debt must be paid to the last farthing.—Kansas City Star.

Have You a Dodge Miniature?

There are today a very large number of homes in America where the most treasured possession is a small old fashioned miniature, painted some time between the years 1828 and 1870, most likely, and which bears in tiny, unostentatious lettering the name of the artist, "[illegible] Dodge." If the miniature be that of a bona fide ancestor and not that of the bought variety its possession is better than a D. A. R. pin, for in practically every instance it is all the proof necessary that the family ancestor was somebody. For the artist who painted these pictures did the most masterly work, and his patrons represented the statesmen and leaders of their time. Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, Andrew Johnson, Aaron Burr—men famous throughout the nation—sat to the painter whose art was devoted to the tiny miniature portraits on ivory.—Exchange.

Petty Spite.

The late Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, the suffrage worker, had a frank nature, and nothing was more objectionable to her than spitefulness.

"There is too much petty spite," she said one day, "among women who pretend to be friends.

"Two women sat at tea in a Fifth avenue restaurant.

"'There goes Mr. Smith in his new car,' said one of the women. She added, with a simper, 'What a flattering flatterer he is, to be sure!'

"'Why? Did he tell you you were pretty?' said the other woman coldly.

"'No,' said the first woman. 'He told me you were.'"

Doing Others.

The famous phrase in "David Harum" which reads, "Do unto the other fellow the way he would like to do unto you—and do it fust," has had almost universal currency, and to most people its novelty was one of its attractions. But if you turn to Dickens' "Martin Chuzzlewit" you will find that young Jonas remarks in one place, "Do other men or they will do you." Not so very far apart except in time.—Hartford Courant.

At Home and Abroad.

"Solomon was the wisest man, was he not?"

"I'm not sure," replied Miss Cayenne. "Of course he managed to get a reputation with the public, but I'd like to know what some of those wives had to say about him."—Washington Star.

The Reason.

"The cynical poet says a man's wife is a little dearer than his horse. Now, that isn't true."

"Of course, it isn't true. She is a great deal dearer. A man doesn't have to buy his horse a new outfit every half year."—Baltimore American.

Pleasures Long Drawn Out.

"I understand that express trains are not very popular in Scotland. I wonder why?"

"You poor dub! Don't you know that a Scotchman wants to enjoy himself as long as possible when he does spend money?"—Exchange.

Encouragement.

The bashful youth had been presented to the vivacious debutante, and for ten minutes he sat speechless, growing redder and redder and more embarrassed. At length the girl said sweetly, "And now let us talk of something else."

Every age has its problem, by solving which humanity is helped forward.—Heinrich Heine.

Made It Warm.

"I got a cold supper when I went home tonight, and you bet I kicked about it."

"Did that do any good?"

"Well, my wife made it warm for me."

Diversity of Language.

E. B. Tylor in his "Anthropology" says: "Language is one branch of the great art of sign making or sign choosing, and its business is to hit upon some sound as a suitable sign or symbol for each thought. Whenever a sound has been first chosen there was no doubt a reason for the choice, but it did not follow that each language should choose the same sound." Thus we have the root explanation of the great puzzle of diversity of language. Originally a matter of sound, language varies with the thing by which it is suggested, and hence the babel of tongues found in our human speech.—London Chronicle.

Butchers and London Streets.

The butcher's shop is not a pleasant spectacle today. But what must have been its condition in the middle ages? The names given to some of the byways of Newgate street afford some indication. Stinking lane, St. Nicholas Shambles and blowbladder street. "There was a Butchers' bridge on the Thames side near Baynard's castle," writes H. B. Wheatley, "to which the offal was brought from Newgate street through the streets and lanes of the city, by which 'grievous corruption and filth have been generated.' The evil, in fact, was so great that a royal order was issued in 1369 for the removal of Butchers' bridge."—London Chronicle.

Mount Etna.

Mount Etna is one of the great volcanoes of the earth. In size it would cover the entire metropolitan district of New York and the surrounding counties. Its height is 11,000 feet above sea level. As to its power, one of its eruptions some centuries ago killed 80,000 people, which is probably more than Vesuvius has ever done in all its existence as a volcano, not excepting the great eruption of 79 A. D., which destroyed the cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii. As to its beauty, this is also very difficult to describe. It is teeming with life, animal and vegetable, and is snow covered one-half the year. The other half it is bare to its very summit.

Truly Remarkable.

"That's a wonderful child you have."

"Yes indeed. What impresses you as being most remarkable about him?"

"The fact that he'll show off when you want him to."—Detroit Free Press.

Fixed to no spot is happiness. 'Tis nowhere to be found or everywhere.—Pope.

Good Advice to Motorists.

The precaution enjoined by police department officials of New York city on owners of motor trucks, "Don't allow your driver to rely too much on the horn," might be accepted by motorcar owners generally to the advantage of all concerned. A widespread observance of this direction would afford excellent discipline for the drivers as well as increased safety for pedestrians and would mitigate the noise on city streets.—Christian Science Monitor.

Mother—How did you get so wet and dirty? Johnny—I was sailing my boat in a puddle and had to go down with my ship.

ECHO CONFERENCE

From Area Conference lately held in Detroit.

Friday, February 16, 1917.

A meeting known as an "Echo Conference" from the Area Conference held in Detroit was held at the M. E. Church, Friday afternoon and evening.

This meeting was a meeting of unusual interest to Methodists taking in as it did subjects touched upon and the work to be accomplished, as brought out at the Detroit Conference. Echo meetings are being held throughout the various M. E. conferences in Michigan and this one was one of several being held in the Detroit Western Conference.

Rev. Dr. Ramsdell, District Superintendent of this conference had charge of the meeting.

At the afternoon session Rev. Pollock of Grass Lake took up the subject of "Stewardship" and was followed by Rev. Schofield of Morenci, who spoke on "Sunday school work." At the close of the afternoon session, a potluck supper was served.

There were four speakers in the evening, Rev. Lyons of Clinton took up the subject of "Young People's Societies." Rev. Hicks of Dundee followed with a talk on "Missions." Rev. Kulmann of Addison took "Evangelism" as his theme. Rev. Beatty of Blissfield discussed "Social Service."

The meetings were preceeded by a song service under the direction of G. N. Baker, Miss Edna Taylor presiding at the organ. Prof. McComb of Clinton was soloist at the evening service.

A fine assembly of the clergy were present among whom were the Reverends Biddicomb of Flat Rock, Beatty of Blissfield, Schofield of Morenci, Hicks of Dundee, Johnson of Manchester, Brewer, of Tipton, Ramsdell of Ann Arbor, Lyons of Clinton, Pollock of Grass Lake, and Kulmann of Addison.

The meetings were of unusual interest to all and were well attended.

GERMANY BEING MADE SELF-SUFFICIENT

One great result of the struggle for Germany has been to make her virtually self-sufficient. She now depends on herself and her allies for all food supplies and raw materials. The average rise in the price of foodstuffs during the war is put at about 70 per cent. (This certainly compares very well with conditions in England, France, and the United States.) Unemployment in the Empire today is figured at 2.5 per cent a much smaller figure than that for June, 1914. Prussian-Hessian state railrays show only 12.7 per cent. smaller freight revenues in the first six months of 1916 as compared with the same the period in 1914. Since December, 1915, the freight revenues have been higher than in peace times. A six months' comparison between war and peace times shows an average increase of about 10 per cent, in spite of the lowering of the transportation tariff.—From "Living Conditions In Germany and Austria," by William Menkel, in the American Review of Reviews for February, 1917.

RESEARCH CIRCLE

Mrs Guy Belding very pleasantly entertained the members of the Research Circle at her home Tuesday afternoon, the meeting was what is known to the Circle as Valentine Day and a very pleasant time was spent, the following program with Mrs. Floyd Freeman as leader was given:

Piano music—Mrs. Belding
Reading, "The Comic Valentine"—Mrs Kent.
Vocal duet—Elizabeth and Christine Wilson accompanied at the piano by Miss LaPoint.

There were two contests; a guessing contest in which Mrs. R. V. Wilson won the prize, and a shooting contest with Mrs. Rose Heidenreich as winner.

At the close of the program light refreshments were served by the associate members. The next meeting of the Circle will be held at the home of Mrs T. E. Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Clause of Erie Beach, Ontario are visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. Irving Luce, Mrs. Hoyt Whelan and daughter Alice were Tecumseh visitors Thursday.

Mrs Eliza Crittendan is spending the week with her daughter Mrs. Chauncey Pentecost in Onsted.

Rev. Walter F. Heinzman of Laingsburg was here Wednesday to act as toastmaster at the Grange banquet in place of Rept. Chas. Evans who was unable to leave duties at Lansing.

"500" CLUB

The members of the "500" Club were very pleasantly entertained by Mrs. W. T. Eccles at her home corner Logan and Union street Thursday. "Five hundred" furnished the afternoon's entertainment after which refreshments were served by the hostess. Mrs. John Heeren will entertain next.

CIRCULAR OF CENTURY AGO

A Philadelphia firm of type founders has issued the following circular calling attention to the importance of the development by the United States of domestic supplies of essential metals:

The present state of the commerce of the United States, arising out of the conduct of the belligerent powers, having shown our wants, and pointed out the necessity of calling to our aid such of the natural productions of the country as our knowledge and research might enable us to discover; with a view to this important object, we particularly solicit your attention to the article of Antimony, which is essential in the manufacture of Printing Types, and which has not hitherto been discovered in this country. Bismuth would also be a great acquisition, and profitable to the owner of the mine. As it is highly probable, that articles, which abound in so many parts of Europe, are not totally wanting in this inexpensive country, we earnestly request you to make the necessary inquiries in your nighborhood, and, should you discover any thing which promises a favorable result, to transmit an account of it to us.

We are respectfully,
Binny & Ronaldson,
Letter Founders.

The only comment to be made on this statement is that the date of the circular is February 17, 1809, at which time the needs of the country in such matters was by personal circular and pamphlet; there was, for instance, no Government clearing house of information with reference to minerals such as the United States Geological Survey of the Department of the Interior.

This circular was found by one of the geologists of the Geological Survey among some of the papers of Thomas Jefferson. Both in tone and substance, this "preparedness" suggestion relating to the development of the country's natural resources is not essentially different from appeals made more than a century later.

TUBERCULOSIS EXAMINATION

Lansing, Feb. 19—About 60 per cent of the 16,000 persons so far examined in the state board of health tuberculosis survey have been found to be entirely free from the disease. From this the conclusion was drawn in some sections that the state was thus examining many persons who do not need the service and that the survey should concentrate on the active cases exclusively.

But the state board of health maintains that the examination of the 60 percent of persons free from the disease represents perhaps the best part of the anti-tuberculosis movement. Tuberculosis, it is pointed out, can best be cured when in the pre-tuberculosis stage. Practically all of the 60 per cent are persons physically run down who would in the natural course of events have fallen victims to the disease. Through the instrumentality of the state survey they are being faced about and helped back to health. And though they do not figure in the statistics of "positive cases," they do figure very decidedly, it is declared, in the figures that will in the end show a decrease in the tuberculosis death rate in Michigan.

"It would be impossible," said Dr. DeKliene, "to concentrate on positive cases alone. The problem before the state today is to find the cases of tuberculosis, and that can only be done by hunting for them. But the efforts put forth by the physicians and nurses on persons not afflicted I consider efforts well spent and making for the eventual elimination of the disease in Michigan.

BAPTIST MEN'S BANQUET

Friday evening at 7 o clock the Baptist men will have a banquet. Preparations are made to make it a great affair. It will be held in the chapel of the church. This is not a money making affair but is held in the interest of good fellowship. Tickets can be had of F. D. Avery, R. S. Moore and Dr Hartzog.

The Evangelistic Band of Michigan University will be present. Dr. A. W. Slater of Ann Arbor will be the chief speaker.

This band of ten young men and Dr. Slater will remain over Sunday and have charge of all the services.

His Name Was "Ike."

I venture to assert that no one has the nerve to say that he ever hailed the late Wayne MacVeagh as "Ikey." But Ike he was in his boyhood.

His parents christened him Isaac Wayne MacVeagh, and his first law sign in West Chester read, "I. Wayne MacVeagh."

But, like Thomas Woodrow Wilson and Stephen Grover Cleveland, he long ago amputated what annoyed him as a superfluous name—improved it, too, and made it sound far more distinguished.

Those of us who only knew the steel eyed, sharp tongued, witty, brilliant and eloquent MacVeagh, lawyer, statesman and politician, cannot possibly think of him as Ike.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Literature and Life.

The distinctive characteristic of literature is not extent, but quality of knowledge; not range, but vitality; not scope of activity, but depth of life. It is, in a word, the process by which a man takes the world into his nature and is fed, sustained and enlarged by natural, simple, deep relations and fellowship with the whole order of things of which he is part.—Hamilton W. Mabie.

Niagara Falls Erosion.

Canada is rapidly gaining possession of the greater part of Niagara falls. The American falls now carry less than a twentieth of the entire flow. For 200 years or more the center of Horseshoe falls has been receding by erosion at the rate of about five feet a year. The edge of the American falls recedes much more slowly—only a few inches a year. As the Canadian falls drop back toward Lake Erie they receive a larger and larger volume of water.—Youth's Companion.

AN AGED WOMAN

Tells How Vinol Made Her Strong

In her eighty-second year Mrs. John Wickersham, of Russellville, Pa., says: "I was in a run-down, feeble condition and had lost flesh. A neighbor asked me to try Vinol, and after taking two bottles my strength returned; I am gaining in flesh, it has built up my health and I am feeling fine for a woman of my age, so I get around and do my housework."

The reason Vinol was so successful in Mrs. Wickersham's case was because it contains the very elements needed to build her up.

TO HONOR HIS 11TH BIRTHDAY

To celebrate Bernard Stafford's 11th birthday, his uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. Channing Beebe gave a party Saturday evening in his honor.

His guests were schoolmates as follows: Freeman Reason, Lawrence Gray, Robert and Beverly Shaw, Donald VanWinkle, Raymond Taylor, John Bell, Dwight Hodges, Lucian Williamson and Morris Coller.

The company gathered at 6:30 when a three course supper of all the good things boys like was served, the dining room being profusely decorated with white and red hearts. While at the table the boys drew, by ribbons at their places, each a favor, Bernard's being a nice watch as a birthday gift from his uncle and aunt with whom he resides.

After supper the boys played all sorts of games to the music of the victrola. One which caused especial merriment was the throwing of beans into a bottle at which Lucian Williamson proved some expert and won the prize.

The boys voted the evening a jolly one and Mr. and Mrs. Beebe the best sort of entertainers.

JOHNSON-KENNEDY WEDDING

BEAUTIFULLY CELEBRATED

The Pensacola, Fla., Journal of Friday, Feb. 16, 1917, contains the following account of the marriage of another of our Tecumseh boys, in which Gerald S. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kennedy holds a most conspicuous place:

Very charming in the details of decoration and beautiful in the simplicity of service was the wedding of Miss Marion Louise Johnson and Mr. Gerald S. Kennedy, which took place last night at home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Johnson, 1809 East Gadsden street, the ceremony having been performed by th Rev. J. A. Ansley, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The rooms of the home had been charmingly decorated in Ascension lilies and ferns, palms and quantities of smilax also having been used in the scheme of decoration.

The place of ceremony was under an arch of green from which exquisite white lilies depended in baskets, and the baskets of fragrant white flowers were also used hereand there on standards about the rooms, the whole effect being most artistic.

The bride was very lovely in a gown of white French organdie over white silk worn with sweeping white veil of illusion caught to her hair with valley lilies. Her flowers were a great sheaf of lilies and graceful ferns.

Her maid-of-honor, Miss Mabel Thomas, of Chester, S. C., was charming in a gown of soft white silk, and carried an arm boquet of pink carnations.

The dainty little flower girl, Selma Lewis, a niece of the bride, was sweet and lovely in white accordeon pleated net, trimmed in lace and worn with ribbons, and carried a basket of blossoms, which she scattered in the pathway of the bride.

Mr. E. L. King, of Gull Point, was Mr. Kennedy's best man, and Mr. Herbert Matthews acted as groomsman.

The wedding ceremony was followed by a reception to a number of invited guests, and the bride and groom left for New Orleans later in the evening, the bride traveling in a smart suit of tan cloth, worn with hat of silver lace and shoes and gloves to match

Among the out-of-town guests who were here for the wedding were Miss Hazel Thomas, of Chester, S. C., Miss Annie Thomas, of Wilmington, S. C., and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Johnson, of Florence, S. C.

The groom is assistant manager of the United States weather bureau, and both he and his charming young bride are very popular with a wide circle of friends, which was attested by the many beautiful gifts which were received.

On their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy will be at home to their friends at 1104 East DeSoto street.

BURNED TO DEATH

S. P. Hosmer has just received a letter from C. Tefft Hewitt of Wilkinsgurg, Pa., telling of the fatal accident to his mother on the morning of February 3d. Before leaving for his office that morning Mr. Hewitt lighted a gas stove in his mother's room and, kissing her goodbye, charged her not to get up until her room was warm. The rest of the family did not arise until later and, going to their grandmother's room, found smoke coming from under the door. On entering the room, they found her lying on the floor. They threw water over the body and turned in the fire alarm. The remains of the unfortunate lady were carried to the next house, but were so badly burned that Mr. Hewitt never saw them.

Mrs. Hewitt was the wife of Charles Hewitt, an old Tecumseh boy, and has visited here with him.

Arthur Harding while unloading hay at the depot Monday morning fell off the load falling on his back and loosened the muscles from his hip. He is in a bad condition. Dr. Conklin was called.

And still that feed cooker is not claimed! No. 279 and No. 135 failed to find the lucky one and this week the 8th number, 884, is waiting for a claimant. It would be well for the holder of the lucky number to see Harold Tribolet at the 5 and 10c store.

Mothers know it stops croup because it cuts the thick choking mucus, clears the throat of phlegm, stops the hoarse metallic cough, eases the difficult breathing, then quiet sleep.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Tecumseh People Know How to Save It

Many Tecumseh people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slighest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Tecumseh citizen's recommendation.

Wm. Martin, Logan St., Tecumseh says: "My kidneys were out of order and I had dull backaches and lameness across my back and my kidneys acted irregularly. The kidney secretions were unatural, too., I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store, and they strengthened my back and put my kidneys in good order."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Martin had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. ad

Good Shooting.

The story below of certain Virginia mountaineers whose patriotism was only equaled by their marksmanship is one told by C. K. Bolton in the American Historical Review.

In 1775 500 recruits were needed, but many more came forward, and the commanding officer decided on a shooting match to determine their proficiency. A board one foot square, bearing a chalk outline of a nose, was nailed to a tree at a distance of 150 yards. Those who came nearest the mark with a single bullet were to be enlisted. The first forty or fifty men who shot out the nose entirely out of the board.

Rosemary.

Rosemary, the charming name of the plant that's for remembrance, is not only frequently found in folklorian legend, but has been esteemed also from the very dawn of history for its "essential oil," its "sweet water" and its fragrant dried leaves and branches. In the middle period of English history it was always a special favorite in gardens and was used for strewing upon the floors of dwellings and upon casements and also, of course, for garden embellishment.—London Spectator.

Appreciated at Last.

"You seem to be tremendously pleased with yourself," remarked one sojourner on the banks of the Styx to another.

"I have every right to be," responded the shade addressed. "I have just paid a visit to earth and had an opportunity to hear my widow describing my virtues to my successor."—Richmond Times-Dispatch

Candy and the Drink Habit.

If any one doubts that candy will cure him of the drink habit he can easily test it. The man who puts lots of molasses on his wheat cakes at breakfast will find himself gradually forgetting to step in for his customary drink on his way to his work. If the man who goes out between times for liquid refreshments will go into a candy store instead and get 5 or 10 cents' worth of candy and eat it he will be surprised at the effect, for it will not be very long until he will have a box of candy in his pocket or desk. It has often been noted that in theaters where candy is sold during the intermissions "going out to see a man" does not prevail to anything like the extent it does in other theaters where no candy selling is permitted. Not one man in a hundred knows why he forgot to "go out to see a man" after he had bought a box of candy for his companion and eaten a little of it himself for politeness' sake.—Medical World.

And They Didn't Parade.

In 1885 Dewey was at Malta in command of the Pensacola. Some of his men on shore leave got into a street brawl. An alarm was sounded, but the men succeeded in escaping to their ship. The British captain of the port was on hand next morning demanding that the guilty sailors be surrendered or punished by the American commander. Dewey expressed regret that the sailors should have been so lawless ashore, but said he could see no way in which he could assist his visitor in picking out the guilty. The reply angered the British officer, who said somewhat peremptorily:

"You certainly can parade your crew before me in order that the rioters may be identified."

Dewey pointed aloft to the stars and stripes waving at the masthead.

"The deck of this vessel is United States territory," he answered sharply, "and I'll parade my men for no foreigner that ever drew breath."

Kindergarten Training.

The increasing growth of kindergartens in this country has recently been remarked by the United States commissioner of education, who said: "Within the last six or seven years there has been more progress in the establishment of kindergartens in cities, towns and industrial villages of this country than in any previous period of equal length. This is especially true of kindergartens supported by public school funds. This progress has been largely due to the activities of the National Kindergarten association."

The kindergarten course secures to the child an extra year of education, and as the boys and girls of this country average only a little over five years in school the value of this additional training cannot be overestimated.

Worms Build a Great Dike.

The famous Mont St. Michel, off the north coast of France, is rapidly ceasing to be an island. The reason, as told to the Academie des Sciences in Paris by Messrs. Houlbert and Galaine, is that myriads of urmellids, those little sea worms which incase themselves in stony shells and are so often found upon the shells of oysters, are building a dike across the entrance to the bay, and behind this dike the sand is piling up with every tide. It is estimated that this dike is now nearly two miles wide and from fifteen to eighteen feet deep.

His Tart Retort.

It is on record that the Prince of Orange, filled with rage because he had been beaten at Fleurus, Leuze, Steinkerque and Nerwinde, said, alluding to the marshal of Luxembourg:

"Can it be that I shall never beat that hunchback?"

"How does he know that I am a hunchback?" said the French marshal. "He never saw my back; I always saw his!"

Bacon and the Baconians.

Bacon's greatness will save him from the Baconians, and his grasp of the principles of conduct and the organ roll of his noble style put him safely with the masters, but one reads him in evening dress, with the feeling that he is dining with an ambassador.—Hamilton W. Mable in Outlook.

Willing, but Cautious.

"Yes, my daughter eloped."

"I suppose you will forgive the young couple?"

"Not until they have located a place to board."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Convulsions.

Convulsions in little children are not an unusual occurrence. They are caused by many different ailments, such as difficult teething, indigestion, constipation, fever and some of the common infectious diseases to which little folks are subject. Sometimes the teeth are gritted hard and the muscles twitch and the head is thrown back or the eyes roll up. The pulse is very rapid and irregular, the breathing is difficult, and the skin is cold and often wet with perspiration. When this occurs a doctor should be sent for at once, as this condition is too dangerous to rely wholly on home remedies, but while waiting for the physician to arrive the child can almost always be greatly benefited by being given a hot mustard bath made by dissolving a tablespoonful of mustard in four gallons of water. But be very sure that the water is not hot enough to burn.

HOW TO START UP YOUR PLACE EARLY IN SPRING.—It would be well to look from time to time to the bulb beds or rows, the strawberry bed and other growths which were covered with straw early in the winter, to be sure the mulch has not blown away. Repeated freezing and thawing of a strawberry bed will almost certainly throw the plants out of the ground unless the bed has been carefully mulched, while a few warm, thawing days may cause tulips and other bulbs to send up shoots if not mulched.

Look out for rabbits in young orchards. Head them off by means of preventive measures if they have not already attacked the trees. If they have cover the wounds they have made in the bark with grafting wax, with some kind of waterproof paint or even with mud thickly applied. As has been stated before now, a thick coat of whitewash to which has been added enough crude carbolic acid to give the mixture a strong odor will keep rabbits away and will also prevent injury by field mice. The acid in the mixture, carried down the trunks of the trees by rain and impregnating the soil around the roots, will also help materially to keep borers and other larval pests away from the trees.

One suburbanite, keeping chickens on rather a large scale, recently tried the experiment of furnishing the pullets in one colony house with warm water three times a day, while the same number of pullets of the same age and breed in another colony house were given only cold water. Each house contained fifty pullets. Within ten days after beginning the experiment the pullets receiving the warm water were laying at the rate of more than 50 per cent, the daily average number of eggs from them being twenty-nine, while the fifty pullets in the other house, getting only cold water, have never laid more than fourteen eggs in any one day.

EXPOSED WATER PIPES.

How to Keep Them From Freezing In Cold Weather.

Exposed water pipes are apt to freeze in winter, causing much annoyance, which may be prevented by covering them with the following mixture, says a contributor to Popular Science Monthly: To a solution of thin boiled starch add sawdust until the mixture forms a thick paste. A fine sieve may be used to clear this sawdust from lumps.

Heavy cord is first wrapped around the pipe, spacing the turns about one half inch. A one-quarter inch layer of the mixture is smeared on and allowed to dry; then a second layer is put on and smoothed up. The string acts as an anchor to make the coating adhere to the pipe closely. Whitewash or paint may be used to give a finish for inside pipes, but for outside work cover the coating with hot tar. If it is desired to have a very neat covering wrap the sawdust coating with cloth or canvas, applying it in narrow strips like a bandage and painting the outside surface. An even coating of the sawdust is necessary when covering with cloth.

NEW DEATH TESTS.

How to Tell When Life Has Actually Ceased.

An Italian scientist describes the following three new methods of determining the cessation of life:

The first is the ether test. A drop of ether is instilled into the conjunctival sac of one eye. If this is followed by a reddening of the conjunctiva it affords proof that the circulation is intact and that life is still present. The other eye is used as a control.

The second test consists in the subcutaneous injection of fluorescin, which, if the individual is still living, is soon followed by a yellowish coloring of the skin, and mucous membrane of the mouth and particularly of the frenum of the tongue show this coloration most distinctly. A negative result is obtained in cases of marked slowing or enfeeblement of the circulation.

The third test consists in direct exploration of the heart by means of a stylet. This is introduced through a small incision in one of the intercostal spaces. Any movement in the heart is communicated to the stylet.

How to Walk and Grow Thin is the Main Question.

Here is a simple method to reduce weight which has been used with great success:

Rise early and take a half hour walk in the air, walking a steady but alert gait. On returning home drink a cupful of hot water with plenty of salt. After a light breakfast, leaving the table not quite satisfied, take a hand working vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper with a long handle and keep up a steady, long reaching movement. This reduces the tops of the arms and removes the fat about the neck. Then take a duster and dust the legs of chairs and stretch to the tops of doors to get a steady bending and stretching movement. The treatment takes about two hours a morning, and by abstemious eating and occasional cupfuls of hot water with salt during the day, also one on retiring, the desired result is obtained and the health improved.

Clinton Rhodes of Battle Creek has been charged on so many occasions with threatening to kill Mrs. Mabel Howard, that local officers have laughingly suggested, "If you want to kill somebody, why don't you join the army." Rhodes took the tip, enlisting in the United States army and going to Columbus, O., barracks, rather than go to the county jail for thirty days.

William F. Gurn, of Muskegon, sought by the officers of Port Washington, Wis., on a charge of abandonment and whom the Wisconsin district attorney is seeking to extradite from Michigan, won the first battle when Circuit Judge James E. Sullivan on motion of Attorney W. J. Turner, ordered him discharged from the custody of Sheriff Carl A. Stauffer, of Muskegon county.

A Kind Husband.

Mrs. Flatbush—Oh, dear!

Mr. Flatbush—What's wrong now?

"Oh, I read today that if the earth were to revolve seventeen times faster than it does, bodies at the equator would lose their weight and remain stationary in the air without support."

"Don't worry, dear. If we ever get there I'll support you just the same."—Yonkers Statesman.

George Sand.

It was from Leonard Jules Sandeau, the celebrated French novelist and dramatist, born at Aubusson a century ago, that another and far greater writer derived her nom de plume. When a young student in Paris Sandeau made the acquaintance of Mme. Dudevant, and during a short lived friendship they collaborated in a novel, "Rose et Blanche," which was published in 1831.

Then they parted, but Mme. Dudevant, while relinquishing Sandeau's friendship, took to herself a portion of his name and elected to be known thenceforth as George Sand.—Pall Mall Gazette.

High School Notes

"A day is a domestic animal composed of four legs."
—English student.

The following episode accounts for the beaming expression on Nea Rentschler's face after he left solid geometry class:

Miss Miller: "Mr. Rentschler, what is a hexagonal prism?"

Mr. Rentschler: "I don't know" Evidently he had not studied his exercises.

Miss Miller: "You are giving yourself away, Mr. Rentschler."

Mr. Rentschler: "To whom?"

Miss Miller: "To me."

Evidently Mr. Murphy is overly charmed by the attraction in the back seat the third period as he declines to obey Miss Mary Miller's rigid commands to sit in the seat assigned him.

Miss Armstrong: "What case did you put your Romans in?"

Voice from back of room: "The suitcase."

Miss M. Miller: "Mr. Fisher, listen to the way I pronounce it. You'll soon have 'oligarchies' changed into 'olimargarine.' "

The teachers of T. H. S. are fond of tests for quite a few have been sprung on the "martyred pupils" in the past week.

Cameras are quite popular this season. Several of the students (and teachers) have been taking snaps.

Strange to say Mr. Cuthbert has a hard time saying "Wasserlilie." He can't resist putting on a final "n."

Faye tells us in English that the ""Task" is the finishing of the hufa

Herr Lowry (translating German) "He had a look of passionate sorrow."

Miss Miller: "I thought you said 'heart failure.' "

Herr Lowry: "I did, but your heart's where you have that 'passionate sorrow,' isn't it?"

"How does he know?" Miss Miller asks.

"Cuffy" needs must have a cat to get the "purr" in the formula for potassium permanganate.

The boys' and girls' glee club are practicing nearly every night now for the operetta.

In English Tuesday Mr. Hayden asked to have the word "glass" defined, but when Mr. Meads said it was transparent sand, Perry differed. "It was sand once but when it became glass it is no longer sand."

Miss Hardenburgh, quickly: "Well a thing is what it is made of, isn't it?"

Perry: "No! My shoes aren't cows—if they do look like them."

"Cuffy" and "Pink" told the chemistry class Tuesday how to make matches.

If a stranger had visited English IV Thursday they would have thought they were attending a program of the kindergarten room, for the Seniors were giving quotations from Stevenson and Field's Children's Poems. Evidently Harold has a revised version of "A Child's Garden of Verses."

Mr. Reed in commercial geography: "Harold, what is corn used for?"

Harold, smacking his lips: "For johnny cake. sir."

In English X they have discovered the meaning of "dear." It is an exclamatory expression!x?

In History X Mr. Moore tells that the robbers came as something they weren't.

"Speaking of inquisitiveness," said Mr. M., "There was a lady some place who stopped a funeral to ask who the corpse was."

"How old was she?" asked the teacher.

The English X class are beginning the study of vocations and why one should choose a vocation early in life. It is mighty interesting and a few rather heated discussions have been held.

The News Association spy informs us that the Raisin River fleet is Birdsall in convoy with a scuttle of coal." Here's hoping that no one drops a sponge in the river.

French Steamer Sinks U-Boat.

NEW YORK — A forty-minute battle between a German U-boat and the French Line steamship Guyane off the coast of France on Jan. 27 resulted in the submarine being sunk, according to officers of the freighter, which arrived here from Bordeaux.

CANAL PERILED, SAYS PRESIDENT

German Aids Take Advantage of Colombian Hostility.

ASKS THAT PACT BE RATIFIED

Letter to Senator Stone Makes Clear That Kaiser's Agents Are Stirring Up Trouble in South American Republic—Senate Previously Refused to Accept $15,000,000 Treaty.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Wilson has written a strong letter to Senator Stone, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, asking him to renew his efforts to have the pending treaty with Colombia ratified because of complications that may arise on the Panama canal if the relations between Germany and this government result in war. The President makes it clear that German agents in Colombia are already active with a view to making trouble for this government along the canal.

Hostility Has Been Aroused.

The failure of the senate, through the opposition of Republican senators, to ratify the treaty whereby Colombia was to receive $15,000,000 in payment for the loss of Panama and the canal rights, has, it is said, aroused no little hostility to this country among influential persons in Colombia, of which the German agents have not been slow to take advantage.

Hope of Action Was Abandoned.

Because of the strength of the opposition all hope of action on the treaty had been abandoned for this session. It remains to be seen whether the Republican senators will deem the reasons advanced by the President now as sufficient reason to abandon their opposition to the treaty, which, in its original form, severely criticized the Roosevelt administration for treatment of Colombia when Panama seceded.

Rigid Censorship Is On.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—At the grim, gray building that houses the navy department in Washington, the most rigid censorship ever established shrouded in mystery every maneuvre of the nation's big sea fighting force. The censorship was radically tightened, as the naval bureau of operations showed signs of extraordinary activity and extra guards were stationed in the corridors outside the bureau office keeping every passer-by moving. The orders were so strict that when Lieutenant Commander Byron McCandless, personal aide to Secretary of the Navy Daniels loitered in the corridor for a chat with a fellow officer, he was gently but firmly "moved on."

Navy Within Instant Call.

Meanwhile the navy department declared that the fleet was proceeding with its "winter battle practice," and was within "instant call of the Arlington wireless station." It was stated emphactically, however, that the fleet had taken no war measures.

Three contracts for the delivery of an aggregate of $7,100,000 worth of fourteen-inch shells were let by the department to American manufacturers.

The war department has asked the labor department to secure at once 200 additional workmen for preparedness work. The department wants laborers, machinists and foremen.

100,000 SPIES IN AMERICA

Senator Overman Makes Sensational Charge in Debate.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Opposing amendments by Senator Cummins to temper some of the stringent provisions of the espionage bill pending in the senate, Senator Overman of North Carolina declared he had been told there were 100,000 spies in the United States and that it was absolutely essential that drastic laws be enacted to protect naval stations, submarine bases and other national defenses.

Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, argued for stringent laws and declared that the government of the United States was on trial for efficiency to perpetuate itself.

Senator Cummins' first amendment to modify the first section of the bill was rejected.

CUBAN REBELS TAKE TOWNS

Liberal Party Leader Receives News of Victories on Island.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Dr. Orestes Ferrara, speaker of the Cuban house of representatives, who is representing in this country the liberal party, announced here that he had received cablegrams reporting successes for the military forces of his party in its revolt against the Cuban government.

Dr. Farrara said he had received, dated Sunday at Santiago de Cuba, a message from Rafael Fernandez, chief military commandant of that province, saying that he had taken Baire and Viguani and "tomorrow he will occupy Plaza Bayamo and from there two invading columns will take Manzanillo and Chaparra."

Vocation Bill Is Passed.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Providing a dollar-for-dollar co-operation with the states and authorizing expenditures of $28,000,000 on a rising scale through the next eight years, the senate passed the vocational education bill. The bill now goes to the President.

Lawrence Price of Lansing, president of the Lansing Automobile Body company and Democratic candidate for the United States senate last November, died suddenly at Mount Clemens. He had gone there for treatment for neurosis. He was accompanied by Mrs. Price. Mr. Price was one of Lansing's foremost citizens. He was a veteran of the civil war.

All guardsmen, officers and men absent from their units, will report to the nearest post for muster out of the service, according to an order from the southern department. The only construction to be placed on such action, in minds of militiamen home, is that the homeward movement of troops and their placement on the reserve list is to be pushed as rapidly as possible.

GEN. FUNSTON DIES SUDDENLY

Commander at Border Stricken in Hotel Lobby.

ACUTE INDIGESTION IS CAUSE

Victim of Attack at Time Was Playing With Child in Lobby of Hostlery. Death Followed Almost Immediately His Collapse—Medical Aid Proves of No Avail.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS — Major General Frederick Funston dropped dead in the St. Anthony hotel at 9:30 o'clock p. m.

General Funston, was playing in the hotel lobby with a small child when suddenly he toppled over unconscious. He was hurried to a room and physicians worked vigorously to revive him. Their efforts failed.

The doctors said General Funston had died of acute indigestion. General Funston had eaten dinner at the hotel.

Was Soldier in Cuban Army.

Major General Funston was commander of the southern department, U. S. A.

Funston's first experience on the firing line came in Cuba, where he commanded General Gomez's artillery with remarkable results.

After engaging in twenty-two battles and being wounded three times he resigned his command because fifty guerrillas who had aided the Spaniards were executed against his wishes.

Captured by Spaniards.

Captured by Spanirads on his way to Havana, he escaped death by swallowing a letter to the President of Cuba which would have proved his identity.

While a colonel of the famous Twentieth Kansas Volunteer infantry in the Philippine war Funston performed feats of bravery that brought him the title of brigadier general. His capture of Aguinaldo and his fording of the Rio Grande river at Columpit under fire featured his work.

YANKEE TARS STILL HELD BY GERMANY

President Sends Demand Little Short of Ultimatum.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Preemptory demand litite short of an ultimatum for release of the seventy-two American Yarrowdale prisoners, now held in Germany, has been sent to the imperial government, the state department announces.

The department announced the demand had been sent Saturday.

Secretary Lansing, in making announcement that the demand was dispatched secretly Saturday, added that late Sunday evening the department received word from Berlin, presumably through the Spanish ambassador, that the prisoners "would be released shortly."

It is not believed this communication of Sunday evening is a reply to this government's demand sent Saturday, since so quick an exchange would have been practically impossible.

Officials were more inclined to believe the Sunday message received here was a reply to the inquiry made several days ago as to the status of the American prisoners.

Where Books Were Pawned.

In primitive days books had a recognized and settled value. We know how they were exchanged for a horse or half a dozen sheep, but few people know the extent to which books were pawned in the middle ages. Oxford at one time had twenty giant chests full of these valuable pledges, and the process when stock was taken had to be conducted with care. Good Shooting.

The story below of certain Virginia mountaineers whose patriotism was only equaled by their marksmanship is one told by C. K. Bolton in the American Historical Review.

In 1775 500 recruits were needed, but many more came forward, and the commanding officer decided on a shooting match to determine their proficiency. A board one foot square, bearing a chalk outline of a nose, was nailed to a tree at a distance of 150 yards. Those who came nearest the mark with a single bullet were to be enlisted. The first forty or fifty men who shot out the nose entirely out of the board.

LAST NUMBER OF THE $ ENTERTAINMENT COURSE

The last number of the Dollar Entertainment Course put on by the Presbyterian Men's class was given by the Georgia Jubilee Quartette Tuesday evening. In his introduction Rev Rex said the class was $50 ahead on the course and would put that amount into another Dollar course next winter.

The church was filled and all enjoyed the concert hugely. It sure does take real negroes to sing darkey songs and the audience showed their appreciation well. Of course the old favorites, "Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Black Joe" were not omitted and many old camp meeting and plantation songs were enthusiastically encored.

The leader J. Berni Barbour is a composer as well as thorough master of the piano and his "The Fallen Hero" is becoming played over the country. His performance of it made it one of the most beautiful military marches heard in many a day

The bass singer of the company is certainly fine. His voice has a wonderful range. The company gave several instrumental pieces on banjo, guitar and mandolin which were excellent. They will be welcomed gladly on next year's course if possible

The Test of Time.

When an institution is distinguished by more than sixty years of public service there is little question as to its strength. An unsound bank will not go down the decades carrying the honest approval of good and careful people.

The fact that the patrons of the Lilley State Bank are constantly increasing, is sure proof that its stability has never been overestimated.

This bank was established in 1855. During the more than sixty years of its existence it has safely housed the wealth of many people.

If you have not already placed the whole or part of your savings in this strong bank, delay no longer. Take the next money you have to this bank with the chime clock, and secure either a savings book or a certificate of deposit drawing 3 per cent interest.

MINSTREL SHOW

Big House Attended the Home Talent Show Last Night

GIVEN FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE EAGLE BAND

Bradley's opera house was literally packed to the doors last night at the home talent minstrel show given under the auspices of the Eagles' band. Ben Pulver was interlocutor with Dr. Hammel, Geo. Rathbun, Wade Jones, Seymour Babcock, Glenn Tansley, Don Smith, Chas Hanna and Ed Rogers end men. These made the jolliest bunch imaginable and their jokes on the townspeople were not the mean dirty kind that make the victim wish he was any place but present and also wish the perpetrator might be nearer so he could give him a royal punch, but "digs" at the townsfolks which had to be taken good naturedly.

But, oh, those stockings on Wade Jones and George Rathbun! They were things to dream about and the expressions around Glenn's mouth certainly were fetching in his solo, "I'm Going over the Hills to Virginia." Geo. Rathbun is sure some juggler and Ben Pulver presided very gracefully.

The most beautiful feature of the whole was at the close of the first part when the curtain rose on the tableau of Uncle Sam (Perry Hayden) swinging Old Glory over the heads of the performers, supported by two soldiers (Wyman Service and Harold Skinner). The orchestra struck up "The Star Spangled Banner" and immediately that large audience were on their feet. A certain Adrian pastor complained recently of the lack of patriotism of his audience when the national song was sung. His heart would have rejoiced could he have heard the grand old song coming from this audience.

The music was excellent. As we have repeated, Tecumseh has the best singers and the most of them of any town in Michigan of much larger size. Last night some of the best did the solo work and several sang whom we had not heard before and so were agreeably surprised. The way Geo. Hines struck that "deep" note in his solo, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," was great. A chorus of eighteen strong voices assisted.

In the Olio the Temple Quartette sang as usual—mighty well. George Sanford of Clinton gave several selections on the mouth organ. It don't seem to make much difference to him whether the instrument is at his mouth or nose, whether crosswise or up and down, and he performs amazingly on two at once.

Now about that Darktown Poker Club! Wonder where they learned that game! That one poor "nig" was a poor loser anyway, but Dr. Hammel finished him and then—took his place. Wade Jones was present with a most terrible looking "raazor" and was boss of ceremonies, and then to have Marshal Mominee break it up!

Ed Berry and Wiley McCann put on a dancing stunt which brought down the house.

Chas. Skinner and Dr. Hammel appeared in a musical number which showed the doctor an artist on the banjo, and also on the trombone—with the professor's help. "Doc's" new bull dog was also a feature of the show.

The next number was the "Style Show" at which eleven young ladies exhibited the new spring suits, coats, hats and party dresses from the Webster Anderson Co.'s and Miss Foster's stores. The party dress was made in the dressmaking department conducted by Mrs. Sommers and Miss Reidel.

The last number was the Rube Band composed of Chas. Skinner, Chas. Hanna, Wiley McCann, Ed Rogers and Geo. Rathbun and it was sure a great climax.

The orchestra which is a big factor in such a show was excellent, being in charge of J. Duaine Service. There was our brother Ahrens tooting away on the clarinet and Frank Schuler also of Clinton played the alto, assisting the Tecumseh musicians.

Chas. Skinner was musical director of the show and Lester Coller manager of the whole bunch and they must have put in some hard work to make things move along so smoothly and successfully.

A meeting of the creditors in the matter of Heesen & Heesen and E. J. Peters & Co. of Tecumseh was held in Adrian Wednesday. They were represented by their attorneys and G. A. Rathbun of Tecumseh was chosen trustee for both firms. Public sales will be held at the former locations of the two firms during the week of March 5th.

WILL HAVE A NEW RECTOR

Rev. Jas. G. Widdifield has Accepted the Call to Tecumseh and Clinton Episcopal Churches

After having been without a rector since October 1st, St. Peter's church, Tecumseh, and St John's church, Clinton are again, in the near future, to have regular services every Sunday.

Rev. James G. Widdiefield, at present rector of St. John's church, Midland has accepted the unanimous call of the vestries of the Tecumseh and Clinton churches to become their rector and will assume his duties here April 9

Mr Widdifield is a young man bright active and wide awake, and he made a most favorable impression on the congregations of the two churches when he was here a few Sundays ago. He is married and has two children, a boy and a girl. The family expect to occupy St Peter's rectory, Tecumseh, and they will locate here as soon after Easter Sunday as they can get their household goods here

Mr. Widdifield has been rector of the Widland church for four years and is very highly esteemed, not only by his own parishioners, but by the people of that city. During his rectorate there he has been instrumental in adding to the parish equipment a fine hall, which is named in his honor 'Widdifield hall'

The vestry of St Peter's church bespeak for Mr. Widdifield and his family a short welcome to Tecumseh, coupled with the hope that his ministration may be most successful and pleasant in all its relations to the parish and town.

ELECTRIC CURRENT

Turned on at Deerfield Tuesday night.

After many months of planning, delay and patient waiting, Deerfield was rewarded Tuesday night by having her town brilliantly lighted by electricity. It was a dissappointment to the people of Deerfield, that the celebration of this event could not have been on last Saturday, for if they could have celebrated then it would have been a double event for Deerfield was filled with people to attend their big "Community Sale" and "Dollar Day."

The Tecumseh Electric Co, strained every nerve to get the current through to them for Saturday, but owing to delays in shipments of material it was impossible to get the line completed until Tuesday.

Although Deerfield was dissappointed in not being able to celebrate this event still she is rejoicing that her city is again lighted and alive at night.

This will not only mean that Deerfield will have electric service, for the line will serve the farmers along the route also the town of Holloway and later it will be attached to the Petersburg line, and Tecumseh current will be used in that town as we understand the Petersburg plant will be discontinued.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Tecumseh People Know How to Save It

Many Tecumseh people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slighest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Tecumseh citizen's recommendation.

Wm. Martin, Logan St., Tecumseh says: "My kidneys were out of order and I had dull backaches and lameness across my back and my kidneys acted irregularly. The kidney secretions were unnatural, too. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store, and they strengthened my back and put my kidneys in good order."

$3,500,000,000 FOR WAR LOAN TO BRITAIN

Subscriptions Exceed Expectations of Exchequer Head.

LONDON, ENG.—The new money subscribed to the New British war loan is at least £700,000,000, exclusive of contributions from the banks, Andrew Bonar Law, chancellor of the exchequer, stated in the house of commons.

Mr. Law said the number of applications received for the war loan on the last day was so large that 200,000 or 300,000 were not dealt with, and the result would not be known until next week.

"I am glad, however," the chancellor said, "to be able to say the loan has succeeded to a greater extent than I expected, but not greater than I hoped. I hope, however, that what I have just said will not encourage exaggerated estimates, which might create the danger that what I consider amazing financial efforts of this country would be minimized when the actual figures were known."

ZEPPELIN CAMPAIGNS END

Attacks on London from Sky Are Found Unprofitable.

GENEVA — The Zeppelin campaign against London has been found to be unprofitable. The cessation of German air attacks on the British metropolis after the latest appearances of the big dirigibles over the city last fall has been due not to fortuitous circumstances, but to the deliberate determination of the German leaders to abandon these attacks, as has long been done in the case of Paris.

The correspondent, who was then in Berlin, was informed from a trustworthy source a few days after the final London raid of the decision to send no more Zeppelins and sister ships of the Schuttelans type against London.

Tribal Indians may have the right to vote in this state if the house agrees to the senate amendments to the absent voters' law. Members of the senate who heretofore have steadily opposed any constitutional amendment extending the suffrage to women supported the plan to place the ballot in the hands of the red skins.

Corns Peel Right Off With "Gets-It"

2 Drops, and the Corn is a "Goner!"

When you've got to walk on the sides of your shoe to get away from those awful corn-pains, there's only one common-sense thing to do.

Use "Gets-It" Your Corns Won't Swell in Water. Besides, They'll Shrivel, Loosen and Peel Off!

Put 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It" on the corn right away. Pain and inflammation will disappear, the corn will begin to shrivel from that instant—then it loosens and falls right off.

There's no other corn-remover in the world that acts like "Gets-It." No new discovery has been made in corn-removers since "Gets-It" was born. Don't forget that fact. "Gets-It" does away forever with the use of salves that irritate, bandages that make a bundle of your toe, plasters that half do the work, knives and scissors that draw blood. Use "Gets-It"—no more digging or cutting.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Yegg Blast Makes 100 Homeless.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO—More than 100 persons were made homeless and an entire business block was destroyed at Lowellville, near here, when a safeblower's charge set fire to a jewelry store. Two churches were burned down in the blaze, which caused a total loss of nearly $150,000.

Battle Creek shivered in the coldest weather in five years Monday. The official temperature was eighteen below zero. It has only been surpassed once in eighteen years. Coupled with the severe cold, the city has a coal shortage that is serious. Many of the dealers have been unable to get coal for a week.

SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE LOOMS

Budget System Becomes Subject of Conference.

LANSING, Feb. 26.

Unless negotiations under way for a compromise on a budget, or rather a state fiscal system bill, produce a measure that is satisfactory, a special session of the legislature looms up as almost a certainty.

Governor Sleeper, George Lord, of Detroit, executive officer of the state tax association, and leading tax and financial expert, and Senators Roberts and DeLand, authors of a budget commission bill now in the senate, held a conference at which Mr. Lord outlined a bill that would create a budget commission at once, with the strictly budget system of preparing appropriations effective for 1919, and would also provide for a thorough investigation of the budget and of broader fiscal systems of other states and of big corporations.

As a result of the conference, Mr. Lord will embody his ideas in a proposed bill and submit it to Governor Sleeper and Messrs. Roberts and DeLand. It will provide a budget commission of 3 members—a bridge commissioner and the governor and the auditor general.

The Great Secret.

The regulation of our time is more important than the effort to get money. When we know how to regulate our time enough money will always come. Earning a living is only a matter of learning how to spend one's time. And singular as this may seem, it is not the time spent in earning a living that counts so much as the time spent when we are not earning it. It is what you do when you don't have to do anything that tells in the long run.

When, therefore, you are not busy trying to make both ends meet spend your time in associating with millionaires and people who have nothing to do but spend enormous incomes. You'll be a millionaire yourself before you know it. If you want to catch a disease always expose yourself to it.—Life.

BERLIN ADMITS RAID ON DUTCH A MISTAKE

One of Kind That Don't Go With U. S. Any More.

The Hague, Feb. 26.—The statement issued by the German legation here to the effect that the torpedoing of the seven Dutch merchantmen was due "to an extremely regrettable coincidence of circumstances which is unfortunate, but was beyond our control," contains also an explanation made, it says, "to prevent erroneous impressions."

It states that in view of the situation of Dutch vessels in English ports, the sailing time for these ships was first fixed for Feb. 5, then for Feb. 8 and then for midnight of Feb. 10. Finally, "for reasons for which England was to blame," the sailing date was postponed to Feb. 22 or March 17.

The only date of sailing for which absolute safety from submarines could be guaranteed was March 17, the statement says, as by that time all German submarines would have possessed instructions in regard to these vessels.

CITY SENDS TRUCKS TO FARMS FOR FOOD

Baltimore Starts Plan to Deal Direct with People.

Baltimore, Feb. 26.—Twenty-four five-ton trucks of the city departments were sent out into the counties surrounding Baltimore to gather in farm products in an attempt by the city to help smash the corners in foodstuffs, and if the plan is successful, trucks will be sent to the eastern shore.

This was decided on at a meeting of the board of estimates at Mayor Preston's home. Cash is to be paid to the farmers out of the city's contingent fund.

Potatoes, eggs, cabbage, spinach and onions are to be the chief things sought.

KANSAS TURNS BACK BOOZE

Twenty-five carloads meet Bone Dry Regulation and Halt.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 26.—Twenty-five carloads of liquors of all kinds, westbound and east-bound, were turned back at the Kansas state boundary lines when the Kansas bone dry law went into effect, it was estimated.

Although the new law did not actually go into effect until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the railroads decided to take no chances.

Pay Up Now.

If you have $5 or more or less for which you have no pressing need go and pay a debt with it. That is the best use you can make of money, unless you are naked or starving. Now is the time to obey the Bible injunction, "Owe no man anything." That is in the Bible, but from the way some debtors spend money they don't seem to know it or care for it. If they have a dollar extra it goes for a pleasure or a convenience. The duty to pay some one they owe never occurs to them. Nor does it occur to them that every unsettled debt is a drag on a community. Everybody has to pay interest on it.

People have to pay more for their sugar and coffee because other people owe the grocer and won't pay. It is one of the items in the high cost of living. And then there is a wholesome public policy in scattering the money around. It will help find work for some poor man and help some other debtor pay his debt. So pay up now.—Ohio State Journal.

What Kept Her Young.

I know a little lady, slim, bent, but unlined by the years, who sits absorbedly through all of the fashion openings of the great shops and watches breathlessly as the models in their marvelous gowns file past her chair. She particularly loves the tulle and bespangled evening frocks that the young girls wear, and she tells us glowingly of the "wonderful color, my dear, and the way it was made!" She couldn't possibly wear the gowns that she admires so. She couldn't afford them if they were suitable, but she loves them just the same.

"It's time," I once heard a neighbor woman say rather sniffingly, "that she got over such vanity. She's old enough to stop thinking about clothes."

The neighbor didn't stop to reason out that it was the love of clothes that kept a spark of youth in the heart of the little old lady—a divine spark of youth that kept her from being colorless and tired and wan.—Christian Herald.

What Thrift Means.

Thrift is positively essential to success, and every American wants to be successful. A man should put his own name on his list of creditors. He should cut down his expenditures 10 per cent and pay that amount to himself. Any business should pay 10 per cent, and a man should consider himself a business proposition which should pay dividends. When he begins to see this he will become thrifty. It has been estimated that if a man who begins to work at the age of twenty on a salary of $50 a month and receives an increase of $5 each year for forty years will save 10 per cent of his salary and invest it wisely or put it in a savings bank at compound interest, at the end of that time he will be financially independent and can retire with a comfortable income.

WILSON WILL GET FULL AUTHORITY

Congress Will Give Power to Guard U. S. Rights.

POLITICS ARE SET IN TURMOIL

Lower House Will Act Promptly on Demands of Chief Magistrate—Senate Is Expected to Protest and Then Yield—Germany Shies at Sinking U. S. Ships.

Washington, Feb. 26.—There will be no serious trouble between President Wilson and congress respecting the authority the former desires in order to protect American life and property during the coming months. This statement is predicted upon results which are flowing from various important conferences.

The President quietly has seen some of the leaders, who have held meetings and the temper of the rank and file has been sounded. Before the President goes to congress he will know precisely the extent of the authority which will be granted to him. He will base his recommendation upon the knowledge he has gleaned.

Makes Political Whirlpool.

The house of representatives will lose no time in following his views. There will be grumbling in the senate on the part of a few pacifists who want congress to be called in extra session in order to act as a curb upon the chief executive. There will be grumbling also on the part of the senators who believe that with congress here the President will be forced to act more vigorously. In the end the senate will do practically what the house has done, and the resultant legislation will be adequate for the purposes of the administration.

A whirlpool will be created in political Washington by the conflicting currents which have been set in motion. These currents are driving upon the White House. They have not changed the policy of the President since he appeared before the two houses three weeks ago and announced his rupture of relations with Germany. He said then that before he would take stronger measures he would await an "overt act" by Germany.

Berlin Acts to Avert War.

The Berlin government apparently has given secret instructions to its submarines not to attack American ships. By this course it has hoped to avoid war.

But American citizens have been drowned or killed and the lives of others have been put in jeopardy by the submarine operations. These various cases are having an important influence upon the presidential determination. Moreover, the President has been informed of the facts relating to the German intimidation blockade. He knows the way this blockade is operating, how it is preventing the export of American products and thereby reacting upon the life of the country and how the ports are being clogged by cars which are needed for transportation purposes.

The President also is waiting to receive news of the decision of Austria-Hungary. If that government announces its purpose to support the German submarine policy, the President will issue passports to the members of the Austro-Hungarian embassy and recall Ambassador Penfield. Upon the receipt of information from Vienna he will be in position to advise congress of the action forced upon him.

Seven Freighters Sail.

New York, Feb. 26.—Seven freight steamships sailed from this port for the submarine danger zone carrying 30,000 tons of cargo valued at $15,000,000. Two of the steamers are of neutral register, the others belligerent. They are carrying munitions of war with one exception.

One of the first to sail was the Belgian steamer Hainut bound for Rotterdam carrying supplies for the Belgian Relief commission. The two neutral vessels are the Franfos and Storaker, both Norwegian and bound to Liverpool.

The French steamer Honrurus, bound for Bordeaux, and the Japanese steamer Toyama Maru bound for London are carrying high explosive, which they took aboard in Gravesend Bay.

The British steamer Lancastrian bound for London actually sailed from this port Saturday, but in the outer bay was in collision with another craft. As a result she received a hole in her bows which necessitated putting back for temporary repairs. These were executed within four hours and she then proceeded. The Spanish steamer C. Lopez y Lopez sailed for Cadiz.

RED TAPE HOLDS AMERICANS

Spanish Ambassador Explains Delay in Getting Out of Germany.

Berlin, Feb. 26.—"Americans desiring to leave Germany are being called upon to meet military and police pass regulations in the same degree as other neutrals," the Spanish ambassador, who has charge of American interests in Germany, informs the press.

Delays in obtaining official permission are to be accounted for solely in the formalities prescribed. War time conditions have made these more intricate and, in addition, Germany in the last few weeks has undertaken to minimize travel across the frontier.

Canvas Water Bags For Foresters.

A canvas water bag that can be carried conveniently on a pack horse is used by members of the United States forest service when it is necessary to transport water to places remote from a regular supply for drinking and cooking purposes. It can also be used to quench incipient fires by means of a small hand pump carried along with it. The container is made of heavy cotton fabric without seams or patches, rendered water tight by treatment with a mixture of paraffin and turpentine. Each bag has a capacity of ten and three-quarters gallons of water and weighs when filled about ninety-eight pounds. Thus a pack load of two bags weighs nearly 200 pounds, exclusive of packsaddle and blanket.—Popular Mechanics.

FILIBUSTER PERILS BONE DRY MEASURE

Congressman Randall Sees Liquor Traffic Outlawed.

Wahsington, Feb. 26.—Fear the filibuster in the senate may block passage of the postoffice appropriation amendment to prohibit shipment of liquor into dry states led to conferences among prohibition advocates in congress.

Congressman Randall of California, the Prohibition member, announced it was believed the bill was safe and that it would become a law before congress adjourns. Mr. Randall said: "The business has been made an outlaw in the United States mails. No liquor, not even in bottles or hip pockets, can now be taken into dry states. The nation's capital will be a dry city and and after November 1, 1917, Alaska has been made bone dry. Porto Rico is to be bone dry.

"That the passage of the liquor anti-advertising law, coupled with the Reed amendment preventing all shipments of liquor into dry states, has had a disastrous effect on the liquor interests of the country is proved by the fact that literally thousands of telegrams are reaching congress begging for an extension in the effective date of the law."

LANE FOR BELGIAN RELIEF

Sixteen Supply Ships to Sail as Way Is Cleared.

New York, Feb. 26.—Sixteen steamships, their cargoes valued at several millions of dollars, will sail from United States ports within the next few days, carrying relief supplies to Belgium.

The Belgium relief commission announced that an arrangement with Great Britain and Germany has resulted in establishing an open lane through the submarine zone through which the relief commission's ships may travel in safety from American ports to Rotterdam.

EDWIN GOULD JR. KILLED HUNTING

Youth, $30,000,000 Heir, Victim of Own Gun.

ACCIDENT OCCURS IN GEORGIA

He Was Holding Weapon by Muzzle Trying to Poke Raccoon from Tree. Dead Man Was Grandson of Jay Gould—Companion Barely Escapes Drowning.

Brunswick, Ga., Feb. 26.—Edwin Gould, Jr., twenty-two, son of Edwin Gould, president of the St. Louis Southwestern railway, was accidentally killed near Jekyl Island, the millionaire, winter resort.

Young Gould, with a companion, was coon hunting. While punching at a coon with his gun held by the muzzle the gun was accidentally discharged. Gould died within ten minutes.

Gould and his brother, Frank Miller Gould II., a few years his junior, were the only two children of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould. He would have fallen heir to the vast wealth of his father, estimated at above $30,000,000. He was a grandson of the late Jay Gould, the railroad builder.

Visitors at Jekyl Island were shocked when they learned of the accidental death.

Visiting Coon Traps.

Young Gould, together with Noyes Reynolds, a tutor for the children of Tracy Dows, left the island late Saturday afternoon in a canoe for Lathams Hammock, which is owned by the elder Gould, and where the young men had set traps for coons which infest the marshes. The young men went immediately to one of their traps and found that it contained game. While trying to untree their quarry the accident occurred. The load of shot entered the lower cavity, completely severing the femoral artery.

Reynolds, crazed by grief at his companion's death, called in vain for assistance. Finally he tried to drag the body to the boat, but from exhaustion gave up the attempt. He then decided to return alone and give the alarm.

Companion Falls Overboard.

In the darkness he fell overboard, but finally reached the boat. Long before he reached the pier at Jekyl Island his cries were heard and assistance was sent to him.

The body of young Gould was recovered by launch and brought to Brunswick. Aboard the Gould private car Dixie the body left Brunswick at 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon for New York.

Words Which Have Strayed.

Hardly any words in the English language have strayed farther from their original meaning than the terms of forestry. Thus a forest was originally a great tract of country, which might include woods, cultivated lands, pastures and even towns and villages, all the hunting rights over which were reserved to the monarch. A chase differed from a forest mainly in the fact that the hunting rights were vested in a subject instead of a king. A park was a fenced preserve, either in or out of a forest, while a warren was a piece of waste ground over which the right to hunt the hare, the rabbit and the fox, the pheasant, the partridge and the woodcock had been granted by the king.

In the same way the term afforestation had nothing to do with the planting of trees. It meant the subjection of any tract of country to the forest laws—in other words, it was the setting aside of this tract as a forest. A forest might and commonly did include vast estates of landowners and large towns whose rights remained untouched except as to game.—London Mail.

The Outdoor Woman.

When that husky brute, man, goes into the big woods for the good time of the year no longer does he leave a bundle of frills and laces at home or the shore, with nothing to assuage her grief at parting with her lord but a stack of the latest fiction, a fond kiss and, perhaps, a hypocritical "Wish you could go with me." No, indeed! Now she goes with him, and he is finding out that he is very glad she does.

Whether either he or she is glad, however, depends, in a measure—in fact, rather largely—upon her clothing. She must be warm in cold weather, not too warm in hot weather, not be bedraggled to helplessness when it rains, nor snagged every few minutes in rough going by stepping on her skirt or getting caught on a stub. If she is to be a real companion to a man she must not hold him back by adding to her natural handicap, lack of strength, the unnecessary and exasperating unsuitable costume.—Outing.

Delightful.

A certain young person had attained her twenty-fifth year so many times that her ingenuity was about to crack under the strain of getting away with it. In other words, she would soon be an old maid if something wasn't done.

But what?

In her perplexity she consulted the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter. "I feel," declared the young person tragically, "as if I were drowning."

The seventh daughter of a seventh daughter was not lacking to herself. "Precisely," she replied. "Drowning is described by all who have given it serious trial as a delightful sensation, provided you don't struggle against it."

Whereupon the young person saw a great light and went home and lived happily ever after.—New York Post.

Walking and Health.

As a foundation for health there is nothing better than four miles a day in the open air, taking the weather as it comes. Your family, your work and your life insurance company will all appreciate the benefits derived, and your face will show the difference in a few months.—Collier's Weekly.

And if you cannot make it four miles a day better than nothing is two miles or a mile or even a half a mile if it is done briskly with chin up, shoulders back and to the accompaniment of deep breathing.—Hartford Post.

Difficulties of a Scientist

He Narrowly Escapes Hanging

By F. A. MITCHEL

Professor Dibbley was in his room in University hall examining some theses of students on the antiquity of man when a messenger entered and deposited a box. When it was opened, it was found to contain a jawbone and a letter.

Professor Dibbley dropped the letter and snatched up the bone.

"Thank heaven, the teeth are preserved!" he remarked as he dashed his eyes on them, and taking up a microscope he brought it to bear on every tooth, every protrusion of the bone.

There was a knock at the door—several knocks before the professor heard any of them, so intent was he on his treasure. Finally he bade the knocker enter. Professor Hollister came in.

"Hollister," cried Dibbley excitedly, "what do you suppose Bowers has sent us? The jaw of a prehistoric man. They've struck one of those caves that abound in Europe and have added one jawbone—the first discovered in America—to the world's collection of relics of the men of the old stone age."

"What race?"

"Very like the Neanderthal."

"How do you know?"

"By the teeth. They are all in place."

"Let me see, where do you archaeologic gentlemen place the Neanderthal man?"

"He flourished at least 25,000 years ago; probably further back than that."

"You'll have to go out there and examine the cave yourself. We must report the matter at once."

"There are explicit directions as to the location of the cave," replied Dibbley, taking up another paper which he had [illegible].

Professor Dibbley reported the find and the same evening was on a train speeding westward. So long as he was in a car under the care of the conductor and the porter, with a dining car next forward from which to draw food, the professor was all right. He was so engrossed in bones and stones—the students called him Archie, which they considered an abbreviation of archaeologist—that he was utterly deficient of the common affairs of life. A facetious sophomore asserted that he must be of the canine species himself, he was so addicted to bones. But when Professor Dibbley was put out of the train in the Rocky mountains to shift for himself he was like a child who had not learned to walk. There were a few houses near the station, and before one of them a horse, saddled and bridled, stood without a master. A rough looking man came along, and the professor asked him if the horse could be hired. The man gave him a look such as a cat would give a [illegible] and assured him that it could. A brief interview followed, at the end of which Dibbley gave the man $5 and took the horse on which to ride to the cave.

The professor mounted the beast with difficulty and set out on a jog trot, stopping occasionally to hold his directions up against his glasses. He had difficulty in following them and, meeting a girl of the country mounted on a mule, he appealed to her for information. An interview ended in her offering to show him the way.

"What y' goin' thar for?" she asked.

"That cave," said the professor, in the beginning remembering that he was talking to ignorance, but soon forgetting it, "contains the bones of a man of great antiquity, at least 25,000 years."

"That beats the old feller in the Bible, don't it?"

"Several races occupied Europe successively," continued the professor, "some of them being hundreds of thousands of years"—

"Lord, save us! What kind of lookin' things was they?"

"Something like an ape, small facial angle, heavy protrusions over the eyes. But the latest race of men who lived in the stone age were not so unlike modern civilized men as might be supposed."

"How old was they?"

"They are placed by archaeologists at [illegible] to [illegible] years."

"Good Lord! Was the women that old too?"

"Of course."

The girl looked sidewise at the professor [illegible]. She wondered how a person with [illegible] brain had been permitted [illegible] himself to talk about people thousands of years old. Presently there [illegible] sound of horse's hoofs galloping [illegible] them. The girl turned and saw a horseman coming lickety split. When he reached the two wayfarers he reined in. They heard an ominous click and the words, "Hands up!" The professor turned and looked at a ferocious party covering him with an immense revolver. The girl spurred her horse between the professor and his enemy and made signs to the latter to desist from shooting the former, who didn't know enough to put up his hands when told to do so.

"What is it, Mart?" said the girl.

"What is it? Why, he's tuck my horse."

She appealed to the professor, who explained that he had hired the horse of its owner.

"That story don't go down nohow," said the man. "You're on my horse, stranger. This is the fifth case o' hoss stealin' in these yere parts in the last three weeks. Now we've got on to who's doin' it there'll be no more of it. Reckon you'll dance whar the grass is too short."

The girl cast a glance at the professor, who had not the faintest conception of what they all meant, then a meaning glance at his captor, tapping her head with her finger, indicating that the horse thief was not in his right mind. Then, riding up to Mart, as she called him, she said in a low voice, not to be heard by Dibbley:

"He's goin' to Hutton's cave, he says, to hunt for the bones o' people thousand o' years old. That's evidence enough that he's went daft."

Mart concluded to ask the professor a few questions himself.

"What ye expect to find in the cave?"

"A treasure worth more than millions of dollars."

"What kind of a treasure?"

"The bones of a man who lived when the plains down there were covered by an ocean."

"That'll do, Sal," said the interrogator to the girl. "I don't want to hear any more. But we can't let a loony like that go prowlin' about by hisself. Come, my friend," to the professor. "You'll have to go back with me."

"I can't do that," replied Dibbley. "I've come all the way from New England to examine this find, and I beg of you not to interfere with me. I didn't know the horse was yours."

Dibbley begged so hard that Sal set about persuading his captor to let him go to the cave, which was but a mile distant.

"Y' got to humor them lunatics," she said aside to Mart. "If you don't they're liable to hurt theirselves."

Mart yielded to please her, and the three went on to the cave. The escorts watched to see what Dibbley would do.

Dibbley had brought some digging utensils with him and began to make a hole in the floor of the cave. Removing some earth, he picked out flints. The watchers, supposing them to be stones and seeing the professor put them carefully in a bag, saw confirmation of their theory that he was crazy. Besides, the excavator was constantly talking to himself, using the words neolithic, paleolithic and such other unintelligible names.

What the professor discovered or what he might have discovered is not to be definitely described, for the patience of the two lookers on was soon exhausted, and they concluded that he should be confined in a place where he would do neither himself nor any one else harm. They compelled him to leave his work and return with them to the place where he had paid a man $5 for the use of another man's horse.

Unfortunately persons who had recently lost horses were waiting Mart's return, and they were not prepared for the line of defense the professor's attendants were about to give them. An angry knot of men were talking about the loss of their horses when the captive was seen coming between Mart and Sal. When the party reached the station there were frantic cries of "Hang him!" "Shoot him!" "Kill him!" mingled with uncomplimentary remarks. Mart, who had become convinced of Dibbley's insanity, attempted to argue with the crowd, but failed. They all said that, having recovered his own horse, he was inclined to forgive the crime that had deprived others of their horses.

Meanwhile the professor had come down from the age of primitive man to his own tragic situation and was trembling like a leaf. Then Sal rose to the occasion and proved that a woman may be a valuable legal advocate.

"Men," she said, arguing from the rostrum of a horse's back, sitting straddle, "ef you'd 'a' seen and heard what we seen and heard you'd be convinced of this yere little feller's innocence. He's as crazy as a loon. He said while he was talkin' that we was all the sons and darters of monkeys; that there was times when everything was covered with ice, runnin like water; that kangeroos was cavortin' around bigger'n any house in this yere place; that sometimes the sea was a-splashin' agin Table mountain; that there was men on earth before the Injins. He went into Hutton's cave and was a-diggin' there, throwin' up dirty stones and puttin 'em in his bag, 's if they was silver spoons. If them things don't prove him crazy there's nobody crazy, and they'd better tear down the madhouses."

"How about his stealin' Mart's horse?" called a voice.

"I'll tell you, he's not only a lunatic, but a fool. He got tuk in by some un that he give a fiver to fur the use o' Mart's horse to go to the cave to hunt for the bones of a man 25,000 years old."

"I'm the party as tuk his fiver," said a man. "I knowed him for a tenderfoot right off, but I didn't think he was so soft as to pay me for ridin' Mart's horse. Here, Mart, take yer money."

This addendum to Sal's speech convinced the crowd that the stranger was not only mad, but half witted, and their anger was turned to sympathy. When the next train passed, going east, they put the lunatic on it in charge of the conductor with instructions to turn him over to the authorities at the terminal.

Before reaching it the professor had convinced the conductor that he was sane. But his narrow escape from hanging deterred him from going back.

Later it was determined by a conclave of scientists that the jawbone of a Neanderthal man had belonged to a negro.

Package For Henry.

"Yes, Henry and I certainly possess similar tastes!" exclaimed the adoring bride. "We are surely interested in the same things!"

"Yes," agreed Henry's mother-in-law grimly, "you certainly are. You care more for dear Henry than for any one else in the world, and so does he!"—New York Times.

Inconsistent.

"And you won't buy that antique chair I got from you ten years ago?"

"No. It would be of little use to me in its present condition."

"What do you mean? It's more antique than ever now."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Man and a Wife.

The primary impulse of all creatures is possession. It is this that causes a chicken to tear around the yard with a piece of meat in its mouth and all the other chickens after it. Of course it cannot possibly eat the meat; it hasn't time. But the instinct of possession makes it grab and keep it. The same is noticeable among beasts. They like to get a great piece of meat in their mouths and then growl.

It is this irrepressible instinct in man which provokes him to matrimony. He wants something to guard and to growl over. So he seeks a hollow tree, a cave or a house and a wife. —Puck.

AN APPRECIATION.

It was strictly a home talent show put on by home people and no outside help in any way was used.

The proceeds wil be used for the Eagles' band which is being organized under the leadership of Band Master Charles Skinner.

We expect to put on another home talent show some time in the near future.

New York and Paris.

While I am well rooted in my French and Latin soil, I have traveled far through the world, and one may believe me when I say that I have found no city that more resembles Paris in its ways and the characteristics of its inhabitants than New York. Even London, admirable as it is, is more apart. This is not to say that New York is not profoundly original, but that between it and Paris there are parallel originalities. The gayety of the streets; already certain aspects of picturesque antiquity; the atmosphere of welcoming; the vivacious spirit, cordial hospitality and disinterested enthusiasm for talent, merit or novelty; a certain quickness to adopt and to discard ideas, art movements and people; a restlessness at times too feverish; a love of pleasure, elegance and luxury; a tendency to respond instantly and as one man to any great and international event—all this is what makes of Paris and New York, each in its own particular way, with its little faults and grand qualities, the two most sympathetic, the most "electric" cities of the civilized world.—Jules Bois in Century.

Immigrants and the Birth Rate.

The figures given out by the census bureau showing what is described as an astonishingly higher birth rate among foreign born Americans than among native Americans are perhaps not so astonishing after all.

It is common knowledge that the families of foreign born parents are larger than purely American families. It is safe to say that they have been for many years, though the figures now published are the first ever made by the national government, but persons who are distinctly American in their feeling, habits, prejudices, customs and thinking continue to govern America and lead the American people.

That the more rapid increase of the elements brought into the population by recent immigration will have a tendency to unamericanize America is an assumption that lacks support in national experience. Our experience is that America makes Americans of Europeans.—St. Louis Republic.

Justice White a Great Walker.

Chief Justice White could give the noted Edward Payson Weston a good handicap and beat him in a walking match. Mr. White brims over with good nature, says Elisha Hanson in Cartoons Magazine, and he is a welcome visitor on any street which he picks for his rambles about Washington. He probably knows more women and children in the poorer sections, between the capitol and the [illegible] northwest of the city, than any other Washingtonian. Frequently he is seen trudging along in the midst of a lot of urchins, none of whom shows the slightest regard for the great dignity of his office, but who bask equally under the radiance of his beaming smiles.

JAY WHITNEY BIGELOW

Former Detroit Business Man Passes Away in Baltimore

Jay Whitney Bigelow, 52 years old, a well-known agriculturist and breeder of Holstein cattle, died at 11:15 o'clock yesterday morning at the Church Home and Infirmary. He had been at the hospital since the middle of September, suffering from a complication of diseases.

Born February 6, 1865, at Port Huron, Mich., Mr. Bigelow was the son of the late Reverend and Mrs. A. J. Bigelow. For about 15 years he was connected with the Detroit National Bank, Detroit, in the capacity of paying teller. An enthusiastic sportsman, he was a champion tennis and golf player, and was a member of the athletic and boat clubs of that city.

For many years he was a member of the firm of Jewett, Bigelow & Brooks, of Detroit, who were extensive coal operators in West Virginia, and from 1905 to 1912 he resided with his family at the mining towns of Marytown and Hensley, W. Va. Later he purchased Marengo, a fine water-front estate on Miles river, near Easton, Talbot county, which was originally the plantation of Col. Jacob Gibson, of Revolutionary fame. Mr. Bigelow became interested in agriculture and also made a specialty of breeding Holsteins. In July, 1913, he formed the Bigelow-Willey Company, of Philadelphia, distributors of automobiles.

In a few months Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow would have celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage, he having married Miss Mary B. McPherson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McPherson Jr., of Howell, Michigan, on October 11, 1892. Besides his widow, Mr. Bigelow is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Frank T. Rowell of Bogaluse, La., and Miss Mary Lenora Bigelow, one son, William McPherson Bigelow, his mother, Mrs. A. J. Bigelow, of Tecumseh, Michigan, his sister, Mrs. Frank S. Turner, of Tecumseh, Michigan and a neice, Miss Alma S. Bigelow, of Chicago Ill.

The funeral was held at Howell, Michigan, Tuesday afternoon, February 20th, at 3 o'clock. Interment in Howell cemetery.

The above was clipped from a Baltimore paper and will be of interest to those who knew Mr. Bigelow and his family here. Mr. Bigelow resided in Tecumseh about three years during his earlier life, coming with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Bigelow in the fall of 1877 and remaining until 1880.

Mr. Bigelow was a brother of the late Gertrude A. Stacy, a former editor of this paper.

HATCH CHICKENS EARLY

Fresh Eggs Will Be Scarce Next Fall and Winter—Remedy Is in Hands of the Poultry Man.

Did it ever occur to you that nature requires her children to take an annual vacation? She does, and nowhere do human beings puzzle their brains over this fact more than when the hens begin their yearly holiday. This vacation is technically called the "molting season." It begins during the late summer. The hens stop laying, and change their suits of feathers for new ones. Usually they consume three or four months in the process. Most of us know this perfectly well, but are apt to over look the fact that a very important feature of the molting period is that egg laying stops. We are unreasonable and expect the hens to lay all the time. When the hens take this vacation new-laid fresh eggs are scarce and remain scarce until the pullets hatched during the preceeding spring begin to lay.

The Remedy.

The remedy is very simple, and is under the control of the poultry man. The first step is to have chickens hatched early, so that the pullets begin to lay when the hens begin to molt. This is not difficult. Pullets of the American breeds begin laying at about 7 months of age. Leghorn pullets begin when about 6 months old. North of Ohio River this means that all hatching must be over by May 1 at the latest. The best plan is to have the chicken coming at intervals during March and April. The earliest hatched pullets will, of course, begin to lay first. If any of them begin to molt, their places will be taken by the later ones and a steady supply of eggs will be more certain.

The Difficulty.

The difficulty in the way of the application of this matter is that so many poultry keepers are dependent on hens for hatching. As long as we have late hatched chickens we will have late sitters. The poultry keeper who wants to change from late hatching to early hatching must therefore either get broody hens from some one else or use an incubator. After he has "changed the dates" on his flock he will have no trouble, especially with the American breeds.

Can It Be Done?

Every progressive poultry raiser who has tried it, every agricultural college and the Government, have data showing that early hatching will produce fall and winter layers. In the Government flock during the past winter the pullets of the entire flock averaged over 20 per cent in egg production, and some pens made 3? per cent. That means, in plain language, that the egg production for all the pullets was one egg daily for every five hens, and for some pens one egg daily for every three hens. This, too, when fresh eggs sold up to 75 cents per dozen in Washington. This could not have been done except by early hatching.

TUBERCULOSIS CLINICS CLOSES FRIDAY NIGHT

57 Examined in All.

The doctors in charge of the two cdays tuberculosis clinic conducted in Tecumseh last week were kept busy and were unable to make examinations on all who presented themselves.

Fifty-seven examinations were made and the report given us on these examinations is as follows: 19 positives; 12 suspicious; 25 negatives and 1 arrestive. Over 50 cent. of the examinations made showed that the patient already had the disease or that they were in the first stages of it.

This would not indicate that over 50 per cent of our people were afflicted with tuberculosis trouble for many of the cases examined were people who were requested to take the examination because it was known that they were afflicted with the disease and for what benefit they would receive from the clinic. Many, however, were surprised to learn that they showed signs of the disease and the advice and treatment suggested to them by the doctors will, if followed up, do much to drive away the trouble.

The work of the State Board of Health is doing along this line is helping Michigan people to open their eyes, has been of vast benefit to all communities, where these clinics have been conducted for they are instructing people how to take care of themselves, to face about and use every known method to regain their health.

That we need more institutions in Michigan similar to the one located in Howell is evident as this hospital is crowded to its capacity and has a very large number of patients on its waiting list.

The doctors and nurses speak very highly of the treatment they received while in Tecumseh and stated that Supt. Reed of our schools took a live interest in the work and was a great help to them which showed he had a keen interest in the health and welfare of his pupils. The physicians also gave them every assistance.

EVANGELISTIC BAND

The Evangelistic Band from Michigan University, whose presence at the Baptist men's banquet Friday evening created so much interest, remained over Sunday. There were ten including the director of the Baptist Guild.

Saturday morning some of the young men went on a "hike" with the boys of the church. Saturday afternoon they conducted a children's meeting.

In the evening the chapel was filled to hear them speak. The topic was "Did Jesus Fail?" Cecil A. Norton and C. C. Whitney discussed the subject. Charles Guildermister spoke on "Good Salt." Harold Rubey, the soloist, sang "Ninety and Nine." The quartette consisting of Harold Rubey, Lionel Crocker, Morris Gay and J. Fischbach, rendered a number. After the meeting was concluded the young people urged the boys to sing some college songs which they did, greatly to the amusement of all.

Sunday morning J. Fischbach, the captain of the band, conducted the service. The general topic was "How can we make Life Count for the Most?" This topic was discussed by Morris Gay and Harold Haywood. Harold Rubey rendered a solo.

During the Sunday-school hour the Men's Class was addressed by Dr. A. W. Slayton. All the classes were taught by members of the band. Quite a number signed cards indicating their determination to lead a Christian life.

The Young People's Meeting at six o'clock was attended by over 100 people and Lionel Crocker addressed the society. At the seven o'clock service the church was nearly filled with interested people. J. Fischbach and Dr. Slayton discussed the topic, "Who Will Decide". No event in years has stirred up greater interest in the church. All signified their desire to have the boys come again.

On Shining Shoes.

In a democracy it is fitting that a man should sit on a throne to have his shoes polished or, to use a brighter, gayer word, shined. We are all kings, and this happy conceit of popular government is nicely symbolized by being for these shining moments so many kings together, each on his similar throne and with a slave at his feet. The democratic idea suffers a little from the difficulty of realizing that the slave is also a king, yet gains a little from the fair custom of the liveller monarchs to turn from left foot to right and from right to left, so that, within human limits, neither shoe shall be undemocratically shined first.—Ralph Bergengren in Century.

Frightened to It.

It was quite a fashionable bridge party, and one of the players was a small, nervous young thing, not sure of any of her plays and fearfully afraid of her partner, a living proof of the existence of that much discussed creature, the "bridge fiend."

"I returned your lead then," said the other player frigidly, "and I am sure we would not have lost if you had discarded correctly. Would you mind telling me what you have been discarding from—strength or weakness?"

The nervous young thing lifted her eyes with a flash of spirit.

"From fright," she said candidly.—Philadelphia Ledger.

ALLA NAZIMOVA

James P. Sinnott in N. Y. Eve. Mail November 13th

I sat in the Broadway Theatre last night and watched the greatest actress in the world, Alla Nazimova, in Herbert Brenon's film version of "War Brides." Around me sat as distiugnished an audience as any first night has known this fall. They cheered for five minutes when the picture ended—cheered and shouted for Nazimova and Herbert Brenon. Mr. Brenon appeared and made a neat speech of appreciatoin. Mme. Nazimova was nufortunately not present.

As I sat and watched the work of the greatest actress in the world I am afraid I thought strange thoughts. I thought that perhaps Nazimova and Herbert Brenon have entered into a conspiracy to make something of motion pictures. I thought of the difference in the work of the greatest actress in the world and some who have reaped the golden harvest from pictures. I wondered if any of them seated in the audience would be more humble in the future—if they would learn something from Nazimova.

In the last scene of the picture the women hold Nazimova up over their heads for the king to gaze on. She is dead, having just committed suicide. I could not but think that in presenting her on Broadway in "War Brides" Herbert Brenon was holding Nazimova up over his head for the motion picture world and the public to gaze at. To gaze at in wonder and awe.

"War Brides" will be presented at the Bradley Opera House Friday, March 9th.

FAREWELL PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. LaBounty given big surprise Friday night 45 present.

Friday evening some 45 of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm LaBounty dropped in upon them for a farewell party, as they expect to move on their farm in March.

The first item of interest was the bountiful two course supper that was served, each one doing ample justice to the same.

After the supper had been served, games and music furnished the amusement of the evening and a social good time was enjoyed. While the neighbors regret to have them go away, yet they extend their best wishes for them in their new home. It was in the early morning hours that the guests departed for their homes.

GRANGE MEETING

Tecumseh Grange held an all day meeting at Grange Hall Saturday. A pot luck dinner was served at noon, after which followed a short program:

BAPTIST MEN'S BANQUET

Sixty-seven men sat down to a sumptuous supper at the Baptist church Friday evening. The banquet was held under the auspices of the Men's class of the Sunday school. The Young People Society served the supper. During the supper hour they were favored with music by a Graphonola furnished by B. J. Pulver.

Ernest G. Harris, the president of the class, introduced R. S. Moore as toast master. After brief and humorous remarks, he introduced Dr. Hartzog who spoke on, "Our Class." He told several jokes on the members of the class and emphasized the value of the Men's Class.

The chief feature of the evening was the presence of the Evangelistic Band of Michigan University. The toastmaster turned things over to the captain of the team J. Fichback Jr., who in turn with a great display of wit and humor introduced the members of the band. Each spoke a few minutes in a very entertaining way.

Dr. H. W. Slater the director of the Baptist Guild, Ann Arbor, there gave a brief but excellent address on "The Church a Field for Manly Activity." Then the college boys sung some college songs much to the pleasure of all.

MONDAY CLUB

Regular meeting of the Monday Club was held yesterday afternoon with about 75 ladies present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. T. C. Harris. After a short business session a program was given with Mrs. J. D. Shull as leader, the topic of the afternoon being "The Philippines."

A paper on "The Philippines" was given by Mrs. Fred Rosacrans which was illustrated with stereopticon views and was very interesting.

Mrs. Eugene Rosacrans followed with a vocal solo, "Love's Echo," accompanied by Mrs. Ella Hodges.

Paper, "Education in the Philippines," by Mrs. Ed Gillen. This also was finely illustrated.

Mrs. Eugene Rosacrans then favored the company with another vocal solo, "Little Boy, Good Bye," and she responded very kindly to encores after both of her songs.

At the close of the program light refreshments were served by Mrs. G. R. Newsom and her committee, thus closing a very pleasant afternoon.

TO BID GOOD-BYE

A wonderful hayrack load of 25 separate pieces was unloaded at the home of Eugene Stevenson Friday night, when twenty-five of the freshmen class, gathered for a farewell party to their classmate who with his parents will move to Colorado in about two weeks. The evening was spent with games and various stunts. Refreshments were also served. It was a late hour before the crowd departed, each one being loathe to say good-bye to their friend and classmate.

DIETETIC TALK ABOUT BACON

Properly bred, fed and cured Bacon is known to be the most digestible of all meats—also the most nourishing.

It is of great value in the treatment of dyspepsia.

Because it is strengthening and so readily assimilated.

We handle a brand of Bacon that we unhesitatingly recommend in every way.

It's the best Bacon that we can find anywhere.

We would like to have YOUR opinion.

There is no charge for his services.

HE WILL BE HERE SATURDAY, MARCH 3

We have gone to considerable expense to have this Scholl expert here to give you his services free, and his visit here is consequently very short.

He has been remarkably successful in his work and has given hundreds of people quick relief and lasting comfort by means of Dr. Scholl's well known scientific appliances and preparations. We urge you to come into our store before the Scholl foot expert leaves and let him inspect your feet. His services will cost you absolutely nothing and you will not be asked to buy anything. You need not even be a customer of this store. Everyone is welcome.

Obtain Genuine and Lasting Foot Comfort.

It makes no difference what treatments you may have tried without success—the Scholl foot expert may be able to help you. Tell him your foot troubles and let him see what he can do. It costs you nothing to find out. You have nothing to lose, but everything to gain—quick relief and lasting comfort.

If you are now wearing arch supports or other appliances let him readjust them free of charge.

The Scholl foot expert does not operate—does not cut corns or callouses. But he does show you how to overcome them by means of Dr. Sholl's wonderful scientific appliances and remedies.

He will show you

—how you can wear your regular size shoe without the feeling that it is too short or too tight;
—how you can become freed from the pain of corns, bunions, callouses and cramps in the toes and ball of the foot;
—how your ankles can be straightened and strengthened without the necessity of wearing cumbersome braces;
—how the annoyance and discomfort of perspiring feet can be overcome in your own home;
—how to rid yourself of all foot troubles, including pains in the heels, ankles, and limbs; tired, aching feet; weak, fallen or brokendown arches.

A Trick of the Sun.

Upon a mountain in Andalusia quaint spectral forms are frequently seen. Whenever there is a heavy mist and persons are ascending the mountain they appear in all their ghostly splendor and sometimes so suddenly as to strike dismay into the hearts of those who see them for the first time. Of course it is all a trick played by the sun. When a mist partially shrouds the mountain the sun is naturally obscured, and then he revenges himself by projecting the shadow of any person who happens to be ascending the mountain until the shadow assumes the form of a gigantic specter.—London Standard.

Wife—Tom, dear, this my first plum pudding. Hub (dubiously)—It looks rather nice. Wife—Do you know, I was wondering while making it why we call it plum pudding when there isn't a plum in it. PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Prevent Illness.

The laws of health have, every one, a penalty attached, and ignorance is never accepted by nature as an excuse.

Prevent illness. Build up the natural defensive resources of the body. Use the automatic scavenger system with which you are supplied, but do not make the mistake of thinking that you can neglect it at pleasure and then escape by whipping it up with irritating drugs. Drink freely of clear water. Eat to satisfaction rather than repletion and let the diet be of good balance. Never let the drudgery of daily routine obscure the end for which you live. A rush of work is not legitimate excuse for progressive suicide.

As Pythagoras has wisely said, "Have thou moderation in all things, keep thyself from wild joy and from galling sorrow, strive to hold thy soul in harmony and concord, like the strings of a well tuned harp."

HOW TO TEST DIAMONDS AND NOT BUY PASTE.

—Well made imitation diamonds commonly scratch glass, but they do not cut it. A real diamond drawn lightly over the surface cuts the glass so completely that the slightest blow will cause a separation. Another old test is that in which a file is employed. In the case of a real stone it is impossible to make any impression with the implement. An imitation article is easily marked. Or the suspected gem may be placed between two coins and pressed hard with the fingers. It will be impossible to make the slightest impression on a real diamond, but in the case of a paste article the edges may be crushed. The effect can be discerned by a critical examination with a lens.

When a diamond is quite clean and dry carry out the following experiment: Place on the surface a tiny drop of water. Now take a needle or pin and try to move the drop about. If the diamond is genuine the drop can be rolled about intact. On the other hand, where the gem is an imitation the water spreads directly it is touched with the needle point.

Another very good test may be carried out with a tumbler of water. Into this put the suspected article and examine its appearance. A real diamond will show up in the water with startling clearness, and it can never be confounded with the water. On the other hand, the imitation looks indefinite, and it is sometimes difficult to see it clearly at all.

Generally speaking, the facets in a real diamond are not cut so truly as those in the imitation. This is on account of the fact that diamonds are sold by weight; hence the cutter tries to preserve as much of the original as possible, even making small sacrifices in the matter of regularity. In the case of a paste article or a cheaper stone no such need arises, and the cutter endeavors to make the stone appear as perfect in shape as possible. To observe such irregularities as sometimes occur in a real diamond it is needful to examine it with great care.

TO SILVER MIRRORS.

How They Should Be Treated With a Nitrate Solution.

Thoroughly clean the surface with soap and warm water, to which add a few drops of lye. Rub the surface dry and then keep it covered to protect from dust. A wall of putty or clay should be built about two inches away from the spot to be repaired, being very careful not to touch the clean surface. This is to serve as a reservoir for the silvering bath. For each nine square inches to be covered pour one-half ounce of a 3 per cent solution of silver nitrate. To this add ammonia water, drop by drop, until a light brown sediment appears and does not dissolve. There should be a very small quantity of this sediment produced.

Dissolve a piece of glucose about one-fourth inch square in a half ounce of water. Warm the solution and add to the nitrate solution on the mirror, which should be in a warm place protected from dust and allowed to remain for twelve hours. Pour off the solution, dry, remove all traces of putty, etc., then cover the entire surface with shellac.

Diluted nitric acid will dissolve the silvering from a piece of glass.

How to Kill Moths, and Other Useful Household Hints.

Here is an excellent way to kill moths in carpets which never fails: Wring a coarse crash towel out of water and spread it smoothly on the carpet, iron it dry with a good hot iron, repeating the operation on all parts of the carpet infected with moths. There is no need to press hard, and neither the pile nor the color of the carpet will be injured, and the moths will be destroyed by the heat and steam.

Irons wiped on a cloth dampened with kerosene will not scorch clothes.

Kerosene used to moisten stove polish makes stoves look like new.

Salt and water removes the lime in new curtains and makes washing easier.

Washing fabrics that are inclined to fade should be soaked and rinsed in very soft water to set the color before washing in suds.

To clean a burned pan dip a hard crust of bread in kitchen salt and rub the burned portion, then wash in hot soda and water.

How to Make a Watch Dial Luminous.

The first thing to do is to procure an ounce of calcium sulphide, luminous. The cost since the war is $1 or more an ounce, but you can fix fifty watches with that amount. This element absorbs light and after being exposed to any bright light for five minutes will glow with a purple light for about four hours, says the Popular Science Monthly.

Remove the crystal from the watch to be treated and with a pen dipped in shellac go over the numerals and the hands. Some may prefer to make dots only at the numerals. Pour out the calcium on a clean piece of paper, dip your finger in it and press some on the moist shellac. Allow about five minutes for it to dry. The calcium not used may be returned to the bottle.

Pets and Pet Names.

The Castilian Parliament.

The term "mother of parliaments," applied to England, is not quite correct. Spain had a parliament nearly a century before England, meaning by parliament popular representation. Such an assembly was convened in Burgos in 1169, while England's first assembled at Leicester in the middle of the thirteenth century.

The Castilian parliament did not receive hereditary nobles. It was left to England to do that and to give them herditary legislative powers, which were denied them by the Castilians.

Knew It All.

"Your boy ain't workin' with the Consolidated any more," a neighbor said to Mrs. Rafferty.

"No," said she.

"He didn't hold down the job long, did he?" said the neighbor interrogatively.

"No," said Mrs. Rafferty, "he didn't, but it wasn't the boy's fault. In three weeks he knew so much more about the business than anybody else did that the boss got jealous and fired him."—Exchange.

Maddening.

"They really fear she will become insane. You see, she found a diary he kept before he married her."

"Oh, I see! And the awful revelations"—

"'Revelations?' No. It was all in cipher, and she couldn't read a word of it."—London Tit-Bits.

Soap Economy.

When a cake of soap is worn nearly thin enough to break stick it to the new cake by putting both in quite warm water, then press firmly together. When cold it will be one solid cake. This does away with small pieces of soap and there is no waste.

Silence and Speech.

The chief office of silence is to bury all that is evil, and the chief office of speech is to disclose and disseminate all that is good. Let this be done with sincerity and earnestness, for its ultimate benefit to character and to conduct is established beyond a doubt.

High School Notes

The Value of a High School Education

"Say, Jim, let's quit school. A fellow can't learn much, hanging around this place, fooling his time away. I had a job offered me at $10.00 a week, and so it's good-by school for me. What a fellow needs really is experience."

"You certainly will get it, all right," answered his chum Jim as they stood on the school steps. "You'd better think before you leave school and it would be foolish to leave before the end of this year. If you stay that long you'll probably get that fool notion out of your head."

Nope, I'm thru," said George and the boys parted. Jim went directly home to study, but George sauntered down towards town to "see what's up," as he put it.

This conversation was held fifteen years ago. Now Jim is cashier of a Cleveland bank and George? Why, he's a machinist in a foundry getting two dollars a day.

Of the two boys, while in school it was said that George was the better student of the two when he studied which was seldom. But like so many other boys, his head was turned by a measly ten dollars and the fact that he wouldn't have to bother with "that school stuff." And, unlike Jim, his family was one of the well-to-do of the town, while Jim's hands were full, clothing and feeding himself and helping his widowed mother.

Why can't some of us learn a lesson from this little story of which there are hundreds very similar? We students, or at least many of us, do not realize the intrinsic value of a good substantial high school education.

We say "Oh Shucks, what's the use of bothering our heads with that old Caesar, those old geometry theorems and those musty old poets?" And we study our lessons in that attitude. Then we wonder why we get an "X" at the end of the month.

Mind—that this does not apply to all of us, but there are far too many to whom this does apply and who show this same attitude toward their lessons. Now let's use some common sense, cool down for a minute and look at the question from both sides. Perhaps Latin or German do not profit us in dollars and cents, but they are vastly more valuable to us than a few paltry dollars. Latin, like most every other high school study, trains our mind, improves our memory, makes us work and teaches us to apply our gray matter.

If we went to high school just for what we get from books, it would be different. Of course the knowledge derived from books does comprise an important part in our education but not all by any means.

In high school we learn how to study and to think, but more important than that we learn how to become good citizens. We associate with clean upright, young people and our teachers and learn what our duties are toward the community, and how to serve.

Oh, If those who leave school, only knew what an opporunity they were missing!

Of course many great men and women have risen to greatness and distinction without the aid of a high school education, but such people were out of the ordinary and they made up for it by constant study and hard work. True, there are many correspondence school courses and hundreds of good books we could read, but the foundation upon which to build an education would be lacking.

The time has passed when a young man or girl can leave school at the eighth grade, enter the whirl of business life and come out at the top. Business men, more and more, are demanding trained men and during the coming decade, it is doubtful if the demand for such men can be filled. Big business men know the value of a high school education and reject anyone who lacks such. Ask any person of brains today if he thinks a high school education worth while. Twenty-five out of a hundred will say "Yes" and the remaining seventy-five will say "It is an absolute necessity."

We hope sincerely that this message, which is only too full of truth may reach down into our hearts and make us thank our lucky stars that we can attend high school, and make us STICK! If there's anything we're lacking now, remember—we'll have it next year.

English X class visited the Globe Mill Friday morning to learn how "1900" flour is made. W. Grieves, the head miller, showed them each operation in detail from the separation and scouring of the whole wheat kernels to the finished flour ready for the market. Although many bran and flour fights were stayed, ad interim, one could tell by the themes Monday that the pupils understood the process thoroughly.

The same class wrote editorials for a supposed "High School Bulletin" Tuesday and one of them, "The Value of a High School Education," is printed above. At a later date, thru this same column of the Herald, we will learn how to get a winning base ball team by "Bob" Moore.

GIANT LINER IS U-BOAT VICTIM

Cunarder Laconia Is Sunk Without Warning.

31 AMERICANS ON BOARD

One Person Is Dead and Several Missing—278 Known to Have Been Picked Up—Vessel Carried Valuable Cargo—Was Armed With One Gun. Company Thinks All Saved.

LONDON, ENG. — According to a Central News dispatch from Queenstown, Mrs. S. Hoy and daughter, who were aboard the Laconia, are missing and supposed to have been drowned.

CHICAGO, ILL. — It is probable Mrs. Mary E. Hoy and Miss Elizabeth Hoy, of Chicago, are the passengers referred to. They were in the first cabin.

LONDON, ENG. — A dispatch from Liverpool says the Cunard offices there officially announced that "there is reason to believe that virtually all on board the steamer (the Laconia) were saved."

LONDON, ENG.—The Cunarder Laconia, carrying twenty-seven Americans—six passengers and twenty-five among the crew—was sunk without warning by a German submarine off the Irish coast.

It is stated authentically that the Laconia was torpedoed without warning.

"One dead and twelve missing," is the latest available word of the disaster.

Two hundred and seventy-eight persons are known to have been picked up.

It is now yet known whether Americans are dead or missing.

The Laconia, an 18,099 ton vessel, is the largest single victim of unrestricted U-boat warfare since its inauguration Feb. 1.

She was en route from New York for Liverpool, having left New York Feb. 18.

Cargo Valuable to Britain.

Her cargo was of inestimable importance to Great Britain just now. It was entirely consigned to the British government. Included in its cargo were forty thousand bushels of wheat, two thousand cases of brass rifle cartridges, unloaded, 2,843 bales of cotton, 1,408 cases of fruit, 1,000 bars of silver and 900 tons of staple provisions.

The Laconia was equipped with one gun aft, the regulation 4.7 piece mounted on all Cunard liners.

She was manned by British officers. Her captain is W. R. D. Irvine.

The attack took place at 10 o'clock Sunday night.

Many Americans on Board.

Americans who were first class passengers are the following: Arthur T. Kirby, Bainbridge, N. J.; Mrs. F. E. Harris, New York; Floyd P. Gibbons of the Chicago Tribune; Mrs. Mary E. Hoy, Chicago; Miss Elizabeth Hoy, Chicago.

In the second cabin was another American, the Rev. James Wareing, of New York.

Carried 5,000 Sacks of Mail.

Five thousand sacks of United States mail were carried by the Laconia, of which 1,300 were transferred from the American liner St. Louis when it was decided to hold that vessel in port.

British Coast Is Shelled.

LONDON, ENG. — German destroyers bombarded Broadstairs and Margate early in the morning. One woman and one child were killed and two persons were injured. Two houses were damaged. This announcement was made in the house of commons by Sir Edward Carson, first lord of the admiralty.

Mooney to Hang May 17.

SAN FRANCISCO — Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of complicity in the preparedness parade dynamiting, will be hanged at San Quentin prison on May 17. As Judge Griffin pronounced the sentence, Mrs. Annie Mooney, the condemned man's mother, uttered a piercing shriek and collapsed.

Boxing Killed in New York.

ALBANY, N. Y. — Professional boxing will die in New York state on Jan. 1 next. It is announced that an agreement to stamp out prize fighting had been reached between Governor Whitman and Senator Walters of Syracuse.

POWER TO ACT ASKED BY WILSON

Armed Neutrality Is Urged by President.

SPEAKS TO CONGRESS

Seeks Force to Protect U. S. Ships and Lives.

CITES DESIRE FOR PEACE

Continued Invasion of the Plain Rights of Neutrals, Sacrifice of American Lives and Ships and Intolerable Blockade of U. S. Commerce Force President Into Next Step Toward War—"War Can Come Only on Wilful Acts and Aggression of Others."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The text of President Wilson's address before congress follows:

"Gentlemen of the congress: I have again asked the privilege of addressing you because we are moving through critical times, during which it seems to me to be my duty to keep in close touch with the houses of congress, so that neither counsel nor action shall run at cross purposes between us.

"On the 3d of February I officially informed you of the sudden and unexpected action of the imperial German government in declaring its intention to disregard the promises it had made to this government in April last and undertake immediate submarine operations against all commerce, whether of belligerents or of neutrals, that should seek to approach Great Britain and Ireland, the Atlantic coasts of Europe or the harbors of the eastern Mediterranean, and to conduct those operations without regard to the established restrictions of international practice, without regard to any considerations of humanity which might interfere with their object. That policy was forthwith put into practice. It has now been in active execution for nearly four weeks.

U-Boat War Results Not Disclosed.

"Its practical results are not fully disclosed. The commerce of other neutral nations is suffering severely, but not, perhaps, very much more severely than it was already suffering before the 1st of February, when the new policy of the imperial government was put into operation. We have asked the co-operation of the other neutral governments to prevent these depradations, but I fear none of them has thought it wise to join us in any common course of action. Our own commerce has suffered, is suffering, rather in apprehension than in fact, rather because so many of our ships are timidly keeping to their home ports than because American ships have been sunk.

"Two American vessels have been sunk, the Housatonic and the Lyman M. Law. The case of the Housatonic, which was carrying foodstuffs consigned to a London firm, was essentially like the case of the Frye, in which, it will be recalled, the German government admitted its liability for damages, and the lives of the crew, as in the case of the Frye, were safeguarded with reasonable care.

"The case of the Law which was carrying lemon-box staves to Palermo, disclosed a ruthlessness of method which deserves grave condemnation, but was accompanied by no circumstances which might not have been expected at any time in connection with the use of the submarine against merchantmen as the German government has used it.

Situation Same as on Feb. 3.

"In sum, therefore, the situation we find ourselves in with regard to the actual conduct of the German submarine and its effects upon our own ships and people is substantially the same that it was when I addressed you on the 3d of February, except for the tying up of our shipping in our own ports because of the unwillingness of our ship owners to risk their vessels at sea without insurance or adequate protection and the very serious congestion of our commerce which has resulted, a congestion which is growing rapidly more and more serious every day.

"This in itself might presently accomplish, in effect, what the new German submarine orders were meant to accomplish so far as we are concerned. We can only say, therefore, that the 'overt act' which I have ventured to hope the German commanders would in fact avoid has not occurred.

"But while this is happily true, it must be admitted that there have been certain additional indications and expressions of purpose on the part of the German press and the German authorities which have increased rather than lessened the impressions that, if our ships and our people are spared, it will be because of fortunate circumstances or because the commanders of the German submarines which they may happen to encounter exercise an unexpected discretion and restraint, rather than because of the instructions under which those commanders are acting.

Warns of Grave Peril.

"It would be foolish to deny that the situation is fraught with the gravest possibilities and dangers. No thoughtful man can fail to see that the necessity for definite action may come at any time, if we are, in fact, and not in word merely to defend our elementary rights as a neutral nation. It would be most imprudent to be unprepared.

"I cannot in such circumstances be unmindful of the fact that the expiration of the term of the present congress is immediately at hand; by constitutional limitations, and that it would in all likelihood require an unusual length of time to assemble and organize the congress which is to succeed it.

PRESIDENT WILSON

Asks Congress for Power to Protect U. S. Rights.

"I feel that I ought, in view of the fact, to obtain from you full and immediate assurance of the authority which I may need at any moment to exercise. No doubt I already possess that power without special warrant of the law, by the plain implication of my constitutional duties and powers, but I prefer, in the present circumstances not to act upon general implication. I wish to feel that the authority and the power of the congress are behind me in whatever it may become necessary for me to do. We are jointly the servants of the people and must act together and in their spirit, so far as we can divine and interpret it.

"No one doubts what it is our duty to do. We must defend our commerce and the lives of our people in the midst of the present trying circumstan, with descretion, but with clear and steadfast purpose. Only the method and the extent remain to be chosen upon the occasion, if occasion should indeed arise.

"Since it has unhappily proved impossible to safeguard our neutral rights by diplomatic means against the unwarranted infringements they are suffering at the hands of Germany, there must be no recourse but to armed neutrality, which we shall know how to maintain and for which there is abundant American precedent.

Must Defend Commerce and Lives.

"It is devoutly to be hoped that it will not be necessary to put armed force anywhere into action. The American people do not desire it, and our desire is not different from theirs. I am sure that they will understand the spirit in which I am now acting, the purpose I hold nearest my heart and would wish to exhibit in everything I do. I am anxious that the people of the nations at war also should understand and not distrust us. I hope that I need give no further proofs and assurances than I have already given throughout nearly three years of anxious patience that I am the friend of peace and mean to preserve it for America so long as I am able. I am not now proposing or contemplating war or any steps that may lead to war.

Asks Authority to Safeguard Rights.

"I merely request that you will accord me by your vote and definite bestowal the means and the authority to safeguard in practice the right of a great people who are at peace and who are desirous of exercising none but the rights of peace to follow the pursuit of peace in quietness and good will—rights recognized time out of mind by all the civilized nations of the world. No course of my choosing or of theirs will lead to war. War can come only by the willful acts and aggression of others.

"You will understand why I can make no definite proposals or forecasts of action now and must ask for your supporting authority in the most general terms. The form in which action may become necessary cannot yet be foreseen. I believe that the people will be willing to trust me in true spirit of amity and good faith that they have themselves displayed throughout these trying months; and it is in that belief that I request that you will authorize me to supply our merchantships with defensive arms should that become necessary, and with the means of using them, and to employ any other instrumentalities or methods that may be necessary and adequate to protect our ships, and our people in their legitimate and peaceful pursuits on the seas.

"I request also that you will grant me at the same time, along with the powers I ask, a sufficient credit to enable me to provide adequate means or protection where they are lacking, including adequate insurance against the present war risks.

Rights of Humanity at Stake.

"I have spoken of our commerce and of the legitimate errands of our people on the seas, but you will not be misled as to my main thought, the thought that lies beneath these phrases and gives them dignity and weight. It is not of material interest merely that we are thinking. It is, rather, of fundamental human rights, chief of all the right of life itself. I am thinking not only of the rights of Americans to go and come about their proper business by way of the sea, but also of something much deeper, much more fundamental than that. I am thinking of those rights of humanity without which there is no civilization.

"My theme is of these great principles of compassion and of protection which mankind has sought to throw about human lives, the lives of noncombatants, the lives of men who are peacefully at work keeping the industrial processe of the world quick and vital; the lives of women and children and of those who supply the labor which ministers to their sustenance. We are speaking of no selfish material rights, but of rights which our hearts support and whose foundation is that righteous passion for justice upon which all law, all structures alike of family, of state and of mankind must rest, as upon the ultimate base of our existence and our liberty. I cannot imagine any man with American principles at his heart hesitating to defend these things."

President Wilson again appeared before a joint session of Congress a few days ago and asked for full authority to arm merchant ships and for full authority to use other instrumentalities in defending American rights.

Congress has argued over the matter pro and con for the past few days but the sensational news announcing the German plot against this government made public yesterday gave Congress an electric shock and quick action was the result.

President Wilson last night, in response to the Senate's call, laid before them official information that the United States Government is in possession of evidence which establishes the authenticity of the sensational document which deals with the plot to ally Mexico and Japan with her to war on us.

This proves to be the shock needed and the House got busy and passed the Flood bill authorizing the President to arm merchant ships but not to give him full authority to use other instrumentalities by a vote of 403 to 13. This bill was hurried to the senate where it is expected that the senate committee's bill approved by the President and authorizing not only the arming of merchant ships but clothing the President with authority to use other instrumentalities will be substituted and passed.

The President should have the authority to act. Congress should and will be behind him and the people are back of him with every resource at their command.

Germany through her militarism has used every power at her command to embarrass us and to drive us to war. This last stroke is enough, we need no other act to make us ready. Our place is with the allies to help them conquer and put down our common enemy.

God forbid that it should take our men to do it, but if it is necessary, we have them to use and they will respond to the call.

We hope that there will be no letting up, no unnecessary delaying but that Germany and her allies will be forced to the last ditch and then in the settlement that German and Prussian militarism will be forever crushed and the people of Germany and Prussia will come into their own. Let there be no more Kaiser's or his kind but let the people rule.

The Broken Broker.

The late Judge Pennypacker of Philadelphia was an advocate of the enfranchisement of woman, but he also advocated justice in the relationship between the sexes for man.

"Woman," he said whimsically one day at the Pennsylvania Historical society, "mustn't play it both ways. She mustn't get the vote and the equal wage through man's sense of equity and then get all kinds of unfair privileges through his sense of gallantry.

"There's a lot of truth in the story of the young broker who after his failure was thrown over by a pretty girl.

"'Why was the engagement broken off?' a banker asked the ruined broker.

"'Well,' he answered, 'after I'd given her a string of pearls, an opera box and a birthday gift of a twelve cylinder limousine I went to smash, and her people accused me of amusing myself at her expense.'"—Baltimore Sun.

What You Can Do.

You don't know what you can do. At any rate you don't know until you're up against it and have to try. Some day you're going to bump against a whopping bit of work. It will look impossible to you. You'll want to quit. You'll say to yourself that it simply can't be done. And then if you are really worth while you'll tighten your belt and jump into it. You'll say, "I've got to do it." Then the first thing you know it will be done. And the best part of it is you'll enjoy it, and the satisfaction that comes when it is done will be worth more than hearing your uncle has left you $10,000.—American Boy

Two Types.

George Ade was talking about the intricacies of the English language.

"There's that word 'smart,' for instance," he said. "The word may mean fashionable, chic or elegant.

"A man wanted to present me to a lady the other day.

"'She's very, very smart,' he said.

"But I asked cautiously:

"'Smart [illegible] Highbrow or low neck type?'"—Exchange.

A Retaining Fee.

Johnny—What is a retaining fee, pa?

"A retaining fee, my son, is the money you pay to us lawyers before we will do any work."

"Oh, I see! It's like those slot chocolate machines. The people have to put in their pennies before they get any chocolate."

A Form of Preparedness.

"I'm afraid I'm going to lose my temper when I make this speech," said Senator Sorghum.

"Deliberately?"

"Yes. Some of the remarks I want to make will never be excused unless it can be claimed they were said in the heat of debate."—Washington Star.

"Renominate 'em all" easily won the day in the Republican state convention in the armory in Detroit, and from top to bottom, except in one case, that of James O. Murfin, of Detroit, nominated to succeed Harry C. Bulkley, of Detroit, for the University of Michigan regency, present holders of the offices that will be at issue April 2 were re-elected. In Mr. Murfin's case the incumbent did not desire to run again.

He Saw the Black Hole.

The first thing I wanted to see in India was the "Black Hole" of Calcutta. I could hardly wait to see the famous prison in which, in 1756, 133 people were suffocated in a single night. One hundred and fifty-six British prisoners, captured by the natives, were cast into a room eighteen feet square, and the following morning only twenty-three of them were living.

Without waiting to unpack my trunk I hurried to the spot. But I was sadly disappointed, for all there was there was a monument with a chain around it. I felt cheated. In America we would have given the visitor something for his money. We would have preserved the prison, with its two small windows, and put a showcase in the corner with samples of the nails and a rusty hinge. The restored prison would have been filled with wax figures, their coats noticeably dusty and hunched at the collar, and outside would have been a lineal descendant of one of the survivors, selling post card views and a history of the "hole" for a quarter.—Homer Croy in Leslie's.

Strap Hangers in Tokyo.

After one has ridden for a few weeks on Tokyo trams he realizes that more than 2,000,000 people, living within a radius of three miles of the imperial palace, require many trams to carry them. Seats are always at a premium. Even the New York subway is not as continually crowded. The trams are fast, well handled and plenteous, but a moving stairway or sidewalk covering all the tram lines in the city would scarcely fill the bill.

There are five or six stations from which trains depart for different parts of the empire, but these stations are only joined by city trams, so that if one wants to go from Tokyo station, the terminus of the Shimonoseki line to Europe, to Ueno station, whence trains depart for Nikko, Karuizawa, Sendai and Hokkaido, he must take a riksha, a taxicab or a street car or else circle the city for more than twenty miles in more than an hour to reach a station that is only a mile and a half away as the crow flies.—Maynard Owen Williams in Christian Herald.

Coolness Under Difficulties.

The grammar school principal went from room to room explaining what to do in case of fire. The pupils listened with respectful attention until he came to his final instructions, then smiles and giggles disturbed the principal's serenity.

"WAR BRIDES" PLEA FOR PEACE

No Such Thrilling Appeal to End Horrors of Battlefield Made Before, says Gregory—Might Have Prevented Conflict.

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

"War Brides" is the thing for which we have long been waiting. It hits the nail squarely on the head and at one mighty clip sends it home "for keeps."

About "War Brides" there is no foolishness, no trifling, no dilly-dallying with the audience, no playing with noise and red-fire just for the sake of the sensations they may make. It has serious business on hand, and from start to finish it sticks, to its task like the burr to the sheep's wool.

The task that Herbert Brenon had before him while creating his wonderful picture was to show us that war is hell—hell let loose on earth—the horror of horrors, the crimes of crimes, the most barbarous of all the barbarous customs that we have inherited from the bloodstained past.

It were well if every ruler of every nation could be made to witness the scene in which Joan, heading the multitude of grief-crazed women, meets the King as he is on his way to the front, where the War Monster is getting in his hellish work.

That one scene alone would be sufficient to sicken the most stalwart of the advocates of war, and to convince him of the fact that war is nothing less than infernal and that its promoters are the greatest enemies of the human race.

I said to myself as I watched Mr. Brenon's great play, so admirably acted by the matchless Nazimova "If this picture could have been shown in the capitols of Europe before the fatal Third of August, 1914 there would have been no war."

And I believe that I was right. Even if they had already planned the great conflict, the sight of this masterful production would have caused the kings and emperors, the foreign secretaries and premiers, to drop their heads in shame and remorse and swear that never again would they advocate the rightfulness of war.

There is in "War Brides" another scene that the "Powers that be" in Europe ought to have witnessed prior to that fateful August day, 1914. I refer to the scene in which Amelia, after hearing the battle losses read to the people by the Mayor, returns home and tells the mother and Joan of the death of George, Eric, Arno and Franz.

It is enough to break the heart, and could the "royal" personages and "diplomatic" gentlemen of Europe have seen it, it would have made them blush for shame and caused them to lift up their united voices in one great plea for eternal peace.

And there is one other scene that will haunt my memory as long as I live—that of the final meeting between Amelia and Lieutenant Hoffmann, the young war-lord who, in obedience to the orders of the Imperialism Government, was anxious to obtain the beautiful girl as his "War Bride."

Is war degrading, bestial, destructive of all that is pure, refined and elevating in life? This scene answers the question once and for all and the answer is—yes.

As is quite proper since the horrors of war fall principally upon the women the chief parts in Mr. Brenon's marvellous production are carried by Nazimova, Gertrude Berkeley and Nila Mae, as Joan, the Mother and Amelia, and it is no exaggeration to say that their acting displays the very perfection of the art dramatic.

I am glad that I went to see "War Brides." I was a strong believer in peace before; now I am its almost fanatical devotee. I hated war before I saw "War Brides" now I utterly detest, abominate and loathe the fiendish business.

And I am not alone, for the great audience which literally packed the Broadway Theatre from pit to gallery, gave unmistakable evidence of its detestation of the war game and of their earnest devotion to the cause of peace.

Right here I want, personally, to thank Mr. Brenon for the great task he has accomplished in creating and putting before the people his mighty appeal for "Peace on earth, good will among men."

—N. Y. American, Nov. 14th.

"War Brides" will be presented at the Bradley, Friday, March 9th.

Employment Managers.

The function of securing the right kind of help and seeing to it that that help makes continued progress toward maximum efficiency is second to no other in any factory, and for this reason the manager of the employment department must have absolute authority over those functions or at least must have first hand access to the ear of the supreme administrative authority.—R. A foot expert will be here—a man trained under the supervision of the celebrated Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, the widely known, successful foot specialist. He will give you his services absolutely free of charge and you will be under no obligation either to him or us.

Saturday, March 3.

He has helped thousands of persons to obtain relief from their foot troubles and will gladly do as much for you. He will tell you —how you can wear your regular size shoe without the feeling that it is too short or too tight.

—how you can become freed from the pain of corns, bunions, callouses and cramps in the toes and ball of the foot;
—how your ankles can be straightened and strengthened without the necessity of wearing cumbersome braces;
—how the annoyance and discomfort of perspiring feet may be overcome in your own home;
—how to rid yourself of all foot troubles, including pains in heels, ankles and limbs; tired, aching feet; weak, fallen or broken-down arches.

You may ask him any questions you wish about your feet, the kind of shoes you should wear—whether high heels or low—or anything else that may influence your foot comfort.

Instant Relief and Permanent Comfort

This Scholl foot expert does no cutting. He produces wonderful results by mechanical means—by using Dr. Scholl's scientific corrective appliances and preparations that give instant relief and permanent comfort.

If you have ever worn arch supports or other devices to correct your foot ailments without satisfactory results, let him tell you why they failed, or let him readjust them to give you the proper effects. If you have tried other treatments without success, be sure to see this Scholl foot expert and tell him about your case.

There is no charge connected with this service. It is free to all.

No Obligation to Buy

You will not be asked to spend a single penny. You do not even need to be a customer of this store. If you never bought a thing here you are just as welcome to this free service as if you were our best customer. We want everyone to know how easily and quickly foot troubles can be overcome.

Don't Wait Too Long

The Scholl foot expert will be here a short time only, and this opportunity may never occur again so do not fail to see him at once. Make it a point to get in early tomorrow morning before the crowd makes it difficult to obtain his best and most thorough attention.

Bring The Children, Too

If you have any children—whether they have foot troubles or not—bring them in and let the Scholl expert show you how you can prevent their little feet from causing them the annoyances, discomforts and pains that you yourself may now experience.

An Unusual Opportunity

This is an opportunity that comes very seldom and we urge every reader of this newspaper to take full advantage of it. There are no strings attached to the offer. It is simply a chance to obtain the services of a successful foot expert free of charge. Remember the date and come early.

A Lonely Continent.

Australia is the most isolated of all inhabited continents and is remote from the center of all the world's activities. Northward the sailing distance to Japan is approximately 3,000 nautical miles; to India 2,500 miles. South America is 7,000 miles to the east, and Africa an equal distance west. From London to the capital of Australia ships by the Suez route traverse approximately 11,000 miles of water and by the Panama canal 12,784 miles. From California ports the routes via Samoa or Fiji or Tahiti cover a quarter of the circumference of the earth. Australia's only large civilized neighbor within a radius of 1,000 miles is Java.—National Geographic Magazine.

INDIVIDUAL THRIFT.

It Means to the Man What Conservation Does to the Nation.

The movement to encourage the people of this country to curb extravagance and to save money is rapidly growing, and it is a good thing that it is so. We need such a campaign, and its gospel of thrift should be spread broadcast throughout our land. The American people must save. They can no longer afford to waste.

It was the tremendous natural wealth of this country that made Americans a nation of spendthrifts. Now the end of nature's bounty is actually in sight. All of the better public lands have been taken up. The government is carefully estimating our resources of coal and oil. Water power is being developed and husbanded. Wealth is not half so easy to create as once it was, and for that reason there is a nation wide appreciation of the necessity for conserving it. Thrift means to the individual life exactly what conservation does to the nation.

This movement for saving money means a good deal more than the curbing of individual extravagance. It means more capital available for the uses of commerce. It means that when you have saved $1,000 you will find it a good deal easier to borrow another $1,000 if you have a good investment in view.

CLOTHES ON THE LINE.

Putting a Bit of Poetry Into a Very Prosaic Task.

A ride along the interurban cars on a fine Monday will show you line after line of snowy clothes fluttering in the breeze, and if you are a woman who has ever tried her hand at the washing game you'll envy the woman who has the bright afternoon before her to do as she pleases since she has spent her morning so profitably.

Did you ever see freshly washed clothes on a line out in the sunshine and breeze—clothes that you washed with your own hands?

You haven't? Well, you needn't tip it with such a scornful tilt to your nose. You're to be pitied more than envied, for you've missed one of the joys of being a woman.

Maybe the real work of it, the scrubbing and boiling and rinsing part, couldn't be called pure joy, but hanging the pieces up, clean and sweet and white, then standing back to view proudly the whole long row—ah, then you taste the glory of real achievement, and it gives a satisfaction that few achievements give.

It's such a worthy work, making the world a cleaner, more wholesome place, by beginning on your own soiled raiment.—Indianapolis News.

Lectured at the Baptist Church Tuesday Evening

Dr Carolyn E. Geisel of Battle Creek, Mich., spoke at the Baptist church Tuesday evening to a large audience, taking for her theme "Alcohol and the Man Himself" Dr. Geisel is out in the interest of the Anti-Saloon League of America and is one of the many national speakers who are being sent out by the League to do field work and raise funds for the national campaign

Dr Geisel is a practising physician and surgeon, being a gaaduate of the University of Michigan, and has taken special work in schools and laboratories in Europe where she has received several diplomas. She has worked in the slums of some of the great cities and is a speaker of national reputation.

She made a strong appeal for aid in this campaign to drive out the liquor from our country. She used facts and figures showing the number of imperfect children born to alcholic parents.

It was a special mother's appeal to the nation to sweep out liquor and save her boy. She gave many abstract cases showing the effect of alcohol on the human system and of the crime and murder which is caused by its use.

At the close of her talk she circulated pledge cards and appealed to the people to pledge themselves to aid the National League in this work.

DUEL FOUGHT BY TWO TECUMSEH LADS

Quarrel Over Politics the Cause of the Trouble

A real Alexander Hamilton-Aaron Burr duel was pulled off in our peaceful town Wednesday afternoon between Raymond Taylor and Raymond Nobles, two boys aged about 11 or 12 years old. The spot chosen was not along the beautiful Raisin as one would naturally pick for an affair of this kind, but behind Dr. Beardsley's barn.

It is claimed that bad feeling had existed for some time between the Boys which started at school over a discussion between them as to who was the best fellow, Wilson or Hughes. The trouble continued and the boys maltreated each other from time to time and Wednesday afternoon they decided to have it out and those for weapons guns (air guns) and took their stand behind the Beardsley barn.

It differed somewhat from the ordinary duel as we understand no seconds or doctors were present although material for seconds was at hand in the hayloft of the barn.

In the shooting young Nobles was worsted as the shot from Taylor's gun struck his face about an inch below the eye. He was rushed to the hospital (Dr. Beardsley's house) where the maid rendered first aid, dousing the wound with peroxide. Nobles will live, in fact he is as lively as ever today.

When will boys learn that guns are not made to shoot boys and people with. While this affair did not do any serious damage, still it might have been the loss of an eye or the loss of Nobles' life. This affair is carrying it too far and the boys should be disciplined.

SEVERAL PAST MASTERS FROM TECUMSEH ATTEND

What proved to be a very pleasant occasion was the Past Master's Night at Adrian Wednesday evening. The past masters of the county were entertained most royally by Adrian Lodge No. 19, F. & A. M., at the Masonic Temple. The event was the semi-annual round-up of the Lenawee County Past Master's Association. Most of the lodges throughout the county were well represented.

The lodge was opened by the Adrian lodge, W. M. George Gilbert presiding. He welcomed the visiting past masters and turned the lodge room over to them for work in the third degree.

Tecumseh Past Masters were well represented. In the chair were C. F. Patterson acted as senior warden and John R. Nyland junior warden. The three Js were Joseph H. Smith, Guy Nemire and C. F. Patterson, all of Tecumseh.

After work several pastmasters were called upon for remarks which were much enjoyed. A fine luncheon was served following the work.

Those making the pilgrimage from Tecumseh were C. F. Patterson, Joseph H. Smith, Guy E. Nemire, John R. Nyland, Frank J. Temple and H. J. Whaley.

"Alice in Wonderland" has come and gone and a most delightful entertainment it proved to young and old for we noticed that the older ones were present both afternoon and evening as well as the younger crowd, and each one took away with them a pleasant memory of the fairy tales that were shown on the screen. We are very sure that no one regrets the time spent in witnessing this very funny show.

MAN OF 66 WOULD ENLIST

Arthur C. Crossman, 66 for eleven years a real estate man in Omaha, has announced to his friends that he is willing to give up his business and join the ranks of Uncle Sam's armies in case this country is drawn into the great war

Fifty-five years have elapsed since Mr Crossman was a drummer boy for recruiting offices in Michigan during the civil war, but he has not forgotten how to use his drum sticks, and would like to show his prowess in case of war.

The above article was clipped from the Omaha News of Sunday February 18 Mr. Crossman is an old Tecumseh boy, was born here and spent his early life among us. He has many friends here who remember "the young drummer boy" We admire his spirit of patriotism, but hope he will have no occasion to go to war.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Williston at St. Mary's hospital, Detroit, Monday, February 19, a daughter, Audrey Margaret. Mrs. Williston will be remembered as Miss Fern Stringham who for a number of years was an employee in the Herald office.

Gaston's store has a funny combination in their window this week. A diamond ring, a lump of coal, a potato and some onions, your choice $125.00. With coal $9.00 per ton, potatoes $3.20 per bushel and onions 14 cents per pound, it would take the diamond and then some to buy ordinary winter supplies.

Inactive Kidneys Cause Disease

"I shall not soon forget the benefits I derived from the use of Foley Kidney Pills."—Al A. [illegible], Forest Grove, Oregon.

Too much work and too little work seem to have about the same effect on persons past middle age. Proper action of the kidneys is necessary to good health. They act as a filter and remove from the blood poisonous waste matter which if permitted to remain in the system leads to many complications.

Many nervous, tired, run-down men and women suffer from pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, bladder weakness, sore muscles and stiff joints, and fail to realize that rheumatism, diabetes or even Bright's disease may result.

If you have cause to believe that your kidneys are weak, disordered or inactive you should act immediately. Foley Kidney Pills have been used by young, middle aged and old with complete satisfaction. They act quickly and surely and have given relief in cases of ten years standing.

"See—all you have to do is to use your two fingers and lift the corn right off. That's the way 'Gets-It' always works. You just put on about 2 drops. Then the corn not only shrivels, but loosens from the toe, without affecting the surrounding flesh in the least. Why, it's almost a pleasure to have corns and see how 'Gets-It' gets them off in a hurry and without the least pain. I can wear tight shoes, dance and walk as though I never had corns."

"Gets-It" makes the use of toe-irritating salves, bundling bandages, tape, plasters and other things not only foolish, but unnecessary. Use this wonderful discovery, "Gets-It," for any soft or hard corn or callus. It is the new, simple, easy, quick way, and it never fails. You'll never have to cut a corn again with knives or scissors, and run chances of blood poison. Try "Gets-It" tonight.

Pretty Heavy Umbrellas

The great objection to umbrellas 100 years ago was their weight, and when it is stated as a matter of fact that the very smallest umbrella then weighed no less than three and a half pounds it will probably be admitted that the objection was a justifiable one. Instead of the thin rainproof fabrics which now form the covering of umbrellas nothing better was known than leather or oilcloth. The ribs were of wood or whalebone, and such a thing as a steel rod was, of course, unknown. The stick was usually of heavy oak. In those days, too, many umbrellas had the additional incumbrance of feathers over the top on the theory of "shedding water off a duck's back."

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR.

Thursday, Feb. 22.—Advices from Berlin by way of Amsterdam are that Austria will repudiate her pledges to the U. S. regarding U-boat warfare and that diplomatic relations between the two nations will be broken.

News from all battlefronts indicate a calm in the fighting.

A Reuters dispatch reports the entente allies have cut postal communication between Athens and the central powers.

Friday, Feb. 23.—Premier Lloyd George in a speech to the house of commons admitted the future of the British empire was periled by the U-boat campaign, and urged "ruthless" sacrifices by the people of Great Britain. The premier declared the government would ban every form of luxury, prohibit the import of "nonessentials" and increase the farm area of the kingdom and speed up the farmers.

German troops after strong artillery preparation launched three attacks against the Russian positions east of Zlochoff in Galicia and broke through the Russian lines. Counter attacks by the Russians were successful in driving back the Teutons to their original positions.

Saturday, Feb. 24.—The village of Petit Miramont, south of Ancre, in France, has been entered by British troops as a result of an advance southeast of Miramount.

The British line south and southeast of Serre, north of the Ancre, has been pushed forward on a front of over a mile and a half.

Consternation was caused at the Hague by the announcement of the torpedoing by German submarines of seven Dutch cargo vessels, two of which, the Noorderdijk and the Zaandijk, grain laden and bound for a home port, belonged to the Holland-American line. The relations of Holland and Germany have been strained almost to the breaking point.

Sunday, Feb. 25.—According to advices from the Somme front the British have ocupied five important towns in the Ancre sector and the Germans have been compelled to withdraw miles. Another raid was carried out by the British east of Vierstraat, Belgium. Here, on a front of 500 yards, the British entered the German trenches, inflicting heavy casualties.

A belated British official communication, dealing with the fighting along the Tigris river, shows that in addition to having occupied Turkish trenches over a front of nearly 2,000 yards in the Sannaiyat region last week, the British troops also were able to cross to the left bank of the Tigris in the Shumran bend, west of Kut-el-Amara.

BUILDING A CHARACTER.

Character is the wool of honor from which a coat of mail can be woven that the swiftest arrow of shame or the keenest knife of disrepute cannot pierce. Every thought that enters our mind, every act we do and every word we utter adds a link to the golden chain of character. Our reputation may be destroyed by an external force, but the destruction of a character can be effected only by some internal force.

The actual figures show that there is about one execution for every seventy-five homicides which occur in the United States.

EVIL AND HATE.

"Do good to those who hate you" is based on a scientific fact. To do evil is to bring destructive elements upon your own character. When our eyes are really opened self preservation will make us turn out of the house of our mind such guests as evil and hate.—S. W. Trine.

Odd Titles of Newspapers.

In Columbus, says the Dispatch, there is a man whose chief joy is in a collection of newspaper titles.

There are Headlights, Flashlights, Bees, Eagles, Owls, Mirrors and News-Letters, but when it comes to Derricks, Meddlers, Telescopes, Flags and Sunbeams the class is limited. In Hot Springs there is published the Arkansas Thomas Cat, and other titles just as unusual are the Sledge Hammer, the Irrepressible, the Silent Worker and Gall.

Frequently it is possible to tell from the title of a newspaper the state in which it is published. For instance, the Chieftain is in Oklahoma, the Rustler and the Lariat are in Texas, Big Hole Breezes in Montana and the Roundup in Wyoming.
